Trudeau Constitution Plan To Spark Historic Clash

SNOWBALLS HURLED BY NATIONALIST MOB

QUEBEC (CP) — A half-dozen windows of the Quebec legislature buildings were shattered by snowballs today as thousands of members and youthful supporters of a French-language nationalist group demonstrated against the promised introduction of a language rights bill.

The horde of marchers, estimated by provincial police to number nearly 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, dwindled to a few hundred by noon, when it was learned that the proposed bill was not up for debate today.

60,000 Stage Token Strike

PARIS (Reuters) — About 60,000 Renault auto workers began a half-day token strike today in the first big challenge to the government since the May-June revolts.

About 30,000 workers were from the huge Renault factory at Billancourt in suburban Paris, one of the first plants to strike in the labor unrest in the spring. The workers claim the state-owned company has not honored agreements to improve working conditions.

Other workers downed tools at Renault factories at Tat le Mains, Cleon and Sandouville in northern France and at Flins, a centre of labor discontent west of Paris.

Before the strike began, the National Assembly voted 438 to 4 for a bill giving labor unions official recognition in all firms with more than 50 employees. Union officials will also be allowed time off the job for organization activities in companies with more than 500 workers. The bill now goes to the Senate.

VARY IN LENGTH

The strikes will vary in length from factory to factory. Labor union leaders view them as a warning to the government not to implement parts of a new austerity program that allegedly would wipe out gains won by workers after the spring crisis.

Nixon Urged To Send Observer

NEW YORK (AP) — W. Averell Harriman said today, after conferring with President-elect Richard M. Nixon, that he is confident Nixon will send a personal observer to the Paris talks and will replace the two principal American negotiators soon after taking office.

Nixon, who had tentatively decided against sending an observer to the peace talks before inauguration day, was said to be shifting his attitude at the urging of Harriman.

Talking to reporters after meeting with Nixon for more than an hour, Harriman made it clear he and deputy negotiator Cyrus R. Vance will turn over their tasks to Nixon's team on or about Jan. 20, which is inauguration day.

Peace to All From Hanoi

LONDON (AP) — The North Vietnamese Liberation Radio announced today the Viet Cong will observe two ceasefire periods of three days each at Christmas and New Year.

Liberation Radio, broadcasting from Hanoi, said the first ceasefire period will cover Dec. 24, 25, 26 and the second, Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1, said BBC.

The United States and South Vietnamese commands announced Monday they will observe a 24-hour ceasefire Christmas Day but that there would be no truce on New Year's Day.

25,000 MARCH IN ROME

ROME (Reuters) — About 25,000 striking workers and students staged a protest march through the streets of Rome today, booing policemen, waving red flags and blowing incessantly on plastic whistles.

The marchers, led by a row of 40 men with linked arms hissed and booed a group of police guarding a police station and two army trucks ferrying people to work turned into a side street to avoid them.

Chanting "Worker power" and "Workers and students unite," the procession reached St. John Lateran Square where the crowd swelled to more than 40,000 to listen to speeches by labor union leaders.

FEELING RUNS HIGH

Feeling against the police has run high among workers since two demonstrating farm laborers were shot and killed Monday in a clash with police in Sicily.

Most stores were closed and shuttered, offices empty, government and public buildings deserted.

Strip Mining 'Raping' Land

CRANBROOK (CP) — Legislation to control strip mining was advocated Wednesday by Henry Nelson, chairman of the East Kootenay regional district.

In a statement sent to all provincial government departments and Kootenay district municipal councils, Mr. Nelson called for legislation to ensure rehabilitation of land after strip mining.

"It is fine for the province to be resources-orientated, but we in turn must protect the land so future generations of British Columbians can enjoy this great province the way we do today," he said.

"Surely the East Kootenay, and for that matter all of Canada, is worth more than just being raped of its resources and then left when it has served its resource-orientated purpose," said Mr. Nelson.

PRIDE OF THE NORTH part of the capital region, Robert Van der Brink of the Dutch Latch on the Malahat was first to tackle the snow-covered wastes today with his trusty lead dog Tiny. You can see suffering written on their faces as they turn from the bitter winds. But their mission must be accomplished, even if they have to pick up the doggon' toboggan and carry it. The district's first measurable snow melted quickly. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Court, Senate Battle Grounds

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Following a briefing Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Liberal caucus members are saying that the federal-provincial constitutional conference Dec. 16-18 will be a major and historic confrontation between Ottawa and the provinces.

The prime minister's briefing was primarily concerned with constitutional reform plans, including a move to depersonalize the role of the monarchy in Canada, and alter the part provinces would play in reform.

Caucus members said Mr. Trudeau is prepared to offer provinces a role in the appointment of senators.

But there were no details about how this would be carried out.

Mr. Trudeau has indicated outside the caucus that he would prefer a system whereby the provinces made nominations and he made the selections.

The provinces likely will press for authority to make appointments on their own.

The prime minister also is known to favor having the senate undertake more investigations in order to prepare the basis for new legislation. But he would guard against turning over to the senate the power to initiate legislation on its own.

Some Liberal backbenchers are keeping a close watch on moves in the upper House to introduce its own reforms. They charge that the Senate is making a bid to get more power and they will fight any such development.

A clash with the provinces is also expected on appointments to the Supreme Court.

Ottawa is expected to make some concessions to counter the Quebec charge that federal appointees on the court are heavily under the influence of the federal government to Quebec's disadvantage.

Role of Queen Played Down

On the role of the monarchy in government there may be a move to substitute the Canadian governor-general for Her Majesty in such documents as proclamations and the preamble to the constitution.

This is a touchy subject and could stir up considerable opposition from some provinces.

The prime minister has also made it clear that he will propose a draft charter of human rights to be incorporated in the constitution. The present Bill of Rights — introduced by John Diefenbaker — is only a federal statute.

On other fronts tempers are rising as the meeting date approaches.

Ottawa's proposals for dividing revenues on offshore mineral rights have run into stiff opposition from British Columbia and Quebec.

The budget brought down by Finance Minister Edgar Benson has also angered the provinces.

The last federal-provincial conference with the finance ministers and health ministers saw Ottawa inform the provincial ministers that it was bowing out of several social welfare or social development programs thereby lopping off large sums of money that used to go to the provinces from the federal treasury.

The climate for this approaching federal-provincial conference is not conducive to friendly negotiations.

The discussions could become decidedly warm if not superheated at some points.

The caucus discussion on planned changes in the constitution will continue next Wednesday, the last gathering of cabinet and Liberal backbenchers before the federal-provincial conference opens.

Snow Hits Up-Island Areas; Coldest Night Forecast Here

Victoria is facing its coldest night so far this winter tonight.

But it's a warming thought to consider that snow reported from up-Island points appears to be avoiding the capital city.

Temperatures will drop to the 20s tonight in Greater Victoria areas except near the waterfront, the weatherman expects.

It should be clear tonight and sunny Friday. Weatherman was expecting mostly sunny weather with some rain showers today, perhaps with a few flakes of "thick rain" mixed in.

There were a few flakes mixed with rain in Victoria Wednesday night and early today, but up-Island, snowfalls ranged from a powdering to four inches in Port Alberni.

RCMP estimated about double that depth on the "hump" where the highway leads to Parksville and similar conditions on the mountains toward Tofino and Ucluelet.

SALTING ROADS

Courtenay had an inch overnight, Campbell River was salting its roads after a light fall. Nanaimo reported snow in the outskirts, a sprinkle in town and some icing.

Duncan reported some snow but it mostly disappeared by mid-morning.

The Malahat was covered with an inch of wet, slushy snow but roads were reported clear and so far the RCMP was not calling for chains or snow tires.

On the mainland there was a five-inch snowfall at Prince Rupert and six inches at Prince George. Vancouver had an overnight powder, Squamish seven inches.

BURNING SUN

Meanwhile, back in Victoria, a woman complained Wednesday that the sun burned a hole in her curtains.

Mrs. W. R. Thorne, 1265 Haultain, found her curtain smouldering and called the fire department. Assistant chief John Stewart said rays caught by a magnifying mirror on her dresser had reflected on the curtain. He said it was a first in his memory.

WIRE BRIEFS

Higher Sales Tax

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP) —In a surprise move, the government today outlined new selective fiscal restraints, which include a higher sales tax on specified consumer goods such as firearms, watches, photographic equipment, higher duties on precious and semi-precious stones, and tougher consumer credit terms.

Return to Homes

NATAL (CP) — Eleven families, evacuated from their homes near this mining community last week because of minor slides of fill being used to construct a mining road, were allowed to return Wednesday night.

Ojukwu Blamed

OTTAWA (CP) — Anthony Enahoro, Nigerian information commissioner, charged today that Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu has used the food shortage facing his people to "play on the conscience of the world." He told a press conference that relief problems in secessionist Biafra have arisen mainly as a result of poor planning by its leaders.

WHITE STUFF AGAIN CLOGS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Almost a foot of wet snow fell on Montreal Wednesday, nearly a third of the winter's total so far.

Since the season's first big storm Nov. 12, which dumped 8.9 inches of snow on the unsuspecting city, 40.7 inches have fallen. So far this month, the total is 13.2

Last winter, only 13.8 inches of snow had fallen on Montreal by Dec. 5.

Byelections Preserve Union Nationale Lead

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The expected split decision in two Quebec byelections Wednesday leaves Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand with a narrow margin for manoeuvre going into important constitutional negotiations with the federal government.

Eucation Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's victory in the late Daniel Johnson's riding of Bagot gives the Union Nationale government 55 of the 108 seats in the Quebec legislature with one member neutralized by the speaker's role, that leaves a government voting strength of 54.

The total opposition vote rose to 52—including three independents—Wednesday when Liberal William Tetley easily carried the largely English-speaking Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace. One vacancy remains.

In Ottawa, where Mr. Bertrand's recent warnings of a possible Quebec-Ottawa constitutional confrontation have been taken coolly as by-products of the byelection campaign, Mr. Bertrand will be watched closely for hints on how he reads his own tight situation.

One of the most severe restrictions on Mr. Bertrand's ability to negotiate with Ottawa is expected to come from the nationalist wing of his own party.

The government has a clear,

Youths Douse Saigon Envoy

NEW YORK (AP) — Student demonstrators, some waving Viet Cong flags, prevented talks at New York University by a South Vietnamese diplomat and the executive editor of the New York Times Wednesday night.

About 60 demonstrators, 40 young men and women, pushed past a security guard where Nguyen Huu Chi, South Vietnam's permanent observer to the United Nations, was to address the political forum of the university.

The students, many of whom said they belonged to the militant Students for a Democratic Society, draped a Nazi flag around the diplomat's neck and someone poured a pitcher of water over him.

An NYU alumnus, Morton Minsky, who was attending the lecture, said the audience of about 700—most of them adults —shouted at the demonstrators: "Go home!"

The demonstrators also tore down a South Vietnamese flag and upset tables and chairs.

James Reston, executive editor of The Times, had begun his talk in another auditorium when demonstrators broke through a side door, dismantled the loudspeaker system, and shouted epithets. They were booed by the audience.

Police said there were no arrests.

EDUCATION MARKED FOR BIG BUDGET HIKE?

By JOHN MIKA

British Columbia's minister of education may inadvertently have given away a budgetary secret this week.

The possibility is that he let slip a treasury board estimate of an approximately $70 million increase in the education department's share of the budget Premier Bennett will bring down in February.

Adding up the probable significance of his comments, it would appear that the current year's education department estimates of $271.1 million will be overspent by some $22 million in the government's crash program to fill some of the gaps created by its widely resented school freeze.

And the lesson has sunk home with the government intending to avoid a repetition of its vulnerability to attack by planning to provide in the neighborhood of $365 million for education in the coming fiscal year.

The slip possibility arose in Mr. Brothers' handling of reporters' questions about university appeals for more construction grants.

Mr. Brothers said one of the reasons the government can't provide 100 per cent of the needs is the "skyrocketing" demand of public schools for more money.

ACUTELY CONSCIOUS

He said he was acutely conscious of the demands because his department now is in the throes of a treasury board grilling over its estimates for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

During the explanation, he said the people should realize that the department's current burden "approaches $300 million a year — compared with $18 million in 1952."

Another point he referred to is its spending rate as "$1 million a day."

When the discrepancy was pointed out to him, he said with a smile that $1 million a day "approaches $300 million, doesn't it?"

When it was pointed out to him that he was showing retroactive and unnatural modesty in describing a $365 million expenditure as merely "approaching," $300 million, Mr. Brothers smiled again and said "well it was $297 million last year and we all know there is going to be an increase."

The government's book of estimates for 1967-68 budgeted only $271.1 million for the education department so Mr. Brothers' second explanation suggests a substantial overexpenditure — which is consistent with the flood of treasury board announcements in the last three months authorizing more school construction.

Unitarian Theme Exemplified By Girls' Institute in India

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, started the institute in Madras in 1961. Now it is being run completely by Indians. The Indian government has even imitated USC courses in a new state-wide girls' training program.

"In 1961 I visited India and I noticed how there were vocational courses for boys and none for girls," said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"India needed housekeepers for rich families and diplomats, yet there was no training school for them," she said.

Twenty-five girls studied at the institute the first year it opened. "Girls who wouldn't make it academically," were admitted, said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"From the first year it was a success, and USC-trained girls are always placed easily."

In 1964, the USC turned over the institute to Mary Clubwalla Jadhav, the "dynamic" leader of the USC partner agency in Madras.

On a recent visit to the institute, Dr. Hitschmanova was pleased to find things running smoothly and an increased number of courses.

Dr. Hitschmanova remembers Martha, one of the training institute's first pupils.

"She was so shy and withdrawn," she said.

"Until she started working at the bread unit in the institute her future wasn't good, but now she is a happy, normal teen-ager," she said.

The Institute helped Martha but Dr. Hitschmanova says there are others still in need.

"When I came back to Canada," she said, "I was told the USC should do more at home."

"Sure we have our problems in this country where every fifth person lives in poverty," she said. "But compared to India we live in a paradise, and few of us know how much it hurts to be hungry."

Martha and people like her will learn nothing if they are

IDEA TAKING ROOT

Merger With Yukon Inevitable—Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett Tuesday appeared to think there was a greater chance that the repeated proposal for merging the Yukon and Mackenzie Basin with B.C. is taking root.

He told reporters that it will come inevitably some day and seemed hopeful that some kind of breatkthrough would occurr when he raises the idea formally at the federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa opening Dec. 16.

He said he has received enthusiastic letters "from lots of individuals but not many from those federal government appointees up there."

Mr. Bennett said he will not go to Whitehorse as invited by the Yukon Territorial Council "because I'm not trying to sell a bill of goods.

'They Must Decide'

"I'm painting a picture for the northerners so they can see the benefits of becoming part of this great development in British Columbia and sharing it — the highways, power development, railways and great tourist business.

"There would be great advantages for them but, in the end, they must decide and I'm sure they will."

He said he is "not trying to force anyone" to accept his propositon that the British North America Act be amended to extend the B.C. boundaries to the Arctic border of Canada because he was sure that self-interest would persuade the north sooner or later.

Mr. Bennett said the only alternative is creation of a northern province but he claimed this was not a viable propostion because the north lacks the necessary population and economic bases.

"We're not trying to push anything down anyone's throat but history will show that this (boundary extension) is the right approach, the broad approach.

"This is not only an approach with vision and courage but it's sound — in fact, it's the only sound approach."

The premier underscored his long-standing ambition to achieve a mark as a northern pioneer by emphasizing that one of his first acts in 1952 was to obtain an understanding with Premier Manning of Alberta that the two provinces would co-operate to develop the Peace River Block.

He said they also agreed that extension of the boundaries of both provinces would be a long-range object in the interests of spreading development to the Arctic Ocean.

Ultimate Challenge

Mr. Bennett said he bided his time to further this objective because "naturally, first we had to develop our own northern Birtish Columbia otherwise it would'nt be fair." But he hinted that he was dazzled most by the potential of Yukon and it as his ultimate challenge.

He pointed out that when opposition sprang up four years ago to his merger proposal, made during a meeting in Whitehorse, he didn't push the idea further but waited for another appropriate opportunity to raise it. His brief to the constitutional conference would show he had not abandoned or forgotten the objective.

"The British Columbia government doesn't try to force anybody but it knows—and I hope everyone knows—that the soil must be cultivated many times and the seeds planted before there can be any harvest.

"Wether it (boundary extension) will come in a year or two or a few years from now, this development will come about. But it's for the northerners to say."

Intentional Leak

He said he deliberately leaked his intention to raise it at the constitutional conference for forewarn Ottawa so the matter was not treated lightly and "so that the people of British Columbia knew what was on the premier's mind.

"I'm painting a broad picture for them."

When reminded that former Premier Duff Pattullo dropped a similar proposal because of the parochial school tangle it raised, Mr. Bennett stopped smiling and tried to change the subject.

When asked twice whether he would bend his views against state assistance to parochial schools—the historical situation in B.C. but the reverse in the federal territories—as a concession to the northerners in a merger, Mr. Bennett stiffly replied "I just want to give the broad picture now, not deal with details."

Chretien Rapped

Asked if he thought the proposal could founder a second time on the same issue he refused to answer.

But Mr. Bennett did deal with some other details.

He accused federal Northern Development Minister Chretien of "speaking without knowledge" for attacking the merger plan on the grounds that B.C. didn't care about the Indian and Eskimo populations of the north, only about the raw resources.

"We've helped our Indians and there will be more help for them in the next budget," said Mr. Bennett.

French Used At Talks

PARIS (Reuters) — U.S. and North Vietnamese negotiators so far have settled only one minor point in procedural arrangements for expanded Vietnam peace talks, Hanoi delegation sources said today.

The sources said the two delegations agreed that Vietnamese and English would be the conference's official languages with French as the "working language."

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Defence Secretary Clark M. Clifford said Wednesday one of the first United States' objectives at the four-party peace talks in Paris will be to get the demilitarized zone cleared.

Speaking at a St. Louis Chamber of Commerce dinner, Clifford said clearing of the demilitarized zone would "give us a measure of protection in return for our not bombing up the North."

SAIGON (Reuters) — Officials called for an immediate joint session of the National Assembly today after the lower house delayed approval of South Vietnamese participation in the Paris peace talks.

President Nguyen Van Thieu announced Wednesday the South Vietnamese delegation would arrive in Paris Saturday.

TOKYO (AP) — Red China gave its first hint Wednesday that it is sternly opposed to the Paris peace talks to end the war in Vietnam.

It did this in a round-about way, publishing a speech by Albania's deputy premier and defence minister, Beqair Balluku, accusing the United States and the Soviet Union of plotting to crush the Viet Cong through the peace talks.

Violations Endanger Peace Bid, U.S. Warns

By Reuters

The United States Wednesday warned Israel and Jordan that violations of the Middle East ceasefire served only to heighten tensions and disrupt United Nations efforts to bring peace to the area.

The State Department warning came as Egyptian President Nasser rejected a reported U.S. Middle East peace plan, and exchanges across the Israeli-Jordanian ceasefire line continued for the fourth straight day.

Meanwhile, UN peace envoy Gunnar Jarring met with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad for 2½ hours in Cairo Wednesday. No statement was issued after the talks, but the Middle East news agency said Jarring "did not present anything new . . . and the envoy's mission is still facing a blind alley."

Riad told Jarring that Egypt considered Israeli bombing of Jordanian territory Tuesday "as actual war against the Arab countries," the news agency reported.

Later in Cairo, in a speech before the national congress of the Arab Socialist Union, Nasser said Egypt was considering a political settlement provided it was honorable and "does not give one inch of Arab land to Israel."

He said Egypt rejected a reported U.S. plan—denied by the state department—which called on each Arab state to settle its problems with Israel on a separate basis.

Israel has expansionist plans and to allow it to expand would bring no end to its ambitions, Nasser said.

In a two-hour raid Wednesday on military positions in the Iribid area of northern Jordan, one Israeli Mystere jet was shot down and several others hit, a Jordanian spokesman said.

Witnesses said about 36 Israeli planes took part in the raid. Some houses were hit.

Scholarship Rules Eased

A Times' headline which indicated Wednesday student loan regulations had been eased should have referred to scholarships.

Loans for students are becoming harder to get, University of Victoria financial aid officer Nels Granewall said. The only change was to scholarships awarded by the provincial government, as outlined in the Times' story.

Education Minister Donald Brothers said students not taking a full year of studies would also be permitted to collect scholarships if they qualified.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler announced Tuesday he plans to become a general partner of the New York investment banking firm of Goldman, Sachs and Co. on Jan. 1. Fowler, 60, has been secretary of the treasury since April, 1965.

Italian Parish In Rebellion

The priest, Rev. Enzo Mazzi, defied an order removing him from the working-class parish of Isolatto and told his parishioners "our mass will be held every day in the streets."

His followers sent a letter to the archbishop, Ermenegildo Cardinal Florit, denouncing him for removing Father Mazzi.

They told the cardinal he was "driving away an entire people."

The parishioners organized a march from their neighborhood on the outskirts of Florence to the cathedral square to read aloud before the cardinal's residence parts of a catechism they wrote with Father Mazzi's help.

Father Mazzi, 43, was dismissed for issuing the catechism and for defying the cardinal on other questions.

The rebellion of the Parish came one day after Pope Paul attacked dissidents in the Church and especially those who insist on presenting modernized views of doctrine in new catechisms.

In the Isolatto catechism, Father Mazzi and his collaborators depicted Christ as a leader of the poor people of his time against the rich. As soon as the catechism went on sale last weekend Cardinal Florit denounced it and forbade all priests in his archdiocese from using it.

"As longas I am not allowed to say mass in this church, we will say the mass among you. We will reside in this quarter and will live among you. We will work to sustain ourselves.

"The Church is of the poor and not the rich. The Church is of the young who must come unto us."

A committee of parents immediately organized children of the parish to write to the cardinal asking him to reverse his order.

if thin, majority, magnified slightly by a generally better attendance record among U.N. members than among Liberals, by independent separatist Rene Levesque's belief that his newly-formed Parti Quebecois is not ready for an election, and by the firm habit of independent Frank Hanley of voting with the government.

But if Mr. Bertrand's government can survive without the support of serapatist independents Rene Levesque and Gaston Tremblay, it is vulnerable to any withdrawal of support by the ultra-nationalists of his own party.

This group, with a hard core of little more than a half-dozen members, has already forced the premier to withdraw the bill guaranteeing English-language rights that he had intended to push through the house before by-election.

Reinforced by the election of Mr. Cardinal, who is expected to be the focus of nationalist support when the party holds a convention to choose a permanent successor to the late Daniel Johnson, this ginger group is now in a position to influence Mr. Bertrand's policies substantially.

Ironically, their leverage was increased by the defeat of UN candidate John Lynch-Staunton by the English-speaking voters of Notre-Dame-de Grace.

The issue in that riding was English-language education rights.

But in rejecting the government candidate the English-speaking voters aggravated Mr. Bertrand's need to court the nationalists in his own party and hobbled his own apparent desire to protect the traditional privileges of the English-speaking.

Mr. Bertrand's own reading of the political facts of life will show up in the outcome of the current negotiations between Quebec and Ottawa over Canadian representation at an international French-language conference in the French African state of Niger.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday that he was optimistic about the outcome of the talks.

Police Use Tear Gas To Disperse Students

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Police withdrew from Brussels University today and classes opened normally after a night of rioting in which 13 policemen were injured, two of them seriously, and five students were arrested.

Police with protective shields occupied the university Wednesday night after a clash with students on the campus. They cleared the main building of demonstrators with tear gas.

The trouble followed a scene at a public meeting on the campus Nov. 27, attended by King Baudouin, when demonstrators were ejected by police.

Wednesday the students locked university rector Andre Jaumotte in his study and demanded to know why he called in police. Jaumotte responded by summoning police help again.

Injunction Granted Mainland Photo Firm

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Wednesday night's disturbance was followed by northwest winds and cold, unsettled air which developed showers of rain and snow on the coast today. The disturbance combined with another one moving through the northern states this morning will give periods of snow flurries to the southern interior. Behind the systems clearing will occur in southern regions tonight and Friday will see mostly sunny skies. Cloudy, showery weather is expected to persist in northern regions due to a strong circulation of cold, moist air from the Gulf of Alaska. Not much change in temperature is expected.

Must Respond To Challenge —Manning

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning bade farewell Wednesday night to the Social Credit party he has led for 25 years with a call to respond to the challenge of "a whole new era of fundamental change."

MANNING
. . . bids farewell

After greeting Mr. Manning's last public address as premier with a standing ovation, the Alberta Social Credit League today turned to the task of selecting his successor.

The names of six candidates were to be placed formally in nomination at the afternoon session.

There were no unexpected additions or withdrawals when nominations closed Wednesday. The field consisted of Walter Buck, member of the legislature for Clover Bar; Attorney-General Edgar Gerhart; A. J. Hooke, minister of lands and forests; Ray Reierson, minister of education and labor; Municipal Affairs Minister Harry Strom and Highways Minister Gordon Taylor.

Tonight, in marked contrast to the quiet caucus of MLA's that chose Mr. Manning 25 years ago, Jubilee Auditorium will be the scene of organized demonstrations on behalf of the candidates before they make their campaign speeches.

Each candidate will be limited to a total of 25 minutes for his demonstration and speech.

CHOOSE LEADER FRIDAY

Delegates Wednesday spent the first of two days dealing with resolutions submitted by constituency organizations on a variety of topics and discussing proposed amendments to the constitution and bylaws of the Social Credit League.

At a noon-hour panel discussion, the leadership candidates exchanged views with representatives of Alberta Indians and Metis.

The evening belonged to Mr. Manning.

In an address he described as his 3,497th since taking office, he outlined the developments in technology and sociology with which his successor would have to deal.

"These new challenges are more exciting and will have a greater impact on human destiny than the physical challenge that motivated the explorers and adventurers of the past," he said.

The 60-year-old premier asked the party to choose a course that kept faith with Social Credit tradition but recognized "that loyalty to our principles and our past is valuable only if it motivates us to face, and successfully solve, the many problems of the present and future."

Alberta Socreds Re-Elect Kennedy

EDMONTON (CP) — Orvis Kennedy, 61, president of the Alberta Social Credit League since 1954, was re-elected by acclamation Wednesday.

Mr. Kennedy was a member of the league's board of directors when the Social Credit party was formed in 1934.

Walter Strom of Burdett defeated the nominations committee candidate, Ross McKinnon of Calgary, for third vice-president. Mr. Strom is a brother of Municipal Affairs Minister Harry Strom, one of six candidates to succeed Premier Manning.

No Plea Of Mercy By Strand

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Wednesday said he has received a letter from Simon Fraser University president Dr. Kenneth Strand but he didn't see any plea in it for dropping the prosecution of 114 "sit-in" students.

He said Dr. Strand merely was transmitting to him without comment correspondence with the Simon Fraser Student Society and the faculty association's president.

(The student and faculty groups were understood to have asked for dropping the charges.)

"Whether he (Dr. Strand) asked for consideration of the request is open to interpretation," Mr. Peterson told reporters.

Previously, he told reporters that reports Dr. Strand would be transmitting the requests with his endorsement were "just newspaper talk" and he repeatedly said he did not expect to receive a letter from the SFU head asking for withdrawal of prodecutions.

Now that he has, Mr. Peterson indicated to reporters he still hasn't changes his views yet that the students will be tried in the courts.

"I have looked over the material (sent by Dr. Strand) and my initial reaction is that there is nothing which would warrant altering the normal course of proceedings in this case.

"However, this correspondence will be studied in conjunction with other relative material," he said.

ACTION URGED ON RHODESIA TRADE BAN

LONDON (Reuters) — The 28-country Commonwealth sanctions committee Wednesday called for more effective action by the United Nations to stop breaches in the international ban on trade with Rhodesia.

The committee, composed of London-based high commissioners, met to approve a report on the operation of sanctions during the last two years for next month's Commonwealth conference here.

NATO Reform Necessary General Says

QUEBEC (CP) — French General Andre Beaufre said Wednesday NATO is outdated and needs to be reformed to cope with the "menace of nuclear war." Gen. Beaufre told a news conference at Laval University the defence of Europe was almost entirely American, since NATO was under American command.

This should be changed to have an American arm and a a European arm, to "cope with problems that are purely European and therefore cannot be dealt with properly by Americans."

Canadians In Europe Until 1970

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Leo Cadieux made it clear Wednesday that Canada intends to maintain its present military strength in Europe at least until January, 1970.

In a Commons reply to the Conservative defence spokesman, J. Angus MacLean, he said such an intention was implied in testimony he gave Tuesday to the House committee on defence and external affairs.

"The forum where the superpowers' interests most closely impinge on each other is Europe, and hence Europe is the geographical region where Canada's security is most in jeopardy," he said.

"Thus, Canada's security is very closely interlocked with the security of Europe."

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield asked Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday whether Cadieux was stating government policy when he said Europe is where Canada's security is most in jeopardy.

The prime minister replied that Cadieux was "stating a very important viewpoint."

Bandit Gets $785

VANCOUVER (CP) — An armed bandit escaped with $785 Wednesday night in a holdup at a grocery store in the Kitsilano area of Vancouver. Proprietor Gordon Chow said the man asked for cigarettes, then produced a gun and cleaned out the till.

Laos Trail Main U.S. Target

By DAVID HOFFMAN and PETER BRAESTRUP

SAIGON (WP) — Heavy B-52 bombers diverted en masse from missions over South Vietnam are subjecting the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos to almost-daily poundings, official sources said Wednesday.

As B-52 strikes have been shifted to Laos, the number of missions flown against South Vietnamese targets has dropped dramatically: in September, the big eight-engine bombers flew 312 missions over South Vietnam and the demilitarized zone; in October, 290; in November, 206.

HIGH PRIORITY

A network of jungle covered paths and dirt roads carved into the sides of mountains, the Ho Chi Minh trail has been North Vietnam's main southbound infiltration route since 1960. North Vietnamese army units now in South Vietnam depend upon it for weapons, ammunition and replacements.

Keeping the trail open ranks so high on Hanoi's priority list that three North Vietnamese army generals were recently dispatched to inspect key mountain passes through which truck convoys roll into Laos from the North Vietnamese panhandle.

According to U.S. intelligence, Hanoi's generals may have witnessed first hand a B-62 strike on the Banlaboy Pass, 30 miles south of the demilitarized zone on North Vietnam's border with Laos.

The Middle East Cauldron

THE WEST FACES A DOUBLE hazard in the Arab-Israeli non-war which has kept Middle East borders tense and sometimes under fire ever since the June conflict of last year. There has always been the danger that full-scale fighting in the area could draw in the major powers as combatants and result in a world conflict. Now there is the added fear that Russia might move quickly to quench Israeli military threats on the grounds that security is necessary on the Soviet Union's "southern borders."

That phrase was used yesterday in a warning published in Pravda and brought a new chill to the West. In describing the troubled area in the Eastern Mediterranean as "directly adjoining our southern borders" Moscow takes a little liberty with geography. But the comment may be interpreted as fair warning that Russia considers the Middle East to be within its sphere of influence. Already a large Soviet fleet is in the Mediterranean, apparently on a permanent basis. The United States Sixth Fleet has been told to leave the area because the Americans are "outsiders."

And recent events in Czechoslovakia proved that if Moscow fears its border defences to be imperilled, no consideration of domestic or foreign opinion will deter it from taking drastic action.

The latest move is one of a series of Soviet actions — both diplomatic and military — to emphasize the Russian presence in the area and to display an increasingly possessive posture. Moscow's restoration of Egyptian armaments has continued to a point beyond pre-June strength, and warnings to Israel have become sharper. It is almost impossible to prove whether Israelis or Arabs are the prime movers in the continual border incidents — each side blames the other and claims it is only retaliating — but it is not difficult to believe that many of the Arab forays may be spurred by the thought that Russia could step in and bail the Arabs out if things escalated too swiftly and a real war flared again. In Egypt alone, Russia is now believed to have large numbers of "advisers," most of them military.

These developments have caused the United States to urge the Israelis and Arabs to cool their border skirmishes and put more effort into effecting a peaceful settlement. The danger of a take-over by Russia, in the interests of security and peace, are clear. The West would not risk a world war to rescue Czechoslovakia. Will it feel able to undertake the same risk to save Israel if the latter becomes Russia's scapegoat? Last spring it was the fate of a Soviet satellite at stake. But active Russian intervention in the Mediterranean would mean far more than bottling up or destroying Israel.

It would mean that a substantial part of the globe — and a key part at that — had been taken into the Russian Communist orbit and placed under Moscow's protection. The whole East-West equation would immediately assume a vastly different aspect, a whole new phase of international relations would open, and the quivering thumb poised over The Button would again become the symbol of the world's life expectancy.

A Short Step Forward

CONSIDERABLE DEBATE WAS aroused last spring when the federal government introduced an amendment to the criminal code which would liberalize the abortion law. A measure allowing therapeutic abortions did not reach a vote before Parliament was dissolved for the election but is expected to be re-introduced shortly. It is interesting to note that while Canada has been hesitating on the issue, some countries have moved ahead.

Therapeutic abortion, with varying legal safeguards, now is approved in 30 U.S. states, as well as in Britain, Denmark, Sweden and Japan. A recent report from Australia indicates that country is also well on the way toward legislative changes, at the urging of a state medical association. Abortions are legal in Canada now only to save the life of the mother. The proposed criminal code change would allow a special hospital commission to approve abortion where continuation of a pregnancy would be likely to "endanger her life or health." This definition would include both physical and mental health.

This would undoubtedly be an improvement over the present situation, but there are many who believe further relaxation of the law is desirable. Abortion necessitated by rape, probable deformity, or similar causes is frequently mentioned. In spite of the fact they are illegal, an estimated 120,000 abortions are performed in Canada each year, many by back-street practitioners. Such practices penalize and endanger the young, the poor and the unmarried.

The proposed amendment deserves support because it will help to meet a serious social need. It is clear that the changing times will call for further steps in this regard. However the rapid development of contraceptive measures may eventually reduce to insignificant proportions this relatively dangerous form of birth prevention.

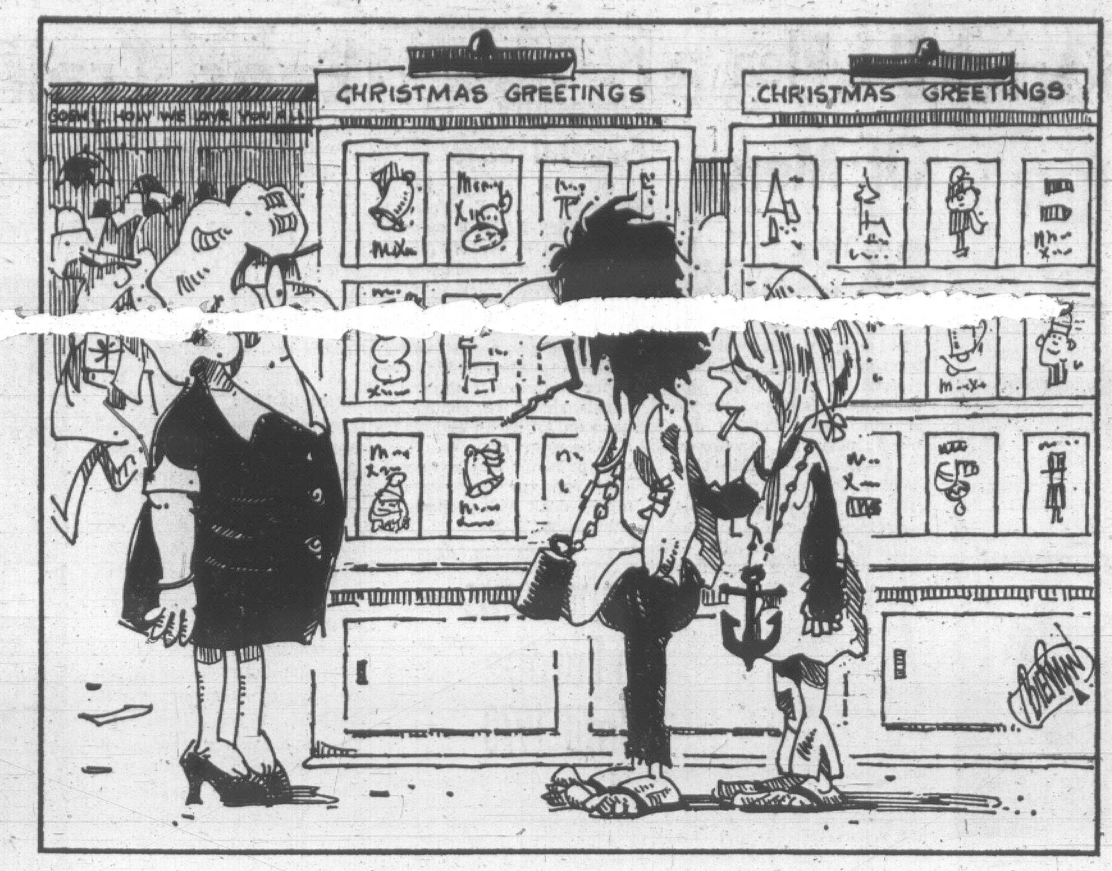
Who Pays for Whose Pollution?

MR. FRED AMIES, PRESIDENT of the Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd. and Intercontinental Pulp Co., whose plants have received awards for advances in pollution control, feels that industry should not have to pay the whole cost "because such control benefits society as a whole." He suggests that government should bear part of the costs of anti-pollution equipment, facilitate low-interest loans for equipment installation, exempt pollution equipment from municipal and school taxes, furnish assistance for operation of the equipment, share costs of pollution research and supply financial incentives to studies made by industries.

Mr. Amies explains that pollution control costs are "extremely high . . . reduce our net profit by 15 to 20 per cent" and the government is consequently affected in revenue collections.

The pulp and paper executive, however, has not discussed one important element in the problem: who should pay for whose pollution. Granted that a corporation must show profits—and that means keeping costs down—it should still not have a right to pollute the environment to the distress of the public. Nor should it call on taxpayers to carry part of the operating costs of the enterprise, unless for very special and temporary reasons.

Avoiding the destruction of rivers, forests, lakes or sea by harmful byproducts is a legitimate cost of operation, to be borne before the declaration of dividends. If an industry must ruin a part of the countryside in order to stay in business, it can hardly be considered a profitable operation in terms of the national balance sheet.



". . . don't you have any protest Christmas cards . . . ?"

FROM PRAGUE

By CHARLES BARTLETT

Out of Sight, but the Troops Are There

THE Soviet troops have shrunk from sight with the same guile which inspired the Greeks to disappear from the plains of Troy but they have not so far constructed a Trojan Horse capable of delivering Czechoslovakia neatly into their hands. The guile has not lulled the Czechoslovaks for whom the invaders, tightly encamped out of sight, are everywhere even when they seem to be nowhere. These 80,000 men are overshadowing "reality" to which officials refer because "occupation" is a forbidden word.

Bartlett

At best the Soviets have constructed an ambiguity from which other ambiguities may evolve to bemuse and confuse the people. But the mood of the occupied is to test the ambiguities before they can proliferate . . . The difference between co-operation and collaboration is defined as the difference between those who say "everything is allowed that is not definitely forbidden" and those who assert "everything is illegal that is not described in writing as permissible."

Impractical

The official posture is to interpret the presence of the troops as narrowly as possible. They warn that it is impractical to be openly critical of Moscow or to contemplate a future of decreasing deference to the socialist camp and the Communist party. But within those limits officials talk as if they mean to get on with the business of building "enlightened socialism."

"We have adjusted to the reality which exists," said one top official, "and if the reality stays the same, we should be able to have stable government. But if the reality changes, we will have to adjust again or give up our power."

The intellectuals and student activists strain to keep the politicians aware that the popular appetite for a more human socialism is an internal reality which they must balance against the external reality of the troops. They see themselves as the counter-force which will bolster the politicians against their instinct to compromise.

The betrayals of the past cause these people to be wary even of the politicians who are their only hope.

Dubcek Downgraded

Alexander Dubcek is less deeply trusted than the Speaker of the National Assembly, Joseph Smrkovsky, who maintains he would rather die "than part company with the people." His integrity is the litmus paper with which many will judge the government's resilience.

Confrontations in the immediate future are unlikely to come on the issue of private ownership. In the uncertain climate there is no rush by budding capitalists to open family enterprises or by farmers to break away from their co-oepratives even though these options were introduced by the liberalization.

No trouble is expected on the issue of trade with the West in which, as one official put it, "we have the licence to do what we can do." And economic planners continue to plan with considerable assurance because they believe the Soviets respect their urgent need to cope with their economic stalemate.

Some are optimistic even that a confrontation will be avoided on the overriding issue of individual freedom. The Soviets want our territory — they don't want our minds," argued one prominent intellectual. Certainly the Kremlin leaders must recognize that events have carried the loyalty of the Czechoslovaks beyond their reach in this generation.

But the unpleasant fact is that no one yet knows what the Soviet leaders want or how far they will go to keep their dominoes in line. If they are really aging bureaucrats who lack the imagination of statesman, no one can foreclose the danger that they intend to dig out the roots of liberalism wherever they have sprouted. If they mean to freeze their western flank against change, anything is possible.

The only certainty is that the revived spirit of the Czechoslovaks will not accept a new round of repression with a mere whimper. A bright fire has been lit in the bruised soul of this nation.

Bennett's Northern Bid

The Globe and Mail

THAT'S a kind of warmed-over bomb that Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia dropped last week about taking the Yukon and a big chunk of the Northwest Territories into British Columbia. He presented a full-dress proposal to much the same effect at a B.C.-Yukon-Alaska conference in 1964, and he'd been going on about it four years before that. Mr. Bennett has always been consistent about his empire building. He hasn't been unsuccessful about it, either: northern British Columbia has developed a lot under his direction.

There are doubtless several reasons why Mr. Bennett proposes to put his demand for the extension of British Columbia to the Arctic into his brief to the federal-provincial conference at Ottawa.

For one thing, he means it. There are splendid resources up there in the Northland which he would like to tap and already his Pacific Great Eastern Railway is pressing close to Yukon border. For another, the idea has been received with some favor by the Yukon. The 16,000 people of the territory are anxious to form Canada's 11th province. But they also know that Ottawa will not now or in the near future create another have-not province. Union would give them the rights of provincehood and perhaps hitch them prosperously to the boomer that is British Columbia.

Then too, of course, Mr. Bennett won't want to be the only Premier at the conference without a bag of trouble for Ottawa. He isn't going to let Premier John Robarts and Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand hog all the limelight.

All that being taken into account, it must also be admitted that there is nothing preposterous in his proposal. As we said when he was hawking the idea about in 1964, Canada's provincial boundaries are not sacrosanct. They never have been. Ontario started out as only a fraction of what it is now; so did Quebec.

Take even today. Northern Ontario is far from certain that it was smart to have joined the rich, greedy South; it has voiced notions of setting up an 11th province itself, with a government close enough to it to understand its own peculiar northern problems.

Quebec has by no means accepted the court's decision that Labrador belongs to Newfoundland; and both Newfoundland and Quebec are trying to fill the area with colonials who can be expected to vote the right way if a referendum should ever be taken.

The three Maritime provinces are actually in the process of studying union.

This is all as it should be, for we are not yet an old enough or populous enough country to settle into rigid boundaries. Most of the boundaries we now have were drawn on paper without much relationship to people (there were so few of them around), with little relationship to geography, and no relationship to economics at all.

It may be, as Mr. Bennett contends, that some provinces are too small, or, as Northern Ontario intermittently contends, that some provinces are too large. It may be that our future will be rightly ordered as five provinces, or as 50.

Ottawa Sluggish

One thing must in justice be borne in mind. Ottawa has not done very well by the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. This is partly because there are so few people there — only 46,000 — and the area is so vast. The Northwest Territories themselves cover an area larger than the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba combined.

But it is also a fact that until recently Ottawa has been as stodgy, as paternal —yes, as imperialistic—in dealing with the two territories as it has been in dealing with the Indians and Eskimos who live there. Arthur Laing, as Minister of Northern Development began to introduce more democracy, and more economic development. The present Minister, Jean Chretien, plans a number of other reforms, but he admits that provincehood is still in the distance.

Mr. Bennett's proposal cannot be considered in the context of the North as a whole. Yet in that context it must be considered. It is possible that a united British Columbia, Yukon and even that slice of the Northwest Territories Mr. Bennett would carve off, would have unique capacity for development. It lies between the United States and Alaska, and the United States might not be unhappy to be joined to Alaska by highways and pipelines. Resource development could follow such projects, as it has followed Mr. Bennett's railway and power lines.

It is possible, too, that British Columbia, so extended (it would be far larger than any other province), would eventually become unmanageable — a country itself — rather than a part of a federation.

There are reasons both ways why the subject should be discussed at this month's conference.

Correction

Your item in last Tuesday's Times headed "King of The Muck-Rakers, Upton Sinclair, Dies at 90" carries an unfortunate error in saying that Sinclair ran for the Governorship of California on an "End Property in California" platform (EPIC). In fact the platform much different, being End Poverty in California.

As regards being a "muck-raker", that name calling was (and is) used by those who caused and condoned the muck. The reforms which followed "The Jungle" and other works of Upton Sinclair prove that some raking was needed. Later Sinclair said that he wrote "The Jungle" to hit the heart of America but it hit the stomach instead. — W.W.

Disparaging

In a recent interview with W. Ralph Thomas (reported in the October 15 issue), Dr. Ajai Mansingh made some rather disparaging remarks about the British, in regard to education facilities in the country prior to 1947, when the Indians were granted independence.

It seems to me that the British, during the many years they ruled India, had quite enough to cope with in handling the masses, keeping peace among the many diffeernt races, and feeding the population. The whole idea of their leaving in 1947, after educating the Indians in the art of government, was to give them the opportunity of reorganizing themselves and to enable them to build their own universities, schools, etc. This they have done with considerable financial assistance from the United Kingdom, U.S.A., Canada and several countries.

I have no doubt that it is because of the British, and the educational facilities which they provided, that Dr. Mansingh received his own excellent education, so he should be the last to criticize the nation that did so much for his countrymen.

It is a pity, however, that the present Indian government is unable to cope with the current economic situation in the country. Millions are starving whilst the "chosen few" attend newly constructed universities and schools, and receive good education. Surely it would be better to feed the people first, rid the country of the corruption, which apparently is rife in many parts of the land, and then talk of higher education.—D. R. Haslam, 1024 Terrace.

Soaring Taxes

Approximately 15 years ago, when the subject of amalgamation was considered, Mr. Passmore was very much against it and, together with Mr. Austin, proposed and seconded that Saanich build a new addition on to the old Royal Oak Municipal Hall at the cost of $225,000. Fortunately, the remainder of council had the good sense to turn it down. At the time, if they had proposed a new hall somewhere south of Royal Oak, where land was plentiful in those days, people would have been receptive. A few months later, Oak Bay built a brand new hall at the cost of $230,000.

Saanich struggled along with an inadequate hall for years and then, when costs had skyrocketed, built their present hall.

Is it any wonder that my taxes over the years have soared from $20.80 to the towering figure of $227.—George D. Barker, 986 Tattersal.

Reply to a Critic

I wish to take issue with a review written by Mr. Lindberg and which appeared in your paper on Nov. 9, 1968.

The core of Mr. Lindberg's critique of Mrs. Schreier's show at the Pandora's Box Gallery seemed to consist of a few basic cliches, namely:

a. That her art was a diversion.

b. That her art was eclectic.

c. That Mrs. Schreier is a housewife with lyrical ambitions and

d. That she was an amateur good enough for Victoria but not for the big cities.

Taking his contentions one by one, what is wrong with diversions? And anyway; diversions from what? The main stream perhaps? Klee and Kandinsky were diversions in their time as was Grandma Moses in hers and as is Canada's iconoclast Harold Town in ours.

Nor is it anything new or disastrous to be eclectic. Well Mrs. Schreier admits to being eclectic as this manifests a negation of categorized styles and patterns. Individual expression, according to her, are at least as valid as those that conform with or are approved by the Art "Establishment."

I not only have seen all of her previous work and know her personally even in her capacity as a housewife. Those of us in Vienna, London, New York, Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver who, anticipating Mr. Lindberg's advice, have hung Mrs. Schreier's work in our living rooms are grateful for her "lyrical pretensions." She is not the first "amateur" artist to delight small or big town audiences with her work.—K. H. Kindler.

Pope Paul: What Went Wrong?

New Statesman

The pontificate of Paul VI has proved a catastrophe for his church, and a personal tragedy for himself.

That a pope should be repudiated, even reviled, by great masses of his followers; that his teachings on a major point of doctrine should go unheard by a majority of the educated laity; that thousands of priests, and even princes of the church, should accept it, if at all, with reluctance, and qualifications which make it meaningless; and that the church itself, which has reserved its unity and discipline through two millennia, should now be a bickering shambles—all this would have been inconceivable five years ago, and all is largely the work of one man.

He must ask himself, this lonely and now embittered figure: "What went wrong? Why has the magic of the papacy so suddenly failed?"

The irony is that no pope has been so assiduously prepared and trained, by himself and by his superiors, for the supreme office. If ever a man was born to be pope it was Giovanni Battista Montini.

The village of his birth, Concesio in the foothills of the Italian alps, is a nest of clericalism, which has given four bishops to the church.

Taste for Religion at Early Age

Montini's elder brother became a senator, his younger a doctor; he himself was marked out for the church, both because of his position in the family and his evident taste for religious matters, which developed at an early age.

He was his mother's favourite and his links with her were unusually intimate. His health was judged to be poor (an assumption which has followed him throughout his life though it is belied by his energy and prodigious capacity for work); so his childhood and youth were marked by special privileges.

The privileged career moved smoothly onward.

Montini was promoted by the highly conservative Pius XI, but it was only after 1939 when the Roman diplomat Eugenio Pacelli ascended the throne as Pius XII, that he became a real power-figure. His relationship with Pius XII was extremely close, or rather as close as this austere, demanding, imperious and short-tempered pope was capable of making it.

But it had a love-hate element. Pius may well have regarded Montini as his natural successor, but if so he set about ensuring it in an odd way. Not only was he his own Secretary of State, but he "double-banked" Montini with a second pro-secretary, the self-effacing Tardini. What is more, he gave neither of them a red hat.

It is true that on one occasion he announced that he had offered to make them cardinals, and they had refused "in a spirit of humility." But it is inconceivable that the refusal would have been accepted had Pius really wanted them in the Sacred College; and difficult to believe, in Montini's case, that it was every really made, for he has never been diffident about accepting responsibility and position.

Cardinal's Hat 'Forgotten'

Finally, in 1954, Pius awarded Montini the greatest benefice in his gift, the Archbishopric of Milan, the historic see of Saint Ambrose and the largest and richest in Italy.

But again, oddly, he "forgot" to accompany it with a cardinal's hat: this not only offended the Milanesi, and was no doubt resented by Montini himself, but it had dramatic consequences.

When Pius died, Montini could not take part in the conclave to elect his successor, and was not therefore in practice eligible for election. Had he succeeded Pius, he would not have held a council, and the whole history of the modern church would have been different. As it was, a much older man, Roncalli, the Patriarch of Venice, was elected as John XXIII, to act as a stop-gap and keep the seat warm for Montini.

But if Montini felt Pius had treated him badly he did not show it; on the contrary, he has always hotly defended his old master's reputation — particularly over the extermination of the Jews.

At Milan, Montini set about establishing himself as the unquestioned successor to Pope John. He organized a massive campaign against the communist unions in the big factories, the success of which won him approving nods from the more conservative Italian prelates.

He made friends with Enrico Mattei, Italy's leading industrialist, and strengthened his position among the secular establishment. He built 72 churches in six years, and vastly expanded the recruitment of priests, thus establishing a reputation as an ecclesiastical administrator as well as a diplomat.

All his acts were carefully balanced: on the one hand he suppressed the Catholic paper Adesso, because of its connections with the liberal French journals L'Esprit and Temoignage Chretien; on the other, he sent a telegram to Franco, pleading for clemency towards political prisoners.

In public at least he gave unreserved approval to Pope John's decision to call an Ecumenical Council, but he played a muted part in its deliberations. John had doubts about Montini's suitability as his successor — he though him indecisive, but on the whole he was inclined to agree that he should get the job. He promptly gave him his red hat, and privately cautioned Montini from speaking too often at the council, or from committing himself too decisively on important issues, for fear (it seems ironic now) of alienating the moderates and conservatives. The advice Montini prudently followed.

PIUS

When the good old man died, after a distressingly long agony, Montini played his cards coolly and well. Once inside the conclave, a cardinal is forbidden to make electoral promises to win votes (though this has been done); but there is nothing to stop him issuing a cautious manifesto before it begins.

The Friday after John died, Montini, preaching in his own cathedral, said: "John has shown us some paths which it will be wise to follow. Can we turn away from these paths so masterfully traced? It seems to me we cannot." These words were widely interpreted as a pledge that Montini, if elected, would continue John's policies.

Offended Sense of Decorum

There was never much doubt that Montini would get it. Even as he was progressing into the sealed conclave area he was greeted by murmurs of 'The new Pope!' from the Roman mob.

He made a gesture of disapproval; the episode offended his sense of decorum; it might offend still more some of the older cardinals who witnessed it.

Nevertheless things did not go entirely smoothly for Montini. An attempt by Cardinal Cushing of Boston, that warm-hearted if eccentric prelate, to have Montini elected by acclamation before the balloting even began, appears to have failed completely.

None of the four ballots on the first day gave him the majority he needed. But overnight there was some frantic clambering onto the bandwagon, and on the first vote the next morning he got the massive score of 79.

His acceptance of the tiara was prompt; his announcement of his title unhesitating and firm: "Paul."

Does power corrupt and absolute power corrupt absolutely? Certainly, in theory, there is no power so absolute as that of "God's Vicar on Earth." But in practice it is a different matter.

A modern pope has to contend, on the one hand, with an immensely conservative and entrenched Vatican bureaucracy, backed by the bulk of the Italian episcopate; and on the other with a vast liberal tide, from cardinals to laymen, washing against the breakwaters of orthodoxy all over the world.

John Set the Lines of Battle

Pius XII had held the two in balance by a policy of masterly inactivity and by keeping power in his sole hands. But even he could not have done the trick much longer.

Pope John set the lines of battle by summoning his Council, thus superimposing on an absolute monarchy a kind of temporary parliament. Paul inherited this constitutional anomaly, and it soon became evident that he would have to resolve it one way or the other.

Either he must accept permanent limitations on his powers, and progress slowly through a collegiate to a democratic system; or he must risk an explosion—even civil war—by trying to restore the monarchy in all its plenitude.

In the end he took the second course. He never had much chance of carrying it through successfully, and his evident hesitation before doing so made failure certain.

This strategic error was compounded by the gross tactical blunder of choosing contraception as the field of decisive battle.

Yet, being Giovanni Battista Montini, it is almost inconceivable that he could have taken any other course.

He is plainly a man of the highest ambition (not necessarily an ignoble thing, even in a clergyman).

Imbued since early childhood with the principles and mystique of an authoritative religion, accustomed to operate within the machine with all its severity and certitudes, the protege and disciple of a masterful pope, how could he, when he finally inherited power over the machine, take the terrifying risk of dismantling it?

As he weighted the arguments in his mind, cut off from access to the public by a phalanx of doctrinaire officials, who encompass the pope as the Treasury knights surround a British Chancellor of the Exchequer, how could he be made to see that the risks of restoration were even greater?

There were soon portents of which way he would turn. Under cover of a great deal of diplomatic activity—missions to India, Jerusalem, the United Nations, Portugal and Latin America—which gave a misleading progressive flavour to his actions, the Pope moved steadily into the conservative camp, his natural home.

Two items, clerical celibacy and contraception, were removed from the deliberations of the council.

And the council itself was eventually wound up in an atmosphere of anti-climax, without provision being made for its succession by a permanent body, endowed with real authority.

Added to this is his insulation from common humanity, which has been a feature of his entire life. Privileged at school, denied the community spirit of the seminary, never a parish priest, 30 years a bureaucrat, and finally given pastoral work only in the politico-ecclesiastic macrocism of Milan, Paul has had curiously little contact with the problems of ordinary human beings.

This may explain his notable lack of sensitivity. In November 1964, for instance, he placed his tiara on the altar of St Peter's as a symbolic gift to the poor; later, however, it was handed over to Cardinal Spellman, of all people, presumably as a reward for the immense sums he had raised for the Vatican.

Ferocious Fight to Avoid Taxes

Again, he recently lectured the Latin-American rich for not paying their taxes, while simultaneously the Vatican was fighting a ferocious, though losing, battle to escape paying its own.

Most important of all, only a profound ignorance of people could have led Paul to nail his pontifical colors to the mast on the issue of contraception. What has followed needs no retelling.

Here was one battle he could not hope to win; indeed it is already clear he has lost it, and the consequence will be a progressive, and cumulatively dramatic, erosion of papal authority.

His wisest course now would be to abdicate and make way for a less divisive successor, who could try to pick up the pieces. But this his temperament seems to forbid.

He will continue to fight a rearguard action, and if his pontificate is prolonged, the best his church can hope for is an armed truce between the factions.

The new man, when the time comes, will probably be a non-Italian. He will almost certainly be elected only on the understanding that he introduces a permanent and formalized system for the devolution of power.

The man born to be pope may prove to be the last of his line.

Student Unrest Hits High Schools

By SUSAN JACOBY

A bright red "hot line" phone sits on principal Leon Bass's desk at the virtually all-Negro Benjamin Franklin High School in North Philadelphia.

It is linked to a control centre that reports news of any student disturbances in the city's high schools and provides instant communication for school officials in the event of trouble.

The emergency phone system is one surface response to the growing student unrest that is forcing school officials across the U.S.—especially in large cities—to re-examine traditional relationships between students and schools.

Schools in Detroit, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and numerous smaller cities were disrupted by student boycotts, sit-ins and other demonstrations this fall.

The demands from the students for a voice in what goes on in the schools have been spurred by heightened racial tensions in the cities, widespread publicity of ghetto school failures and increasing pressure for "community control" of schools in black neighborhoods.

The student ferment filtering down from the college campuses is also an important factor in the high school unrest. Students for a Democratic Society, the radical, largely white college-age group, is organizing in Philadelphia's predominantly white academic high schools at the same time black students are pressing the schoool administration for major reforms in their schools.

★ ★ ★

The Black Student Union, which also began in the colleges and has several active chapters in Washington high schools, is springing up in large city school systems across the nation.

"I think you find the black students reflecting, to a more intense degree, the concerns of all students," says Mark R. Shedd, Philadelphia's 35-year-old superintendent of schools.

"The young people are concerned that education be made more human, more responsive to real needs. The black students have led the way in the high schools because their education has been the most inhuman in the past."

The specific student demands are similar in most cities: more Negro teachers and administrators, courses in black culture and history, school holidays honoring the Rev. Martin Luther King and Malcolm X.

A general concern about the quality of the education they are receiving is echoed by most students. "We can't read, we can't write. What kind of nonsense is this?" an angry 16-year-old from Brooklyn's Ocean Hill-Brownsville area asked the New York Board of Education at a hearing on a controversial school decentralization plan.

The demands of Negro students sometimes stimulate counter-demonstrations by whites but school officials like Shedd regard interracial friction between students as much less of a problem than tension between predominantly Negro student bodies and predominantly white school faculties.

Racial conflicts in the Philadelphia public schools, with a student enrollment about 60 per cent Negro, are typical of the tensions that have erupted in other cities. Schools officials are just beginning to recognize that many of the racial problems in the schools are inseparable from racial tensions in the larger community.

"These young men come into school with their feelings and we have to deal with those feelings before we can teach them," says Bass, a 43-year-old Negro who replaced a white principal of some 20 years' standing at Benjamin Franklin this fall.

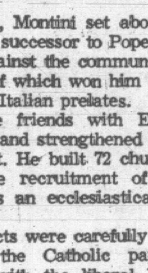
The 'Pioneers' of Nature Looking for New Pastures

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum



Carl

Populations of both plants and animals are constantly undergoing change. As a rule far more offspring are produced each season than are necessay to replace those removed by death and the resulting surplus is more than the immediate area can support. There is therefore an unceasing tendency to spread out into new territory.

However, counteracting this trend is the presence of natural barriers such as mountain ranges, river systems and arms of the sea which either slow down or prevent the natural spread of living things, plus the fact that often the surrounding area is unsuited for colonization by the species pressing at its boundaries.

The outcome is that each kind of plant or animal tends to completely fill the habitable portions of its range and within this area it maintains a population whose numbers fluctuate according to the changing local conditions.

However, nothing is permanent in nature. The barriers restricting the spread of an organism change whether they be physical or physiological. The plant or animal species formerly confined to a more or less fixed range manages to send pioneers into a new area where they eventually become established.

Usually this is a perfectly natural process and it may happen at any time. Occasionally, however, it is unwittingly caused or hastened by man, thanks to the drastic way he changes the environment.

Removing forests, draining swamps, digging canals or providing mechanical transport, all have aided living things to extend or expand their range sometimes with dramatic results.

An outstanding example is the relatively recent invasion of the upper regions of the Great Lakes by the sea lamprey. Formerly this creature was confined to the lower reaches of the St. Lawrence system but soon after the completion of the Welland Canal it moved into Lake Erie where it found large numbers of fishes to prey upon and no competitors.

Moreover, conditions in contributary streams were ideal for breeding; lampreys multiplied rapidly and spread throughout the entire system. The fish population suffered a severe drop virtually wiping out a valuable resource. An international team of scientists was set up to study the problem and to recommend a course of action. After the expenditure of a great deal of time and money some control has been effected and the fishery is now staging a slow comeback.

Free transportation has also been provided by man in the case of another pest, the shipworm. Several kinds of this destructive mollusc exist in various parts of the world. The history of their spread is not known but undoubtedly dispersal has been aided and hastened in the last five hundred years by wooden ships acting as carriers. No port is now free of this wood-borer.

Sometimes, populations increase greatly in numbers with no appreciable expansion of range. This has occurred in the case of several wildlife species which have also benifited in one way or another by man's activities. Robins and glaucous-winged gulls are good examples.

There seems little doubt that both of these birds are far more numerous now in our immediate area than they were a hundred years ago.

Agriculture and even city lawns and gardens have greatly favored the robin by providing ample food and nest sites while garbage dumping and protection given to breeding grounds have permitted gulls to attain high population levels.

●

The coast deer is another noteworthy example. Despite the opinions of disappointed hunters there are now more deer on Vancouver Island than in early days and the increase is almost wholly due to logging and to burning which have greatly increased favorable habitat for these animals.

Areas of second growth provide increased food supplies permitting more deer to survive the winter, the most critical period in their life.

A high survival rate results in a greatly increased population more than sufficient to offset those taken by predation and hunters.

BANK HOLDUP TRACER MAY BE FOREIGN BILLS

Saanich police feel foreign currency taken in Friday's bank robbery may lead them to an armed man who vanished into the night with $6,914.

Included in his loot was a $1,000 bill, U.S. currency, $132 in Dutch currency, $11.32 in Hong Kong dollars and $209 in British sterling. The majority of the Canadian money was new bills in denominations from one to twenty, police said.

At closing time Friday, a lone gunman with face bandaged and arm in a sling robbed the Cordova Bay branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. The money was taken in a brown paper bag.

Saanich Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart asked that the public watch for any of the foreign currency and report any information to him, no matter how trivial it might seem.

He said three men had been assigned full-time to the holdup investigation and were "following down leads." He did not say what the leads were.

Man, Wife Guilty Of Assaulting Police

A husband and wife were found guilty in Victoria county court Wednesday afternoon on three charges of assaulting Saanich police officers.

The wife was also found guilty of possessing an offensive weapon, a straight razor.

Sylvia and Oliver Cottam, 438 Government, were remanded for sentence until Dec. 13 at 10 a.m. They were found guilty by a jury of three women and nine men who deliberated their verdict for more than three hours.

Saanich police witnesses said Mr. and Mrs. Cottam were stopped on the Prospect Lake Road last July 13 when an empty wine bottle was thrown out of the window of their station wagon.

BEGAN SLASHING

Later, Mr. Cottam battled with Constable James White. Constable White forced him to the ground and was kneeling over him when Mrs. Cottam took something from her handbag and began slashing at the constable's shoulder.

Two officers grabbed Mrs. Cottam and, as they did so, her arm flung back and a silver straight razor fell on to the road.

Sgt. William Stephenson said when he tried to restrain Mrs. Cottam, she ripped open her blouse, partially pulled down her shorts and shouted "Rape, rape!"

SPAT IN FACE

Sgt. Stephenson said Mrs. Cottam spat in his face, kicked him in the stomach, the testicles and the left elbow, and shouted at him.

At one point in the struggle, police witnesses said, Mr. Cottam seized Constable White by the throat and tried to choke him. The constable then struck Mr. Cottam to break his hold.

Defence counsel John W. Hogg asked Sgt. Stephenson if Constable White was kneeling on Mr. Cottam when he lay on the ground.

"No," the sergeant replied, "he was kneeling on the ground beside him and trying to restrain him."

Crown counsel Brian R. D. Smith said it was clear the Saanich police were doing their duty when they arrested Mr. and Mrs. Cottam. He argued against a suggestion by defence counsel that the accused were provoked by police.

Sooke River Ban Ends On Friday

"Just in time for steelhead fishermen," the closure to sports angling in Sooke River will be lifted as of midnight Friday, a spokesman for the federal Department of Fisheries announced Wednesday.

Goldstream River had a ban on angling lifted last Sunday while a closure on ling cod was imposed in all waters east of Race Rocks.

Before Magistrate

"It's as inexplicable to them as it is to you or me," Magistrate William Ostler said Wednesday to the grieved husband of a women who pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

He fined Nora Powell, 2170 Haultain, $200.

Court was told she took some lace, two bath towels, a sheet and pillow cases from a store Monday without paying for them. The goods were valued at $42.78.

The husband testified his wife had received a letter from a relative that day describing various illnesses of different persons including her mother. He said she was overwhelmed with the news.

He said he could give no other reason.

The magistrate said the same thing had been said about previous accused.

A 20-year-old youth who pleaded guilty to breaking a glass door in the Victoria Jaycee office early Wednesday will be sentenced Dec. 13.

Police said Samuel McKay, 2517 Graham, kicked the door three times and then it shattered. He had been drinking. Value of the door was $138.

Two army youths who pleaded guilty to prowling at St. Ann's Academy Wednesday morning were fined.

Robert Grohs, 20, was ordered to pay $50 and Keray Regan, 22, was fined $100. Both are of Work Point Barracks.

Police said Regan went up the fire escape of the building and over the roof while Grohs waited on the ground. Regan told the magistrate he liked heights and was told in return he should have joined the air force rather than the army.

Kenneth Wayne Howard, no address available, was committed for county court trial before a judge on a charge of uttering.

Fined $100 each for driving while under suspension were Robert Cloke, 1083 Mt. Newton, and John Granger, 745 Goldstream.

Colin Kennedy, of Vancouver, was fined $300 for impaired driving. Court was told he was involved in an accident on Douglas Street Sept. 29.

MARIJUANA CASE

Court Deliberates In Car Lot Mud

It just didn't seem like magistrate's court.

There were no microphones, fluorescent lights or chairs, and the soft whirring of the tape recorder was missing.

The scene was the south end of Beaver Lake in a parking lot near muddy and with wet undergrowth.

Magistrate William Ostler held court there at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at the request of defence counsel in a marijuana trial.

Wednesday, he found Howard Turner, 19, of 645 Baxter, guilty of possessing marijuana. The case against another accused, Kenneth Gerrard, 19, of 1821 Dorset, was dismissed.

The scene is where police said they apprehended the two youths Oct. 20.

Present as the court stood shivering in the semi-darkness for three-quarters of an hour were the magistrate, accused, counsel, court officer Const. Bill Huckin, a recorder, a witness and a small group of curious onlookers who whispered excitedly about the unusual happening.

DIGNITY MAINTAINED

It was muddy, damp and cold but the dignity of magistrate's court was maintained. Magistrate Ostler asked a court officer to tell one of the accused to extinguish his cigarette.

Defence counsel Robert Price asked a witness, J. C. Turner (father of the accused), to place the two youths 150 and 200 feet up the path.

Later Mr. Pollard, Crown prosecutor, asked Mr. Turner to pace with him 66 three-foot lengths up the path. This led him to a spot about six feet past where the witness had previously placed one of the accused at 150 feet.

SOMETHING WHITE

Then Mr. Turner was asked if he could see either of the two youths. He said he could see something white which must be a head.

Mr. Turner said the foliage was much heavier previously and there had been a drastic difference in the last two weeks.

As darkness fell rapidly, the court officer held a flashlight so the recorder could see. A truck dumping sawdust seemed drastically out of place but occasioned only quick glances.

Mr. Price then instructed one of the accused to make a throwing movement to the side while on the path as police officers had earlier testified he had done. Nothing appeared visible.

When the trial began Nov. 14 court was told Saanich police officers entered the parking lot and saw a car belonging to the accused in the corner.

BAGS FOUND

Police said they saw a person, who they later identified as one of the accused, walking north on the path about 150 feet from them. They later saw him at about 200 feet and one of the officers said he saw him make a throwing movement.

A search with a police dog turned up a bag containing a "green plant substance" in the bushes and another bag was found in the parking lot near the cars. They were later said to contain marijuana.

Mr. Pollard and Mr. Price made their final arguments in court Wednesday. Turner was remanded to Dec. 17 for presentence report.

'FISCAL BLACKMAIL'

EDMONTON (CP) — The Federal Medical Care Insurance Program was condemned as fiscal blackmail Wednesday by delegates to the Alberta Social Credit League's leadership convention but they rejected a resolution seeking to take the program to court.

The resolution was defeated after Health Minister J. Donovan Ross told delegates that little would be achieved by legal action.

All But One Candidate Hugs Tweed Curtain

By ALAN WHITE

Candidates for council gave Oak Bay a pat on the back Wednesday night for being a comfortable municipality.

Three incumbent councillors and one of two new candidates said the area should remain what it is—the "best residential area in Canada."

Only one hopeful—a former city of Victoria alderman—ruffled the Tweed Curtain enought to suggest some changes should be made.

The five contestants for three open seats on council in Saturday's election were outlining their policies for ratepayers at an all-candidates' meeting before about 100 persons.

Douglas Watts, an engineer with the provincial government, veteran of eight years on council and former president of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities, said current improvement projects should be maintained.

Work on street improvement and street lighting should continue, he said, and recreation facilities should be enlarged in the next few years.

Ald. Watts also repeated his theme of "effective regional planning under the Capital Region Board" with local zoning power in the hands of council.

Other programs he suggested are a welfare officer for Oak Bay to cut down administrative costs, a grant for providing services to property used by the University of Victoria which isn't taxed, and a ban on high-rise apartments on waterfront or hilltop locations.

NOT SPOIL BEAUTY

Ald. Ian Horne, also an incumbent, echoed the view that council should put its efforts into "upgrading what we have."

"We should not do anything to spoil the natural beauty of the area which has been entrusted to us," he said.

No further commercialization should be allowed to take up residential land in the municipality, he added.

Ald. Horne, on council for one year, is deputy law clerk to the provincial legislature and has been Oak Bay's representative on the family and children's court.

The third incumbent, Ald. Alexander Hendry, with three years on council, agreed Oak Bay must remain basically a residential community.

If council is careful in its planning it "will never experience the blight which has overtaken other cities," he said.

He spoke against further commercial development and expansive apartment developments and said the area must stress improvement of services now offered.

HOSPITALS FIRST

Money must be put into hospital expansion and other municipal needs before it is spent on advanced sewage treatment, he added.

The first non-incumbent to speak, lawyer Hugh MacMillan, followed the sentiments of those who preceded him on keeping Oak Bay residential.

There is very little land left to devlop and the area "has taken on a character," he said.

"I am in favor of quashing any further development of high-rises."

Persons calling for development and growth are in favor of it as long as it affects someone else's property, he added. But they do not want such things as apartment buildings "in their backyard."

SEWAGE VIEW SHOCKS

Mr. MacMillan also said he was "shocked to hear one of the previous candidates was content with the disposal of sewage in the sea."

He would oppose anything but proper treatment, he said.

The change in pace in the meeting came with Elmer McEwen's turn to speak. A former member of city council and owner of a shoe store in Oak Bay, he came out on the side of growth within municipal boundaries.

Apartments are homes to those who live in them, he said, and should be considered in any planning for the future of the area.

"More and more poeple are going to come here and more and more people are going to need homes," he said.

"There is nothing we can do about that but plan for the very best for the future.

BROADER TAX BASES

"I know there are people who don't believe in apartments . . . but there are also those who do. I believe the thinking in this area has changed in the last few years."

Mr. McEwen also said there should be further commercial development in Oak Bay both for the convenience of residents and for a broader tax base.

Speaking as the incumbent representative on the Greater Victoria school board, dentist Dr. Carron Jameson said his prime interest in another term would be having schools open for use 12 months a year.

Candidate Thomas Crone, an administrator and instructor in the Royal Canadian Navy for 26 years and a graduate of the University of B.C., said he was running for the open seat on the school board to ensure the position was contested.

"Education is a big business—it's a costly business," he said.

REMAINING as chief justice through the current U.S. Supreme Court term will be Earl Warren, who resigned earlier this year. President-elect Richard Nixon said that he will choose a sucessor to Warren when the term ends in June

Student Unrest Criticized

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Kenneth Hare, president of the University of British Columbia, said Wednesday night he has received a flood of hostile mail after his call last week for greater support for higher education.

He told the UBC senate that he is replying to each letter in what he termed a huge public relations job to keep the public aware of a lack of facilities and possible enrollment restrictions.

Dr. Hare said all of the letters criticized student unrest and threatened withdrawal of support because of recent demonstrations. About $7,000 in pledges had been withdrawn.

Dr. Hare said last week that at least an extra $85,000,000 to cope with enrollment demands.

He told senators he was forced to bring this to the public's attention "at a time when opinion could hardly have been more prejudiced against the university."

Art of the Factory 'Bold and Exciting'

At the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria next Tuesday, 30 "unique contemporary" works of art will be displayed. All have hung in factories. Some were specially commissioned to enhance factory walls.

The paintings and photographic enlargements are all large and colorful, designed to relieve the monotony of brick walls. One is 12 feet square.

Gallery director Colin Graham said the collection is "bold and exciting."

"Most of them are big so they would stand out in a factory environment," he said.

CONCRETE MUSIC

To simulate the environment of a factory, he said, pictures will be arranged high on gallery walls. Specially composed "concrete music" will be played while a projection booth flashes factory scenes.

Six years ago, Alexander Orlow, president of a tobacco company in Amsterdam, decided to display art in factories and office buildings for employees who might otherwise never get to a gallery.

He also thought boredom often affected production figures so he commissioned 13 artists to produce eye-catching, factory-sized paintings.

Internationally famous artists are represented, including Pierre Alechinsky, Karel Appel, Cornellie, Paul Jenkins, Lucebert, Serge Poliakoff, Jean-Paul Riopelle, Georges Mathieu, Antonio Saubra and Claude Toussignant.

Mining Man Scouts Island

A Winnipeg equipment dealer cum mining promoter who looked 20 years for a way to settle on the coast has finally found the way—by bringing his mining interests with him.

C. H. Bethel has just settled in Victoria with a view to investigating and acquiring B.C. mining properties, starting on Vancouver Island where the Port Hardy copper play and south-central Island prospects have caught his eye. A Duncan-based scout has been engaged to recommend Vancouver Island mining prospects.

★

"Why Victoria and not Vancouver?' people ask me. Because the mines department is here and it has the geological reports," he explains.

The company he wishes to transfer to B.C. is Spacemaster Minerals Ltd. which has mineral prospects in southeastern Manitoba, and a quarter interest in a successful Virden, Man., oil well.

Spacemaster, incorporated in 1929 as Winnipeg River Tin Mines Ltd., was dormant from the late 1950s to 1966 when the present management took over and changed the name. Mr. Bethel is president and controlling shareholder.

He also is managing director of Bird River Mines Ltd.

Properties consist of more than 200 claims in seven groups of potential space age mineral prospects, including beryllium, tantalum, copper, gold, silver, molybdenite, zinc, cadmium, uranium, bismuth, lead and rare earths.

An agreement is pending between Spacemaster and a major national corporation to spend $100,000 on exploration that would earn the major a 70 per cent interest in 100 claims at Wallace Lake.

A program of geochemcial and drilling survey is planned for next season on the copper-molybdenum prospect, which also has values in gold and silver.

Mr. Bethel said he had also bought personal control of Jeep Gold Mine Ltd., whose Bisset mine in northern Manitoba has been idle since 1956.

★

Born in a mining district at Beausejour, Man., Mr. Bethel spent most of his life in that province, but worked a year in Vancouver in 1948. It was then he decided to live on the coast, but when offered a business prospect in Winnipeg found he could not refuse. His main businss has been a farm equipment dealer and distributor, for a time the largest in Canada, but for the last 10 years he has devoted himself to mining.

From 1961-63 he was a member of an advisory committee on Manitoba's economic future for the provincial department of industry and commerce.

2892 — GLENWOOD AVE. — 2894
Situated on sheltered waterfront within three miles of the city centre, this unique and delightful property exemplifies the charm of Victoria. Heavy hand-split shakes, leaded windows and Tudor styling blend with expert landscaping. The exceptional views (from every window), the wharf, the float, the wildlife that visits daily, all combine to provide the living pleasure the city is famous for. The home is not large but there are three bedrooms and a full basement. There are numerous inclusives (stove, frig., etc.) and the cottage is furnished. The bridge, the tall trees and a most unusual oak and arbutus add atmosphere that can only be had by years of growth. Not an old property but an unique one with a Disneyland flavour. A retired couple or small family would find this a perfect home plus investment.

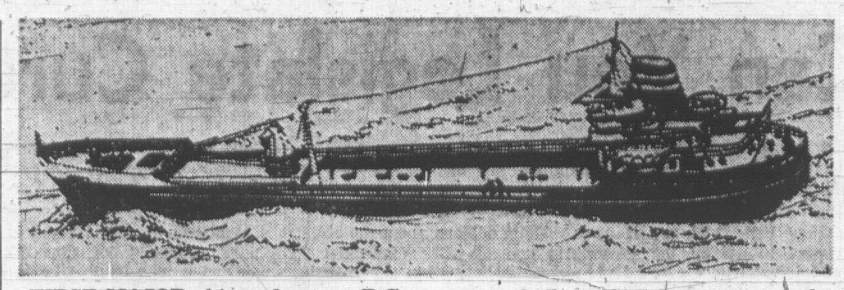
Olson Hopeful Over Wet Grain

CALGARY (CP) — The problem of damp grain on the prairies is one of great magnitude but not one beyond the capacities of the country's farmers to handle, federal Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson says.

He told the annual meeting of the Alberta Wheat Pool that the government is prepared to give every assistance in taking care of an estimated 200 million bushels of tough and damp grain but most of the work will have to be carried out by farmers themselves.

Mr. Olson urged all farming organizations to co-operate in establishing temporary drying facilities in the worst-hit areas.



FIRST MAJOR ship order to a B.C. yard in many months is Imperial Oil Ltd.'s 4,500-ton tanker to replace 30-year-old Imperial Vancouver. Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. will build the 300-foot vessel for $3.15 million. Its special features include a chemical sewage treatment plant, twin bulbous stern, bulbous bow, remote-controlled adjustable pitch screws and a bow thruster. It will be the largest in coastal service with 37-000-barrel capacity and Canada's first to employ a five-ton deck crane for container handling.

Forecast for 1969: 'A Very Good Year'

TORONTO (CP) — Business executives took the annual year-ahead peek at Canada's business prospects Wednesday and the consensus was that 1969 will be a good year.

Optimistic forecasts were provided at a University of Toronto conference by top representatives in mining, steel, chemicals, oil, automobile production, and the pulp and paper industries.

In addition, D. B. Marsh, assistant general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, predicted that Canada's total value of goods and services produced in 1969 should rise by 7.7 per cent to a record $72.2 billion.

And G. W. Brown, president of the Retail Council of Canada, said total retail sales in 1969 could grow by 6.8 per cent from this year's projected value of $25.4 billion.

MINING

Alfred Powis, president of Noranda Mines Ltd., said the demand for Canada's mineral production should be strong in 1969 provided there is no major disruption in world trade. He said although only four new mines are scheduled to open in Canada next year, the dollar value of mineral production should show a modest increase as a result of slightly higher production and higher prices. The outlook was particularly strong for zinc and asbestos.

STEEL

R. R. Craig, executive vice-president of Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd., said 1969 will be a good "but not a record" year for steel, with an expected production of 10.5 million tons compared with 1968's estimated production of nearly 11 million tons. Domestic demand for steel was strengthening.

CHEMICALS

An improved outlook for the chemical industry was forecast by A. G. Erdman, president of Monsanto (Canada) Ltd. He said demand from the automotive and construction industries and an expected high level of consumer spending should help the industry grow by seven or eight per cent in 1969.

AUTOMOBILES

R. W. Todgham, president of the Chrysler Canada Ltd., predicted moderating prices and a growing market for automotive sales in Canada next year. He estimated sales of about 898,000 vehicles, compared with about 880,000 in 1968. One reason for the increase was the expected improvement of the Canadian economy.

CONSTRUCTION

Total building in Canada next year should show a modest over-all growth to $13.5 billion from the $12.5 billion expected this year, said A. W. Purdy of Calgary, president of the Canadian Construction Association. The expansion in 1968 would represent an eight-per-cent increase, "but half or more of this would be offset because of rising costs."

OIL

A. F. Campo, chairman of Petrofina Canada Ltd., forecast sales of petroleum products in Canada in 1969 at 1.325 billion barrels a day, up 6.3 per cent from 1968. Crude oil production should be about 1.198 billion barrels a day compared with 1.115 billion barrels a day in 1968. Natural gas sales should be up 13.2 per cent in 1969.

PULP-PAPER

After three years in the doldrums, the pulp and paper industry can look forward to an increase in demand for its product next year, said J. A. T. Willis, vice-president of finance for the Ontario Paper Co. Ltd. of Thorold, Ont. Mr. Willis based his prediction on good general economic conditions prevailing. He said that with a better outlook for prices, especially in newsprint, and with indications that there will be a fuller use of productive capacity in 1969, earnings in the $2.5 billion-a-year industry should improve.

Kelly Douglas Co. Ltd.

Kelly Douglas and Co. Ltd. has bought the four Loblow food stores in Greater Vancouver to add to its 88-store Super-Valu chain.

Loblaw Groceterias and Kelly Douglas are both controlled by George Weston Ltd.

Loblaw is the second eastern Canadian food store chain to withdraw from British Columbia this year. Dominion Stores Ltd. sold its seven Vancouver stores in March to the H. Y. Louie Co., which operates 47 franchised IGA stores in B.C.

KD president V. F. MacLean reports sales increase of $4.2 million to $107 million in the 28 weeks to Oct. 12, and a net profit of $1.08 million or 41 cents per share vs. $844,410 or 32 cents.

UK Bank Rate

Leading foreign exchange dealers said today they expect the British bank rate to be raised to 7½ per cent from 7 per cent.

The rate, however, remained unchanged when the Bank of England made its weekly statement.

Dealers said international confidence in sterling is at low point, and despite consumer spending curbs, the pre-Christmas spending spree continues to gather momentum.

They said new restraints are necessary.

Finlay Forest

Japanese and Canadian interests are considering construction of a deep sea shipping terminal at Squamish, about 40 miles north of Vancouver.

It would handle pulp and lumber from planned operations of Finlay Forest Industries Ltd., which plans a pulp mill and saw mill at the Peace River Dam, 470 miles north of Vancouver.

No cost estimate was given.

How Can You Legislate Cure for Social Sickness?

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Everyday products like model-airplane glue, nail-polish remover and cleaning fluids have emerged in the psychedelic '60s as household hallucinogens.

As a result, they may be harder to get next year. A tough bill empowering federal controls at the factory and retail levels is due to come before Parliament this session.

A scant year ago it was drafted mainly as a means to ban such products as kewpie dolls that catch fire easily, or germ-filled imported ice balls.

Now legislators see it as a means to control the growing and lethal use, especially among children, of products that cause a drug-like reaction.

"The list is interminable," says Frank Howard, New Democrat MP for Skeena. "In fact, some people now are inhaling poisonous insecticides deliberately.

"They fill a room with the spray and then inhale it. There is probably no limit to the substances people will use."

He is dubious about the ability to control with regulations "a social sickness" in a permissive society. However, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford evidently is going to try.

"We have been compelled by events to pursue this course in the absence of action by industry," Mr. Basfdord says.

The "events" include the deaths in October of Raymond Champagne, 10, and Beverly Hummfray, 16, virtually on Parliament's doorstep.

Raymond's body was found in a park, a plastic bag over his head and a tube of glue beside him.

Eight days later Beverly's body, a plastic bag also over the head, was found in her home. A bottle of polish remover was beside her.

Wearing the plastic bag to catch the fumes is part of a practice that seems patently self-destructive. The deadly potential of plastic bags has been advertised for years.

Federal officials are working on an education program covering the whole field of drugs.

Meanwhile, Mr. Basford's Hazardous Substances Act will be aimed directly at control of dangerous products.

That such control is needed was illustrated by an Ottawa Citizen reporter who toured hobby shops, hardware stores and other glue outlets after the deaths here.

He found that while some retailers refused to sell glue to a young decoy, others had no such qualms and threw in snickering references like "have a good trip" after making a sale.

Mr. Basford has mentioned labelling of some of the products as dangerous, but sources here suggest regulatory powers might be carried even farther.

Retailers with dollar signs where their consciences should be might find themselves forbidden to sell some products to minors, or be required to register sales.

"I don't intend to immerse manufacturers and retailers in red tape and regulations," Mr. Basford says.

"But someone has to 'take care,' and if the market won't then government will have to."

Korea Slams Gate on Bid For Pueblo

MOSCOW (UPI) — A North Korean diplomat Wednesday slammed the gate of his embassy on a group of Americans seeking the release of the 82 crewmen of the captured U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo.

The four Americans were headed by Robert Ayling, a mechanical engineer from Staunton, Va., whose son Charles is one of the captives.

They called at the North Korean embassy today in hopes of speaking to the Communist diplomats. But they said they were met at the gate by an unidentified North Korean who turned them away when they explained their mission and closed the gate on them.

The Americans, who arrived in Moscow Tuesday, said they now had requested a meeting with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin. They said they would ask Kosygin to use his good offices with the Pyongyang regime on humanitarian grounds.

Lesage Joins Opposition To Oil Plan

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and Opposition Leader Jean Lesage have joined forces to reject as unacceptable the federal proposal for sharing of undersea mineral resources.

Mr. Bertrand told reporters Quebec is not prepared to "give up what, in our idea of the meaning of federalism, is Quebec's already."

The federal proposal was "not acceptable" to Mr. Lesage, whose Liberals maintained that the question is political, not legal.

Mr. Bertrand said that if Ottawa were intransigent on the issue, he would not rule out the possibility of an early Quebec election to seek support from the people of Quebec.

Juveniles Admit Entering Homes; Escapers Held

Two juveniles, ages 13 and 14, pleaded guilty in family and children's court Tuesday to four charges of breaking and entering.

They were remanded to Dec. 10 for pre-sentence report and sentence.

Two boys, age 15 and 16, who police said escaped from Brannen Lake School Nov. 27, are being held by RCMP in Transcona, Man.

They are being questioned in connection with a city house break-in and also several thefts at the Victoria Curling Club.

Police said a revolver was taken from the home.

It is not known when they will be returned to the city.

Uvic Building Plan Excludes Office Huts

The proposed construction program outlined Tuesday for the University of Victoria would not replace existing temporary huts, a university spokesman said today.

The $40 million, three-phase plan is for new facilities only and will not bring about the end of the Second World War huts now used for office space.

The plan includes new science and humanities teaching space, a physical education centre, residence college construction, additions to the Student Union Building and accommodation for health services.

The huts now house a small theatre, a cafeteria and the faculty club and offices for faculty and campus services.

Tearful Bennett Eulogizes 'A Great Public Servant'

Premier Bennett today paid high tribute to a great public servant, Dr. J. V. Fisher, who died at 76 in a Victoria nursing home Wednesday night.

His eyes filling with tears, Mr. Bennett told reporters that Dr. Fisher was a good example to all young British Columbians who wish to serve their society.

Dr. Fisher served as deputy finance minister under five premiers, was a special economic advisor to the government and also served a term in London, Eng., as B.C.'s agent-general.

He is survived by his widow, one son, Dr. John Fisher, who is a research chemist at Brunswick, New Jersey, and one daughter, Mrs. David Farr of Ottawa.

"In the passing of Dr. Fisher, the government and people of British Columbia have lost a great public servant," said Mr. Bennett.

"His long record of service to the people of the province . . . is and example to all young British Columbians who may be thinking of entering the public service.

"He was a great public servant and he was of great assistance to me when I was premier in 1952.

SO VALUABLE

Mr. Bennett said he felt Dr. Fisher so valuable that he prevailed upon him to take two more government assignments after his retirement in 1959 from the post of deputy finance minister which he had held for 24 years.

He was appointed as a government economic adviser until 1961 when he was sent to B.C. House in London until his return to Victoria in 1964.

The widow, Mrs. Aida Fisher, recalled that her late husband once was told by former prime minister Lester Pearson "You're not a Canadian, you're a British Columbian."

Mrs. Fisher said her husband "was utterly devoted to the service of B.C. throughout his long career and loved the province intensely.

'FOUGHT DEARLY'

"He fought dearly for the rights of British Columbia at the federal-provincial conferences he attended.

"He really considered himself a British Columbian and said the federal government forgot all about British Columbia, especially after they were forced to recognize it."

Dr. Fisher was born in Florence, Italy, and orphaned when 12. He was educated at Geneva College, Heidelburg University and the London School of Economics where he obtained a doctorate.

In 1912, he visited Canada and decided to settle in Victoria, but two years later he was back in England with the first contingent of Canadian soldiers sent overseas in the First World War.

GASSED AT YPRES

He sprained his ankle while wrestling on the troopship and met his wife in the English hospital where she was visiting wounded soldiers.

Gassed at Ypres the following year, and carrying lung scars to the grave, he also was badly wounded by an explosion which resulted in a premature report of his death.

The Fishers were married in 1917 and in 1919 they came to Victoria after he had recovered sufficiently from wounds.

Dr. Fisher joined the provincial civil service during the John Oliver administration as a court registrar at Vernon.

He subsequently was appointed Commissioner of Fernie, when that community went bankrupt, and also was commissioner of North Vancouver.

A Freemason since 1932, he also served 20 years on the board of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Farmers To Get Dairy Awards

She gave 208 per cent of the breed class average for milk and 191 per cent of the breed class average for butterfat.

The trophy will be presented at the annual meeting of Vancouver Island Ayrshire Club in Nanaimo Saturday.

Runners-up in the production competition were Ubyssey Majesty Ora, owned by the UBC Farm, Oyster River, Birghdale Pearl, A. R. Sim, Comox, and Dougan's Jo Boy Wendy, Dougan Holdings, Cobble Hill.

There were 161 Ayrshire cows on the Island with records of 130 per cent or more of breed class average during the year.

Car Repairs Under Fire At U.S. Probe

WASHINGTON (WP) — Senate investigators heard evidence here that car repairs are done right — to manufacturers' specifications — less than one per cent of the time.

The testimony came from Glenn F. Kriegel, who operates an automobile diagnostic business in Denver.

Kreigel's evidence was based on more than 5,000 cars that went through his test lane. Defects — many of them safety-related — were found. The owners then took the cars out to be repaired mainly at new-car dealerships.

Finally, the owners brought the cars back to Kriegel for a check — included in the fee for diagnosis — on whether the repairs had been properly performed. They had been on maybe 50 cars, Kriegel testified. "Incredible," said subcommittee chairman Philip A. Hart (D—Mich.).

Kriegel was an opening-day witness at hearings on the auto repair and maintenance business. In 1967, it accounted for 4 per cent of all consumer spending, or about $22.4 billion.

The lead-off witness, economist William N. Leonard of Hofstra University, testified that it is mainly the car manufacturers who benefit "from the automobile service mess, from the high price of parts (which have increased an estimated 10 per cent, or $1 billion in the last 14 months) and the low quality of service . . ."

FRENCH 'AIR' TRAIN OPERATES IN 1970

LYON, France (Reuters)—The Urbatrain, which glides along a rail on a cushion of air, was unveiled to the press Wednesday. The first operational passenger-carrying vehicle driven by a linear induction motor, will go into service in 1970 on an experimental line along the banks of the River Rhone here. The Urbatrain, which looks like two boxes hung on a rail, cost an estimated $14,000,000.

Women 'Stronger' In Mind and Body

Women are stronger than men physically, emotionally and mentally, an internationally-known anthropologist told a University of Victoria audience Wednesday.

But men are better at public relations — they have convinced women of male superiority, Dr. Ashley Montague said.

Author of a book on The Natural Superiority of Women, he told his audience the female sex is less likely to become ill than men, and lives longer.

Men are really "incomplete females" with one less X chromosome than women. This chromosome shortage may explain all the problems such as baldness and color blindness men have, he said.

Women maintain a normal emotional state by crying, for which eases the strain.

The male suppresses such emotions and winds up with ulcers or a skin disease.

Women have been treated as if their brains stopped growing — as "arrested adolescents" according to Dr. Montague. They have come to believe this fiction about their sex and act accordingly.

But they have the highest form of intelligence, he said, in the ability to love and communicate their love by showing support, stimulation and encouragement.

Men should have more of women's tenderness and compassion, more of their feelings, Dr. Montague said.

Doctor Gives Sister Hope Through Cancer Injection

LIMA (AP) — In a bold experiment, a young Peruvian physician injected himself with cancer cells taken from his half-sister, and later gave her the cancer-fighting antibodies that his body had created.

Dr. Alfonzo Zavaleta Cruzado, 34, says he may have cured his sister, Mrs. Elis Wenzell, of cancer of the uterus. The cancer apparently has disappeared, he said.

But he stressed that less than a month has passed since the experiment, and five years are required to think in terms of cure.

Similar experiments to mobilize antibodies against cancers are being carried out in the United States and elsewhere, some with encouraging results. Dr Zavaleta's experiment differs in some respects.

He injected cancer cells into his leg. His system formed antibodies to destroy the foreign cells, much as antibodies are formed to resist bacteria, or to reject transplanted organs.

He then bled himself to obtain lymphocytes, white blood cells carrying the antibodies, and transferred them to his sister.

TOO EARLY

An associate of Dr. Zavaleta, Dr. Oscar Miro Quesada, said: "It is too early to know the results of Dr. Zavaleta's technique. But this is a beginning. Now we have to wait five years to see if the cancer returns."

Dr. Miro Quesada is president of the Peruvian Society for Immuno-Pathology, and director of the National Institute of Health. Dr. Zavaleta is a medical officer and a first lieutenant in the Peruvian navy.

HAD HUNCH

"I have always felt a cure for cancer would come from a crossfire between chemistry and immunology," Dr. Miro Quesada said.

"Dr. Zavaleta and I have been conducting chemical trials with hopeless cases—people with one foot in the tomb and the other on a banana peel. We have been able to keep them alive for one to 1½ years, until their cancer cells became resistant to the chemicals.

"Now, Dr. Zavaleta has come up with this simple technique."

PLAYERS ACCUSE OWNERS OF UNFAIR PRESSURE

. . . DEMAND PERCENTAGE OF RADIO-TV RECEIPTS

Strike-Threat Bombshell Shatters Baseball Serenity

By RON RAPOPORT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I don't think the owners think we're serious," said Pittsburgh pitcher Jim Bunning. "We're trying to convince them that we are."

The Major League Players Association dropped a bombshell into the serene midst of the annual winter baseball meetings Wednesday when they asked players not to sign 1969 contracts until a dispute over radio and television receipts is settled.

In their statement—signed by about 100 players and read to a news conference by Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association—the players accused some owners of exerting unfair pressure to get players to sign contracts.

"Young players have been told to sign now or play in the minor leagues next year," Miller said. "Others . . . have been told that they will never get the necessary five years of service (needed to qualify for a pension) unless they sign."

"Veterans have been told that baseball has a long memory, and if they refuse to sign now, they should forget about staying in baseball after their careers have ended."

Said Warren Giles, president of the National League:

"I can't believe it. I'm not saying anybody's lying, but I know of no instances of threats being made."

Bunning, player representative of the Pirates, said that "A lot of players who are indebted to their ball clubs have been threatened to sign or else. A lot of players borrowed money to tide them over the winter."

The players are demanding a percentage of radio and television receipts. The owners insist that they will pay only a flat fee and will not negotiate the matter of percentages.

Said Jerold C. Hoffberger, an owner of Baltimore Orioles and member of the owners' player-relations committee:

"I don't believe the players should share in the radio-TV money any more than the gate receipts or the sale of peanuts.

"If players want a guarantee on TV income, fine. But I want to know: Will they be willing to accept a decrease if it goes down? There's no guarantee it will stay up there."

Baseball recently signed a television deal worth $49,500,000 over the next three years, a substantial increase from previous contracts.

"Funding of the pension plan should come from all income, not just a part of it," Hoffberger said.

Miller claimed that 50 players have been pressured into signing contracts. But he said all the players called Tuesday were in favor of leaving their contracts unsigned.

Among the players who signed the statement were Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees, Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, Bob Gibson of St. Louis, Willie Mays of San Francisco, Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Pete Rose of Cincinnati and Maury Wills of Montreal.

Miller said eight meetings had been held with the owners' committee and that a ninth was scheduled for New York next Tuesday. But he said the owners' "delaying tactics" were preventing progress.

Howe Fires Historic Shot . . .

Pressure Was Greater Facing Rocket's Mark

PITTSBURGH — Gordie Howe today admitted the pace in the National Hockey League was getting tougher but the Detroit Red Wing ace indicated he probably won't think of retirement as long as he is scoring goals.

Howe reached one of the greatest pinnacles in sports history Wednesday night when he fired his 700th NHL goal, a feat considered near impossible only a few years ago.

The 40-year-old right winger drove a 30-foot shot past Pittsburgh Penguins' goalie Les Binkley at 7:13 of the first period. It got no more than two inches off the ice and made the score 1-1.

Officials stopped the game and gave Howe the puck as the crowd in the Civic Arena stood and applauded.

Alex Delvecchio started the play when he picked up a loose puck along the boards and passed to Frank Mahovlich, who was being tightly guarded.

Mahovlich passed to Howe who was free in front of the goal and he slapped it just to the right of Binkley, who was partially screened.

Howe said the pressure on him to get No. 700 was tough, but the pressure was greater when he was faced with Maurice Richard's career record years ago.

What about 800 goals.

"It's getting tougher," he said, "I have to admit it's getting tougher."

DEPENDS ON LEGS

However, he said he would be back next year for sure because he has one year to go on his current contract.

"After that I don't know," he said.

Howe said he would have preferred to score the goal at home, where he has played since 1946.

The goal put Howe 156 ahead of his nearest rival, "Rocket" Richard of Montreal Canadiens, who retired in 1960. It was then believed that Richard's 544 goals might stand for decades.

Only Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks — who is 29 and has 430 goals — seems to have a chance to catch Howe.

LONGEST CAREER

Hockey players have longer careers than many athletes, but few play past 40. And no one has played as long and as well as Howe.

Now in his 23rd season, he has set 30 NHL records and has been in the top five scorers for 19 straight years. He was third last year with 39 goals and 43 assists and was named to the all star team despite Detroit's last-place finish in the established East Division.

Howe is currently the league's third leading scorer.

He scored his 699th goal in Detroit last Wednesday. No. 700 was his 12th of the season.

The muscular native of Floral, Sask., was playing in his 1,493rd regular-season game, also a league record.

Howe also holds the record for most seasons played in the NHL, 22, the most regular-season assists, 915, the most regular-season points, 1,615, the most goals including playoffs, 765, most assists including playoffs, 1,006, the most points including playoffs, 1,771, and the most points in one season by a right winger, 95, in 1952-53. He scored 49 goals that year and had 46 assists.

HULL HAS CHANCE

Howe agrees with most observers that if anyone beats his records it will be Hull.

"He's strong and he gets a lot of ice time. But, he must stay healthy. I've been lucky in that respect."

"I was fortunate to play on a line with Ted Lindsay and Sid Abel and more recently with Norm Ullman and Alex Delvecchio, all fine scorers.

"That's very important. It means that the defence can't key on just one man."

Rangers Surge Ahead of Habs

By Canadian Press

With one quick flick of his powerful wrists, Gordie Howe reached a plateau Wednesday night that he may never have to share with any other National Hockey League player.

The Detroit Red Wings star blasted a 30-foot shot past Pittsburgh Penguin goaltender Les Binkley for the 700th regular-season goal of his career.

Howe's goal sparked the Red Wings to a 7-2 victory against Pittsburgh. Officials stopped the game after the historic goal and presented Howe with the puck while 4,451 Pittsburgh fans applauded.

In other games, New York Rangers downed Montreal Canadiens 4-2 to move into first place in the Eastern Division, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-2, Los Angeles Kings took Philadelphia Flyers 3-1 and Chicago Black Hawks and St. Louis Blues tied 3-3.

RATELLE SCORES TWO

Vic Hadfield and Ron Stewart scored the other Ranger goals while Jacques Lemaire and Bobby Rousseau connected for Montreal.

Montreal coach Claude Ruel refused to blame fill-in goaltender Ernie Wakely for the loss. Wakely was recalled from Cleveland of the American Hockey League because Rogatien Vachon is out with an injured hand and Gump Worsley has a nervous condition.

"Wakely played well enough, but a goalie can't do much when loose pucks are left lying all around and nobody on the defence takes charge," Ruel said.

GIACOMIN STARS

The Rangers outshot the Canadiens 27-26. It was the outstanding work of Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin, however, that kept the Canadiens from holding on to first place before a hometown crowd of 16,653.

Dave Keon scored two goals for Toronto in its triumph before 12,337 at Minneapolis. Norm Ullman and Mike Walton scored the other Maple Leaf goals and Wayne Connelly and Jean-Paul Parise replied for Minnesota.

The win ended a five-game winless streak for Toronto and ran Minnesota's winless streak to eight games.

Exhibition Hoop

First United Stars downed Saanichton of the Peninsula Basketball Association 32-17 and First United Juniors defeated Lake Cowichan senior "B" 37-26 in women's exhibition basketball games played Wednesday night at First United Fellowship Hall.

Long Derby Probe Drawing to Close

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — With only two witnesses waiting to testify today, the Kentucky Racing Commission could wind up its investigation into the controversy surrounding Dancer's Image.

Chairman George Egger has given no indication where or when the commission will begin reviewing the evidence accumulated during 12 days of hearings often highlighted by heated exchanges between opposing attorneys.

They have been arguing one point: Did Peter Fuller's colt, winner of the Kentucky Derby, have the illegal medication phenylbutazone in his system as indicated by a post-race urinalysis.

ALL TESTS POSITIVE

The report originated with state chemist Kenneth W. Smith and he returned to the stand Wednesday for the second time to defend it.

Offering to stake his reputation on his accuracy, Smith went over the five tests he had run on the urine, said all of them proved positive for the drug, and then added, "I am 100 per cent sure."

He had made a similar statement to Churchill Downs stewards last May just before they took the $122,600 purse from Dancer's Image and awarded it to Forward Pass, which finished second.

FREQUENT CLASHES

During the afternoon and evening sessions Wednesday, Smith clashed frequently with Fuller's chief counsel, Arthur Grafton, who insisted there were many discrepancies in the chemists testimony.

One of the big areas of disagreement concerned Smith's handling of a test in which a drop of urine is crystallized and then examined under the microscope to see if it has the properties of phenylbutazone.

Grafton charged that Smith's pictures of the crystals—introduced as evidence—were inconclusive. Smith said they were not.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four trades were completed at the annual baseball meeting Wednesday including one that sent Curt Blefary, former Rookie of the Year for Baltimore, to Houston.

The five-player deal, one of three made by the Astros during the day, sent pitcher Mike Cuellar to the Orioles along with minor league infielders Elijah Johnson and Enzo Hernandez. Baltimore also surrendered John Mason, a minor league outfielder.

The Astros traded third baseman Bob Aspromonte to Atlanta for utility man Orlando Martinez and sent outfielder Dick Simpson to New York Yankees for relief pitcher Dooley Womack.

Blefary was Rookie of the Year in 1965 when he hit .260 with 22 home runs. Last year he slipped to .200 and 15 homers, while playing catcher and the outfield.

San Diego Continues Mastery Over Denver

DENVER (AP) — San Diego Gulls shut off a third period rally by Denver Spurs Wednesday night to take a 5-3 Western Hockey League victory, their eighth in nine tries against the Spurs.

Denver grabbed a 1-0 first period lead before 1,097 fans on Ed Hoekstra's 50-foot screen shot, but the Gulls came back on Johnny MacMillan's 15-footer from the right side.

San Diego never trailed after that, with Alex Faulkner and Fred Hilts connecting in the second period and Willie O'Ree and MacMillan again in the third.

Hoekstra, however, made it close late in the third with his second goal of the night and Jacques Lemieux brought Denver to within one goal at 4-3 before MacMillan clinched the victory.

Ron Morris Decides To Quit Pro Football

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ron Morris, an assistant coach with the British Columbia Lions football club for the past two years, announced his retirement from professional football Wednesday.

He is to take up a career in the real estate business in Vancouver.

Morris played four seasons with the Lions and had eight years as a player in the Canadian Football League.

He started his professional football career with the Calgary Stampeders in 1959, was traded to Toronto Argonauts in 1961 and came to British Columbia during the 1963 season. Morris was a halfback and flanker during his playing years.

Lions head coach Jim Champion has advised the club's board of directors that it will not be necessary to replace Morris on the coaching staff because assistants Marv Matuszak and Jack Parker are able to take on the added responsibilities.

AFTER JAIL . . . . . MORE FIGHTS

Cassius Plans Return

RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Muhammed Ali, also known as Cassius Clay, said Wednesday he plans to resume his boxing career "after I get out of jail to pay off my debts."

The 26-year-old former heavyweight boxing champ who was stripped of his title by the World Boxing Association is under sentence for refusing to serve in the army.

His conviction currently is being appealed.

Ali told a news conference at Fairleigh Dickinson University that he is $380,800 in debt, mostly from his legal entanglement with the government.

He said he has received offers to fight overseas but "the government won't let me leave the country."

Ali said he is barred from leaving the United States "because I'm a security risk."

He said he is now making $7,000 a week speaking at colleges and writing.

Earlier, he spoke to 800 students and said he was paid $1,000 for the appearance.

JOE PRYKE

Easy-going, astute and dedicated ... That only describes a part of Joe Pryke. He was and always will be a great booster of young citizens, and the cheques from a flock of victories on today's high-priced gold trail couldn't repay Pryke for the time he has donated to juniors, in particular, and golf, in general.

A countless legion of good golfers, including several of our professionals, have been developed because of Pryke's devotion and interest.

It is no secret that Gorge has the most active membership in town. It's one of the largest, as well, and Pryke's will be a tough act to follow because he displayed a disposition that coped with all the variable moods of membership. It has been that way for over 20 years.

Now Gorge Vale's directors are confronted with the task of finding a replacement. The word has gone out, through CPGA channels, of the vacancy.

They'll fill it, of course, but it won't be easy.

Gordon Pellow has been re-elected as Uplands president. New directors were elected at the club's annual meeting, poorly attended for the first time in several years because contentious issues have disappeared from the agenda. Bob Bell remains as captain while directors named were June Lovitt, Wil Wilson, Ken Little and Viv Hicks.

At Colwood, former B.C. champion Laurie Kerr takes over as captain, replacing Gord Hutchison. Hutchison was elected a vice-president while Ed Cuppage remains as president.

Both Uplands and Colwood, incidentally, have new secretary-managers. Peter Simpson filled the post at Colwood while Doug Long took over at Uplands a few weeks ago.

SHORT CHIPS: Salt Spring Islanders accorded Fred Ball added distinction during their club's annual prize-giving dinner ... He was the only member to score a hole-in-one ... At 89, Mr. Ball is believed to be the oldest golfer in Canada to score an ace during the 1968 season ... Also hitting for aces, more recently and both on Cedar Hill's 18th, were Ernie Porter and Audrey Thompseed ... With an ambition that must be lauded, Victoria's nine-hole courses have formed an association ... A button competition's already under way, so Gregarah, Broome Hill, Ardmore and Metchosin now are making plans for other inter-club events. ...

Old Joe Evans teamed up with young (only 71) Tom Grieve to capture Colwood's Bryant Trophy ... They put the finishing touches on a popular club event by defeating Don Ross and Don Duncan on the 18th in the final last weekend ... District button battles dominated the action at Uplands ... Pro Vaughan Trapp and junior Carl Schwantje defeated Glen Meadows southpaws Harold Jacobsen and Brian Sluggett to claim the open buttons ... Colwood's Ron Howard and Ken Floyd claimed the junior pins after disposing of Gorge challengers Dave Mick and Tim Horrigan ... Larry McCooey and Roy Johnson of Colwood took the senior buttons from Pete McIntyre and Bob Anderson.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Crashing into Times' Bowler-of-the-Week parade, Dick Wesch (above) joined men's fivepin winners by rolling highest total of season—1,041. Dick, basketball fan and fishing enthusiast, rolled blazing 418 to start, then added hot games of 365 and 258 while bowling in Wednesday Night Mixed League at Mayfair Lanes. Dick's total is third highest in five-season history of competition. Only Don Marshall, with 1,064, and Stan Jones, with 1,051, have rolled greater series.

Soviets Thump Canucks To Sweep Puck Tourney

MOSCOW (CP) — The Soviet Union's No. 1 hockey team trounced Canada, 6-0, Wednesday in the final game of a four-team international round-robin tournament.

The victory was the third in a row for the premier Russian team, giving it a maximum six points and the championship.

CANADA LAST

The Soviet No. 2 team tied Finland, 2-2, and finished second with three points. Finland had two points and Canada was in last place with one point, garnered by tying Finland, 2-2, on Monday.

The Soviet squad led Canada, 2-0, after the first period Wednesday. Neither team could score in the second period. The Russians salted away with the game with a four-goal assault on the tiring Canadians in the final period.

BEST ON DEFENCE

Although the Canadians could only manage one tie — they lost, 4-3, Sunday to the Soviet No. 2 team — they displayed the tournament's best defenceman. Jack (Red) Bownass, 38-year-old former professional, won the individual prize in this category.

Anatoly Firsov and Boris Mayorov led the Russian attack against Canada with two goals each. Yevgeny Mishakov and Yuri Vikulov tallied singles.

The Soviet players, reigning world champions and winners of the gold medal at the Grenoble Olympics, were held scoreless in the second thanks largely to the superb work of goalie Wayne Stephenson, a native of Fort William, Ont. He made several point-blank saves.

Oak Bay Rallies

The High School Senior Girls' Basketball League 1968-69 season started Wednesday with four games.

Esquimalt defeated Belmont 16-4; Victoria crushed St. Ann's Academy 57-21; Mt. Douglas sqeaked by Mount View 23-21 and Oak Bay rallied in the second half to bounce Claremont 36-30.

Late Tally Sends Arsenal to Final

LONDON (Reuters) — A goal by John Radford four minutes from the end of the game Wednesday night put Arsenal in the final of the English Football League Cup soccer competition.

Although Radford's goal against Tottenham made the score 1-1, Arsenal won, 2-1, on aggregate following their 1-0 victory in the first leg of the semi-final two weeks ago.

England goal ace Jimmy Greaves scored for Tottenham in the 67th minute of Wednesday night's game, but when extra time looked likely, Radford headed the ball home off the crossbar.

In the final at Wembley March 15, Arsenal, making their second successive final appearance, meets either fellow First Division club Burnley or Swindon from the Third Division.

Burnley beat Swindon 2-1 after extra time in Wednesday night's other semi-final for a 3-3 aggregate. Swindon won the first leg, 2-1.

A third meeting between the clubs will be held but date and venue have yet to be decided.

Victoria held Claremont to a 9-9 tie Wednesday and helped Mt. Douglas grab a share of first place in the Inter-High School Senior Rugby League.

Mt. Douglas pulled even with Claremont by blanking Mount View 6-0 in the day's other match.

The last few minutes decided the match at Mount View with Mark Charlton scoring a try with 10 minutes remaining and Mark Hume kicking a penalty goal in the last three minutes.

Mt. Newton downed the visiting Claremont second squad 6-3 in an exhibition match.

Quebec No Longer Provinces' Big Gun

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Tough talk from at least one provincial capital is no novelty at the approach of a federal-provincial conference like the mid-month meetings on the constitution and tax sharing.

The difference this time is that an unusually mild Quebec is being made up for by unusually tough sounds from other provincial capitals, especially Toronto and Winnipeg.

The language from Toronto has been more restrained but the message has been the same.

DEPENDED ON QUEBEC

Until then, provinces like Manitoba and Ontario, close allies of Quebec in federal-provincial confrontations, had reason to believe they could safely leave the main assault to Quebec.

Since 1966, Ottawa had been determined to treat all provinces alike. So anything Quebec got, other provinces could count on getting too.

And since it was an article of faith that no federal government could challenge a Quebec government head-on and still win the next election it looked like sound strategy for other provinces to line up their positions with Quebec's and count on Quebec's impregnability as their main defence.

No other province dare make serious threats about pulling out of Confederation if it did not get what it wanted. But Quebec could do it for them, secure in the belief that Quebec-first nationalism would tie the loyalty of its voters on the provincial side.

The benefits for Quebec's allies in this common provincial front were obvious. As the only province with its own "nationalism," Quebec gave the provincial team armor no other province could match.

But there was something in it for Quebec too. By frequent reference to its allies in other provinces, Quebec nationalism could make its effort to destroy the credibility of the federal government in Quebec —first essential step toward a more independent status— sound less radical and less dangerous than it would if Quebec had been alone.

It made what was essentially a Quebec-Canada conflict look like a more innocent federal-provincial struggle.

To defend its own defences, by ensuring that French-speaking Quebecers would continue to look to Quebec City as the only government they could trust, Quebec was ready to resist any federal initiatives that would have cast Ottawa in the role of defender of French culture.

At last February's federal-provincial conference the late premier Daniel Johnson opposed the federal proposal for a constitutional bill of rights guaranteeing the two languages.

SAME POSITION

The Manitoba and Ontario delegations, who had been in close consultation with the Quebec representatives during the conference, took the same position as Quebec.

It amounted to opposing a federal initiative that would have undermined Quebec-first nationalism and weakened Quebec's claim to a special status.

Alberta and British Columbia also found themselves on the same side as Quebec.

But neither Premier E. C. Manning nor Premier W. A. C. Bennett appeared aware that he was helping Daniel Johnson protect the foundaton of his special-status philosphy.

Now the election returns of last June have blown holes in Quebec's armor.

Prime Minister Trudeau took on the Quebec government in the election campaign and won a bigger percentage of the popular vote in Quebec than he did in any other province.

He had demonstrated beyond doubt that a federal government willing to make the effort to serve the interests of French-speaking as well as English-speaking could appeal over the head of the Quebec government to the people themselves.

For Quebec's allies in other provincial capitals this meant that the super-weapon in which they had put all their faith was shown to be loaded with blanks. An alliance with Quebec was no longer adequate defence.

There was also the warning to be seized by the more perceptive members of provincial governments that if Prime Minister Trudeau could appeal to the people over the head of one provincial government there was a strong chance he could do it over the head of the others.

At the November meeting of federal and provincial finance and health ministers in Ottawa, some provincial ministers were reassuring one another with the argument that Ottawa would have to back away from its position because "Quebec will not buy it."

Quebec did't buy it. But that simple fact was no longer enough to wring cracking sounds from the foundations of confederation. The federal position did not budge.

The explosions of anger since that conference from the provinces that had learned to look on Quebec as an unbeatable ally are understandable.

School Board Race Features Three Key Issues

By DON VIPOND

Utilization of school buildings, communication with teachers and the quality of education are among the key issues as seen by candidates for the Greater Victoria school board.

The nine-man board deals with the affairs of 31,000 school children and is the second largest school district in the province. It is made up of three representatives from Victoria, three from Saanich, two from Oak Bay and one from Esquimalt.

Five terms expire at the end of the month and voters will decide Saturday who will fill these trustee seats for the next two years.

In Victoria, two men and a woman are contesting the seat being vacated by retiring trustee Ted Wood.

In urban Saanich, incumbents Dr. Donald Shorting and George Curran have two challengers and in Oak Bay incumbent Dr. Carron Jameson has one.

● What do you feel are the most important issues facing school trustees and how can these best be dealt with?

● What qualifications do you feel you can offer?

Victoria candidates: (one seat open.)

Allan McKinnon, 51, 1760 Rockland, is a teacher at a Sooke district school with two sons at university. He retired from the services three years ago, leaving after 26 years with the rank of major in the artillery. He owns an apartment building in Victoria and this is his first attempt at public office.

Re-establishment of communication with teachers and with the board of education is a key task he sees for trustees and pledges himself to strive for a good working relationship between these parties.

He would also like to see a bigger effort to attract bright students to careers in teaching.

Among his qualifications he lists training as a business administrator, experience as a parent and teacher.

C. Joseph Richards, 43, of 541 Dalton, single, a stockman, also seeking public office for the first time.

Getting the most value for the school tax dollar is the top issue, he says, and this can be achieved by fuller utilization of school facilities, in the evenings and on weekends.

He favors standardized school buildings across the country and would like to see a swimming pool in a centralized location like Victoria high school. The reduced costs in battling juvenile delinquency would pay for it, he says.

Mrs. Daphne Temple, 50, of 1234 Richardson is a housewife with two children, both in school.

She sees the most important issue facing trustees as lack of government support for education. School boards can't move for lack of funds, she says, and points to Central junior secondary as evidence of crowded accommodation. The school was built to handle 540 students but has an enrolment of 898. It's even worse at Oak Bay junior secondary.

News media have let the school system down in not keeping the public sufficiently informed, she says. Once the public is aware, the government will act.

Mrs. Temple helped establish the library at the Adult Institute, has been active with the parent group at Sir James Douglas school for the past six years and has attended all school board meetings over the past year.

Urban Saanich candidates: (two seats open.)

Bernard Atkins, 40, of 4040 Wilkinson, is editor of Beautiful B.C. Magazine, has four children, three in school. He spent a year on the Saanich Peninsula school board in 1964-1965, resigning when he moved from the school district.

Mr. Atkins suggests young people require a more rounded education, more preparation for the life they will find in the society they join.

The summer break from school is too long, he says. Children get bored and there is little chance for employment for those not at the university level. He favors compulsory four-week courses, suitable to age but dealing in such matters as deportment, hair-styling, cosmetics and home management for the girls and subjects like rough carpentry and a variety of field trips for boys.

Subject material would be designed to show the variety of opportunity open to young people.

George Curran, 40, of 1861 Newton, a computor auditor, he is completing his eighth year on the school board and is the father of 10.

He sees an important part of the board's job as contining to work in co-operation with teachers with a special effort being made to see that any ill feelings over contract negotiations don't carry over into the rest of the year.

Chairman of the board's finance committee, he says if expense items contribute to the quality of education the board is trying to provide, the money should be spent.

Mr. Curran favors a policy of giving education innovations a try to see if they contribute to the learning process.

William F. Hibbert, 36, of 1825 San Pedro, a printing department assistant, he is the father of three with two children in school.

School boards and municipalities need to work more closely in examining joint development of services and facilities for the benefit of the community as a whole, he says.

And communication between board and the public needs improvement — trustees must do a detter job of telling the people what's going on in education.

"I have a real interest in seeing we get the best value for the education dollar and in serving the community. And I think it's about time we injected some new blood into the school board."

Dr. Donald Shorting, 33, of 2651 Queenswood, a general practitioner, he is completing his fourth year on the board, has five children, four in school. He is chairman of the board's education committee.

Improving the learning situation in schools, particularly at the elementary level, is the most important issue facing trustees, he says.

This can be achieved by providing each school with a resource centre, by making sure each school has a kindergarten, by increasing the number of special classes to create facilities where pupils can learn at their own rate and by improving the staff-pupil ratio so youngsters get more individual attention.

Dr. Shorting says he wants to see the considerable progress made by the school system in recent years continued.

He feels his experience as a parent and in his family practice and the studies he has undertaken in education will help him contribute.

Oak Bay candidates: (one seat open.)

Thomas Henry Crone, 49, of 3443 Cardiff Place, personnel administrator with the department of national defence, he has three children in school. This is his first attempt at public office.

He sees three areas of major concern to trustees — the type and quality of education program being offered pupils, the cost of education and the question of teacher morale.

He holds teacher qualifications and with an understanding of their point of view as well as that of the taxpayer, he feels he could be an effective link between those parties and the board.

"And I feel strongly that under the democratic process, nobody should be re-elected by acclamation. We fought long and hard for the vote. The voter deserves a choice."

Dr. Carron Jameson, 50, of 2420 Lansdowne, a dentist, he is completing his sixth year on the school board and is chairman of the building and grounds committee. He has four children, all in school.

Keeping the education process in tune with our times so each youngster can gain the maximum benefit is a primary function of the board, he says.

A second key role is ensuring school system costs are kept reasonably in line with other community and social endeavors, getting the maximum value for the taxpayer's dollar.

To achieve the first objective requires continual study and meeting with interested parties in the community, says Dr. Jameson, as well as hiring qualified people.

His study of these two aspects over the past six years and an active involvement in the re-assessment of local education policy and in the building program, are qualifications he lists.

Men Guilty of Fleecing Stars

LOS ANGELES (CP) — Five men were convicted this week, after a six-month trial, of a conspiracy to cheat card-playing celebrities in the posh Friars Club. The losses were estimated at $400,000 or more.

Sentencing was set for Jan. 20.

Government witnesses testified that ceiling peepholes were secretly installed at the club in Beverly Hills, along with signal devices at the playing tables. The scheme netted as much as $53,000 a game during a four-year period, they testified.

The defendants were Maurice H. Friedman, 52, a Las Vegas investor; Benjamin Teitelbaum, 53, Hollywood businessman; T. Warner Richardson, 62, a former Las Vegas casino operator; Manuel Jacobs, 48, former owner of a Los Angeles Panguingue Parlor, and Johnny Roselli, 62, who awaits sentence on immigration law violations.

3 Gangsters Killed

SAO PAULO (AP)—A death squad whose aim is to kill gangsters has executed three more criminals, Brazilian police report Wednesday. This brought the squad's known total to six.

DEAF GIRL, MOTHER WON'T BE DEPORTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Ifmigration Minister Allan MacEachen Wednesday granted Annabelle Lopes, a Guyanese girl denied Canadian residence because she is deaf and has a heart murmur, and her mother landed immigrant status.

Annabelle and her mother arrived in Canada two years ago to allow the girl, now seven, to attend the Metropolitan Toronto School for the Deaf.

Juliet Lopes, the mother, has been unable to work because she has been classified as a visitor rather than as an immigrant.

When she applied for landed immigrant status after two job offers, Toronto authorities told her Annabelle did not meet health requirements. The family was told to leave voluntarily by Dec. 2 or face deportation.

However, a review of the case on humanitarian and compassionate grounds was made, resulting in a report that led to Mr. MacEachen's decision.

LBJ May Pad Nixon Wallet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In one of his last official acts, President Johnson may well recommend to Congress major pay raises to be effective immediately for president-elect Nixon, vice president-elect Agnew and speaker of the house John W. McCormack of Massachusetts.

The increases could amount to $50,000 annually for the president to $150,000, plus an increase in his entertainment allowance from $50,000 to at least $75,000 a year; and $32,000 raises for the vice president and speaker to $75,000. A housing and entertainment allowance for the vice-president also is a possibility.

These amounts have been discussed informally by those who feel Mr. Johnson will be obligated to initiate pay adjustments for the nation's three top political leaders if he, as anticipated, follows the recommendations of the Kappel commission and recommends to Congress a whole series of raises for the nearly 2,000 federal executives in the three branches of government.

Otherwise, it was explained, cabinet members, federal judges and members of Congress could be paid more than the $43,000 salaries of the vice-president and the speaker if proposals in the Kappel report are approved by mid-February which now seems likely.

IT'S THE THIRD

60,000 Russ Troops Still on Czech Soil

PRAGUE (WP)—Greater numbers of Soviet occupation troops than expected have returned home from Czechoslovakia. It is believed that 40,000 to 50,000 men will remain here over the winter, in contrast with previous estimates that the total would be from 75,000 to 100,000.

This was reported by reliable sources, who cautioned that it was obviously possible that when warmer weather returns next spring, easing the problem of quartering the troops, the Soviet Union may again increase its forces.

The estimate was that at present there are about 60,000 Soviet troops here, organized into four divisions. At the high point of crisis, after the Soviet-led invasion of this country last August, the total of troops from five Warsaw Pact countries was believed to be as high as 600,000.

The reported reduction in Soviet strength was seen as consistent with other indications of a return to comparative normality after the invasion.

Symbolic of this apparent transition was the announcement Monday that a lofty "tree of the republic" will again be erected in the centre of Prague on the eve of the Christmas holidays, reviving a tradition dropped in the years since the Communist takeover in 1948.

Rites Friday In St. Luke's For Woman, 107

Funeral services will be held in St. Luke's Anglican Church Friday at 1:30 p.m. for Mrs. Sarah Marshall who died here Tuesday.

Born six years before Confederation, in 1861, Mrs. Marshall would have been 108 on Dec. 25.

A resident of Matson Lodge Salvation Army Home for several years, she outlived her husband, James Marshall, by 38 years. Until recently she travelled by bus to the city several days a week.

There was a strange similarity between Mrs. Sarah Marshall and Mrs. Frederick Sarah Marshall who died here last year. The two Sarah Marshalls were born in England, within 70 miles of each other; both came to Canada in their mid-40s, married late in life and had no children.

Now a U.S. Resident

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States has granted permanent residency to Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna of Czechoslovakia who fled to the United States after reportedly participating in an abortive coup in Prague.

FRUIT TREE RESEARCH

YAKIMA (AP)—The Washington State Horticultural Association took the first step Wednesday in the possible establishment of a Tree Fruit Commission to finance research into problems of orchardists.

The association voted unanimously to ask the legislature for laws "enabling the tree fruit industry to collect and disperse funds necessary to supplement and stimulate needed research."

Beatles Too Passe Says Soviet Article

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet ministry of culture takes a long, hard look at the Beatles and says they are doomed to failure because they are not progressive enough.

In contrast to the declining popularity of the British pop-music group among young persons, protest singers such as Americans Joan Baez, Pete Seeger and Bob Dylan maintain their hold on youth, the ministry's newspaper Sovietskaya Kulturia says.

The article, by critic A. Martynova, is the longest study of the success of the four Beatles to be published here. They have never appeared personally in the Soviet Union and their records are not sold although thousands of young Russians tape their songs from Western broadcasts.

The so-called Beatlemania of the early 1960s when thousands of young girls screamed their way through each and every Beatles concert was "a symbol of the capitalist society without ideals," Miss Martynova writes.

She says the Beatles' legend was created by politicians and the capitalist press, radio and television to provide an apolitical ideal for young persons to emulate and keep them from meaningful protest against the society in which they lived.

But now, the Soviet critic says, young persons have new idols and the Beatles need sensational incidents, such as the appearance of John Lenon and his Japanese girlfriend Yoko Tono naked on a recent record sleeve, to sell their discs.

"There is no way out without an artificial heating up of the public interest. Neither the Beatles' company Apple nor their songs would last for long."

HANG 'EM HIGH
Brutal Western Odeon Theatre

There are 12 public hangings and some of them are performed in a gay carnival atmosphere, with hundreds of Christian families travelling from miles around to watch men sweating and writhing on the end of a rope.

Fortunately this saga of hanging has an important redeeming feature, it has practically no sex and is therefore classed as "family entertainment."

The British comedy, Carry On Doctor, to be shown at this theatre next week has been labelled Adults Only. Sex, of course, and how can you escape sex in the medical profession?

Aside from its grisly detail, Hang 'Em High offers plenty in the way of action. It is a tale of frontier justice concerned with the attempt of one man to see that law and order are established in preparation for the statehood of Oklahoma territory.

Pat Hingle's performance as the uncompromising judge who spares no law-breaker is strong and persuasive and it is clear his court is the only bar of justice in the whole territory.

First victim of Oklahoma's rough justice is our hero, Clint Eastwood. While riding with his herd, he is seized by a group of eight cowboys who judge him to be the murderer of the herd's rightful owner.

They string him up to the nearest tree and leave him for dead—mistakenly, of course. Along comes Judge Hingle's marshal, cuts him down and takes him before the judge.

Nun Success as Artist Now That She's Retired

By SUSAN RILEY

A retired teacher, Sister Jean has turned out 84 paintings since taking it up as a hobby 21 months ago.

"This is my first public display," she said, "and this is the first time I've tried oils."

Until recently she used to hang the paintings in her room upstairs in the convent. Space ran out and she decided she could make some money by selling them.

LANDSCAPE STRESS

Siststern Mary Jean wasn't a secret artist. She merely took up painting two years ago "for relaxation — it's better than running around." She works a few hours a day on a painting them attends to her other duties in the old cottage-like convent.

Sister Mary Jean taught drawing and academic subjects in the Yukon for 25 years and spent some time teaching in Victoria, Vancouver, and Kamloops before retiring. Her paintings depict the mountains of B.C.

She usually works from nine to ten hours on a painting but with some, — "I like to take extra time with to work details in."

Details like the mountains, for example. Although she says she doesn't have time to "go outdoors and paint", she likes her pictures to be accurate. If a photograph or calendar doesn't do the mountains across the Strait justice — she draw them in from memory.

"By looking out my window I can always see the mountains," she said.

Sister Mary Jean's paintings are hanging in a sunny room at the back of the convent on Burdett St. The public is welcome to see them from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. this week. The exhibit will also be open Sunday.

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

At least once each month, the same letter turns up in my mail. It comes in over different signatures, and with minor variations, but the message is always the same:

"I'm sure that with just a little instruction I could become a writer. If it isn't too much to ask, will you read the sample enclosed and criticize it for me. What I want is your honest opinion."

In the course of beating out a living on a series of hard-mouthed typewriters, I have received hundreds of versions of that letter, and vetted the enclosures. This without fee.

Also, more often than not, I have supplied return postage for scrivenings that range from short shorts to novels.

Enough times to make me realize that talent is more plentiful than you might think, I've had the pleasure of seeing these writings make it into print.

It is that the surest way to make an enemy is to comply with the request and offer an honest opinion.

★

What hurts even more, however, is to get a submission back from an editor's office with a rejection slip attached to it.

The editor regrets in one breath, and in the next assures you that the refusal implies no lack of merit in your material.

By its say-nothing blandness, the rejection slip lends itself to all manner of speculations. Some of these solidify into beliefs of the "magic key" variety.

If I knew the editor, one such goes, he would give me a break.

Not so. No editor who hopes to stay in business can afford to give breaks where his publishing lists are concerned. The best that friendship with an editor can ensure is (possibly) a faster reading and a nice letter instead of a rejection slip. But unless the script pleases, the answer will still be no.

The literary agent holds no magic key, either.

The best of this breed are as hard to please as editors, and they rarely deal in unpublished writers. Be warned, too, that the woods are full of agents who promise—and extract reading fees for—far more than they're likely to produce.

★

We come now to the part of the much-repeated letter that deals with instruction.

Absolutely the best instruction I can give to any would-be writer is this:

Read!

Read casually, for fun. Read intently for information. Also, read critically.

Most of all, read in those areas in which your writing interest lies.

Then, instead of letting ideas slide in and out of your head, do as writers must. Grab one, and brood over it. Don't talk about it to anyone, even though the urge may become all but irresistible.

If you insist on talking out a story, play or novel idea, the chances of getting it down on paper decrease with every word.

Stew on it. Then sit down and begin to write. That's a punishing job, and it never gets much easier, but it beats dreaming about how much you'd like to be a writer.

And when the piece is finished, make a list of all possible markets. Send it to each in turn, with postage for its home journey enclosed.

If it keeps coming back, assume that it isn't up to standard, and improve it or junk it.

But please . . . for the sake of amiable relations . . . don't send it to me!

IMMIGRANT INCREASE 'INEVITABLE'

By JOHN SLINGER

Canada "inevitably and soon" will be under greater pressure to lower its immigration barrier, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, said here today.

The importance and implications for Canda of the world population explosion "can hardly be overstated," he told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers at the Empress Hotel.

WATER DRAIN

Dr. Keenleyside warned that because of population pressure, "water resources which seem lavish today may prove wholly inadequate tomorrow."

Growth of the urban population and rising water needs of industry are other factors that will increase demand.

A text of Dr. Keenleyside's address was released to reporters in advance of delivery.

"Misuse of water can, of course, be almost as detrimental as an inadeqatue supply," he said.

In administration and exploitation of resources, some good things had been done and others are planned.

But, "we have also made some deplorable mistakes."

VALLEYS RUINED

He pointed to the pollution of Lake Erie and many coastal beaches and "on occasion" the beauty of large valleys has been ruined by failure to deal adequately with dam reservoirs.

"Let me hastily add that I am not referring to the dams recently constructed by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority."

Dr. Keenleyside said B.C.'s water supply is so great that by "relatively small adjustments" it could be made available to the prairie provinces.

He mentioned scooping out a 12-mile trench in the Peace River to divert it into the Saskatchewan system.

SCOFFS AT U.S.

Water from the Columbia system could be turned eastward "at a surprisingly low cost" if drought conditions should again threaten the central provinces.

He scoffed at U.S. suggestions that it has a "moral right" of access to Canadian waters.

"This would be easier and cheaper than cleaning up the mess that they have created at home."

Should a complete study indicate Canada could afford to sell some water, then it should be considered. But, at the moment, "all suggestions of this kind should be met with an emphatic no."

Even less consideration should be given "such monstrosities" as the plan to dam the Rocky Mountain trench as a reservoir to irrigate the water-poor southwestern States.

He called the $100 billion NAPAWA scheme, which made the proposal, "a publicity stunt."

Arbitration For Teachers

Chances of a negotiated settlement between the Greater Victoria school board and the district's 1,260 public school teachers appeared to vanish Wednesday.

A mass meeting of teachers at Oak Bay Junior Secondary concluded the terms discussed in recent bargaining were too nebulous to make any decisions, said John Smith, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

A three-man arbitration board will hear briefs from both sides Monday before drafting a binding settlement.

Ask The Times

Q. I read recently that snakes used to have short legs. Can you tell me when the legs disappeared?—A.S.

A. Scientists do not know exactly when the snake lost its legs but they assume it was a gradual process which started thousands of years ago. Because a snake's natural habitat is dense vegetation legs are a hindrance to motion. By evolution limbs disappeared and the snake now moves by a series of "waves" through his body.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Surprise Visit Just a Whisper For Hovercraft

A hovercraft whispered into Cordova Bay Wednesday on a surprise visit to a site being proposed as the Greater Victoria terminal for a regular service with the mainland.

Hovercraft President Barry Jones said in Vancouver today:

"We're interested in putting a terminal there in lieu of going into Oak Bay Marina."

The unannounced visit caught Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and the municipal councillors by surprise and none of them were able to get to the site.

MAYOR IMPRESSED

In a statement to The Times, Mayor Curtis said today:

"I've written the firm and indicated that I'm very interested in the possibility of a hovercraft service terminating somewhere in the municipality.

Fear of excess noise created by the craft, the SRN 6 model that was a feature of Expo 67, was given as a prime objection when Oak Bay council refused to permit a 30-day trial service from the Oak Bay Marina.

But Eric McMorran, a director of the Cordova Bay resort, said today the noise factor is almost negligible.

NO REACTION

He said the pilot of the craft was directed to cruise along the shoreline on his departure Wednesday, rather than follow the customary route from the bay, to see whether the noise upset local residents.

There has been no reaction today and Mr. McMorran said he suspects few of the neighbors were even aware of the craft's passage.

In Nanaimo, Mayor Frank Ney praised the service which begins between his city and Vancouver Dec. 21.

The mayor took a trial run Wednesday when the hovercraft cruised into Nanaimo before coming down the coast to Saanich.

Asked about the noise, he said: "To us it's the sound of progress—it's a lovely sound."

He said an airplane created far more noise as it took off near the proposed hovercraft terminal behind the Malaspina Hotel.

Expressing surprise at Oak Bay's rejection, Mayor Ney said he sometimes wonders "if the people making decisions at the municipal level have made sufficient investigation."

'EXCELLENT' CHOICE

Mr. Jones said his company considers the Cordova Bay site "an excellent choice." The shallow beach permits the craft to come right up on land and minimal terminal facilities would be needed.

Mr. McMorran said most of the resort's directors were on hand to view the hovercraft. They appeared "very impressed."

He expects a director's meeting will be called to discuss the proposal. If they decide to go ahead, then "I expect we'll be meeting with the hovercraft people and coming to some agreement."

Mayor Curtis said that all his contacts with Pacific Hovercraft so far have been informal. Because there has been no formal approach, council has not discussed the matter.

APPROACH COUNCIL

He informed the company that " before they get serious about this they will have to approach Saanich council."

"I also indicated to them that, quite apart from council, it would be wise for them to meet with the appropriate senior staff members at the municipal hall to discuss a number of ramifications and requirements" of a service.

"They have indicated that they are going to do this."

Personally, the mayor said, he has been pursuing the matter because "I think that hovercraft have a promising future in a service between Greater Victoria and Vancouver.

"And I certainly would not want to turn away from any possibility of assisting this, or any other company, in its efforts to locate a terminal."

'OLD SCHOOL' HOLIDAYS THIS YEAR

Christmas holidays in provincial elementary and secondary schools will begin with the end of classes Dec. 20 and schools will reopen Jan. 6.

Joseph Chell, superintendent for the Greater Victoria school district, said today the holiday is slightly longer this year with Christmas and New Year's Day falling in midweek.

The modern trend has been to trim the winter vacation to less than the old traditional two weeks, he added.

New Well Alleviates Problem

Central Saanich has solved it's water supply problem for next summer.

Reeve-elect Ald. Archie Galbraith said Wednesday a well has been sunk off Gliddon Road capable of supplying 150,000 gallons of water a day.

The municipality which supplies the bulk of the water for the whole of the northern peninsula, barely met demands last summer.

It is allowed to draw 1,000,000 gallons of water from Elk Lake, but last summer it drew its maximum load due to increased demands from local residents and the export of water to the airport, the Swartz Bay ferry terminal, Deep Cove and Sidney.

"The new well should provide enough water to meet additional demands," said Mr. Galbraith.

He said a survey of ground water supply is presently being conducted by consultant engineer John Motherwell which might lead to one or two other wells being sunk.

"Our objective is to find enough water until the Greater Victoria water system is extended to the peninsula," he said.

New Look Coming For Porker

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Great events can pass unnoticed.

Consider the case of the pig—the provider of roasts, chops, bacon, spare ribs, ham and sausages, who is to undergo a major change in 1969.

He's to be made leaner—less fatty—under a federal-provincial government program which received little public attention when announced earlier this year.

The object is to bring an end to two household problems:

The surplus fat which housewives have endlessly accumulated in empty soup cans and jars; and

NEW GRADING SYSTEM

Starting on Jan. 1, a new system of grading pigs will go into effect which means breeders will have to raise pigs with less fat if they want to get more money for their swine.

He will raise leaner swine by selecting hogs which produce more meat. Federal research stations will assist him in testing pigs for their fat.

"We hope to produce a better quality meat," said Dr. A. Kidd, B.C. livestock commissioner. "Canadian bacon needs to be improved, complaints are justified."

The agricultural experts devised a new and complicated system of grading hogs with the help of computers. They also carried out research on the genetic worth of individual pigs.

The studies put the experts of old to shame. For years they had blamed the hard-working sow for producing litters of fat, chubby piglets. But the new research found the villain to be the boar.

He's in for trouble now—quick disposal if his performance doesn't come up to standard.

Car Test Failures Hit 40%

Safety Week Message Underlined by Figures

Between July 1 and October 31 there were 41,514 cars tested and 16,895 were rejected on first appearance.

The figures were released today by Greater Victoria and District Safety Council.

The revelation that 40 per cent of all cars tested were unsafe, underlines the message of Safe Driving Week, which is now under way, officials stated.

They point out that national surveys show that nine per cent of all traffic fatalities result from mechanical failure in vehicles.

NEGLIGENCE

"Almost all such failures are due to negligence on the part of the owner or the driver," the safety council says.

In Victoria the experience of the testing station is that most common cause for rejection is faulty headlights. The second most common fault is steering mechanism.

Brakes, faulty stop and tail lights and turn signals rank collectively in third place.

While necessary repairs are mostly of a minor nature, any one of the faults listed could cause an accident.

Testing station officials say they are now hopeful they will test 80,000 cars annually. They point out that the procedure, required twice a year in future, can be speeded if drivers arrange their own check before appearing for the official test.

But even in areas where testing stations have not yet been established, the safety council urges drivers to make regular inspection of tires, steering equipment, exhaust systems, brakes and lights. Windows and mirrors should be kept clean.

With national Safe Driving Week more than half over, Canada today had chalked up 24 traffic deaths. Quebec had nine in four days, Ontario eight, B.C. three, Nova Scotia two and Saskatchewan and Manitoba, one each. Last year 81 Canadians died in the seven-day period.

POLICE TO BLOCK DRINKER'S ROAD

Victoria city police today warned that at least two road blocks will be set up to discourage drinking drivers between now and Christmas.

They won't say where and when.

Traffic inspector Richard Berry made the announcement in advance of the crackdown, hoping drivers would take heed, he said.

The warning, coming in the middle of Safe Driving Week, was supported by Greater Victoria and District Safety Council. The council urged residents to use care in offering liquid hospitality to guests.

Inspector Berry also warned that police, assisted by auxiliary officers, will launch an educational campaign for drivers and pedestrians in the downtown area, starting Saturday.

The program will involve checking anyone misusing crosswalks, traffic lights, making illegal turns, passing stop signs, or illegally changing lanes.

Though the program is educational "it doesn't preclude action being taken against violators" the inspector stated.

Townhouse To Be Given Public Airing

A rezoning application to construct the $2-million first stage of what will be the largest townhouse development in Saanich will be given a public hearing, council decided.

Consisting of 80 two-bedroom and 40 three-bedroom units, the development will be built by Diversified Holdings Ltd., Edmonton, owners of the property off Larchwood Drive just north of Gordon Head high school.

Saanich advisory planning commission recommended council approve the application. Date for a hearing has not yet been set.

W. K. Brawnell, who represents the developers, said each unit will compare with a $20,000 house.

"The concept is to rent to people with children who want a better than average home but can't afford to buy or can't get into apartments," he said in an interview.

Four townhouses will be included in each separate segment of the complex. Each will be two storeys high with a basement.

Rents for a two-bedroom unit will vary between $150 and $160 a month, he estimated.

CULTURAL EXCHANGE IN AREA SCHOOLS

They Share Their Musical Wealth

By DON VIPOND

An example of the "cultural exchange" programs which are expanding in district schools:

The Claremont choir—96 boys and girls—performs at the Oak Bay school today. Next week it will visit Edward Milne high school at Sooke.

DEDICATION

For many high school students music is an important part of their lives. They prove it with the hours of their own time they are ready to devote to it. And dedicated music teachers are showing the way.

There are many strong school music programs locally and the one operated by Dave Dunnett at Oak Bay senior and junior secondary schools is a good example.

Participation in the senior performing band there is strictly voluntary and quite apart from the regular music curriculum.

Students provide all but a few of the most expensive instruments as well as their own uniforms and the money for their tours.

Twice a week senior bandsmen arrive at school at 7:40 a.m. to practise until 9 o'clock. They have a two-hour practice on the auditorium stage once a week, often in tough competition with a floor hockey or basketball game.

The concert band has three student conductors and members handle transportation arrangements, ordering buses and seeing equipment gets aboard.

"We're not just turning out performers," Mr. Dunnet said Wednesday. "We want the kids to learn from getting involved."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Loaded Widow Toys With Trump Card

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 68. I have a pen pal, Oliver, who lives in another country. He is about my age, or a little younger. We have met several times and have found each other compatible in every way. I am very well fixed financially, but Oliver doesn't know how well. All he knows is that I own my own home, do not have to work, and can travel as much as I wish.

Oliver is an educated man, but considers himself "poor" and inferior because he doesn't earn a lot of money. His financial status doesn't matter to me. All I want is a loving man, and he is certainly that.

Oliver says he's not interested in marriage. He wants to remain just friends. I would like marriage. Should I tell him how well off I am financially! I don't want to buy his love. Please advise.

NO NAMES, PLEASE.

DEAR NO NAME: Why tell him how well-fixed you are financially? It might tip the scales in your favor, which would be more or less "buying" his love. And you say you don't want that. (Or do you?)

DEAR ABBY: I am shook. I just encountered something so incredible I can neither grasp nor believe it.

I drive my neighbor lady to the dentist because she gets so panicky she can't drive herself there or back.

Today I took her for some extractions. She was cool as a cucumber on the way there, and she sat like a lump on the way back after having three teeth pulled! We stopped for tea on the way home.

I asked her what she took, and she said, "Nothing." Then she explained that according to KARMA, she must have injured someone in the mouth in a previous life, and now she is "paying her debt."

Abby, have you ever heard anything like it? I just can't get over it. But if this kind of philosophy can turn a hysterical woman into one who is calmly "paying her debt," there must be something to it.

I called her dentist to be sure he didn't give her something and he said he didn't. (He thought I was crazy for sure.) Can there be something to this?

FLOORED BUT INTERESTED.

DEAR FLOORED: "Karma" is, briefly, a "religion" or a way of life based on the philosophy that whatever happens is "destiny." And one who is able to accept his "fate" with calm resignation can endure almost anything.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WEIGHT WATCHER": Good! But it won't help unless you also become a "MOUTH-WATCHER."

Mathilda's Tale Leads to Trouble

By PENNY SAVER

"Wow, Mom, is Aunt Mathilda ever a swinger!" From a teen-ager this praise was suspicious. After all Mathilda is old enough to be my daughter's grandmother. It took me a week to find out how Mathilda earned the title "swinger" and when I did, I was very annoyed, but I still don't know with whom.

It all started when the girls admired a pair of Mathilda's earrings. These are an antique pair left to Mathilda by her grandmother. Mathilda soon found herself telling of how her mother pierced her ears with a darning needle and cork so she could wear the beautiful things. The girls were so thrilled by this primitive do-it-yourself method that Mathilda admitted she had done the same to others many times. The upshot of this was that the eldest girl wheedled her aunt into piercing her ears, saying that I had given my permission and that she wanted to save the money the jeweler would charge in order to buy a particular pair of earrings she liked. Since Mathilda was packing to leave on a week-long trip, she took my daughter's word without checking with me first and it was only when she came back that I learned anything of the operation. As I say, I didn't know which to be most annoyed with, Mathilda or my daughter, so I decided to forgive them both.

My daughter knew that when Mathilda came back the truth would come out, so she had an apology gift all ready for her aunt. This is a jewel box especially made for ear wires. The box is flat and rectangular with a snap-down lid edged with gold-colored metal. The outside is covered in eggshell white leather and inside it is finished in red satin and flocking. Inside there are three ridges, each slit to take five pairs of earrings. The box will hold 15 pairs in all and there is space between the ridges to let you spread out drop earrings so you can both see which they are and keep them from tangling. These cases are $4.95. Mathilda was thrilled for she is always losing earrings in the jumble of her big jewel box and one or two have been bent or broken in the crush. Now all her earrings are organized and easy to find.

Useful Scarecrow

A teen-ager with earrings to organize might be more thrilled by the scarecrow earring tree I saw. This is a bright pink and yellow scarecrow whose outspread arms and legs are lined with holes to hook ear wires and ear posts in. He will hold around 18 pairs. This scarecrow could also be used for clip and screw-on type earrings. He costs $2 and makes a gay ornament on a shelf or dresser.

In an antique mood is the egg-shaped jewel box I saw. This is a large silver egg that opens in the centre to reveal a red-lined cavity for jewelry. The outside is patterned. This $8 egg-shaped case is silver-plated by a special method that makes it tarnish-resistant. It is one of a line of items ranging from $5 to $10 that are finished in this way. The line includes candy dishes, salt and pepper sets, cream and sugar sets and jam pots. The jam pot I saw was the most expensive of all and was shaped like a strawberry. It had a lid, a tray to prevent drips from reaching the table and a removable glass liner.

A hat-box jewel case makes an attractive addition to any dressing table, partly because the whole top is a mirror. A friend of mine who has one keeps a tiny vase of flowers on top of hers and the reflection makes the flowers doubly beautiful. These hat-box cases are oval and have two roomy blue-lined, sectioned drawers for jewelry. The sides are black and white striped and the drawers white with gold-colored fittings. The simple color scheme lets it fit into any decor with ease. This case is $22.50.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

Sicilian Girl Defies Centuries-Old Custom

From Reuters-AP

ALCAMO (CP) — Franca Viola, 20-year-old Sicilian girl who defied centuries-old tradition by refusing to marry the young Mafia boss who abducted and seduced her, Wednesday wed her true sweetheart.

Franca, who has become a sort of national heroine, escaped the journalists and photographers who had flocked to this Sicilian town, by marrying at dawn instead of 10 a.m. as announced.

The wedding was for millions of non-Sicilians the happy ending to the story of courageous, dark-haired village girl who had her aggressor jailed instead of submitting to local opinion and marrying him to save her reputation.

At the time, two years ago, Sicilians shook their heads and predicted that Franca, if not shot by the Mafia in reprisal for her defiance, would end up an old maid, dishonored and virtual prisoner in her parents' home.

Since the Middle Ages, kidnap and rape have been the sure road to the altar for a rejected Sicilian suitor.

Franca stunned the Sicilians and won approval throughout the rest of Italy when she told Filippo Melodia in court: "I do not love you. I will not marry you."

Melodia was sentenced to 11 years in prison. The charges would have been dropped if Franca had agreed to marry him.

Franca and her family were threatened with vengeance for her violation of the ancient code. But the loneliness did not last for the slim brunette who became a living symbol of a new way of life for Sicilian women.

Giuseppe Ruisi, a 25-year-old accountant, and Franca had known each other in school. They met again at a family reunion last year. He became a steady caller at Franca's home. She accepted his proposal.

Woman to Manage Brentwood Bank

By PAT DUFOUR

Women in the Brentwood Bay area are delighted to learn that, for the first time, their district is to have its own banking facilities. The Royal Bank of Canada will officially open a branch at the corner of Verdier and West Saanich Road on Dec. 12.

Delighted though they may be, none of them can be as excited as Mrs. John Dykes, who lives in Victoria at 3266 Shelley Street.

When the bank offered Mrs. Dykes the post as manager, it increased its roll of women managers to three. The other two are stationed in Eastern Canada.

Mrs. Dykes has served a long apprenticeship in the banking world. It began four days after she graduated in 1944 from high school in Calgary. "I graduated on the 17th of June and joined the bank on the 21st. My dad didn't want any daughter of his wandering the streets!"

Mrs. Dykes' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hoyle, Princess Patricia Apartments.

LIKE MOTHER

Mrs. Dykes first came to Victoria in 1946 when her husband was drafted. A chief warrant officer, he'll soon be retiring from the navy after 25 years. He's due to retire the same month as his wife starts out on the next step of her career.

The couple has a 19-year-old daughter, Linda, who promises to follow in her mother's footsteps. After completing first-year studies at the University of Victoria, Linda now works at the bank's main Victoria branch.

Being a wife and mother didn't pose too much of a handicap for Virginia Dykes. Except for a two-year "sabbatical," she's never left the banking world since she entered it as a teen-ager. "Of course, I was particularly lucky. My husband's mother lived with us and was able to help."

Mrs. Dykes has met some of her future customers at Brentwood Bay. They may someday become her neighbors. "We've often thought about building at Brentwood Bay. Now, John and I may accelerate those plans a little."

Meanwhile, while most commuters will be heading toward the city each morning, Mrs. Dykes will be doing her commuting in reverse. It isn't many of us who can travel to the office via the scenic route.

On December 12 Mrs. Virginia Dykes will become one of three women in Canada who manage branches of the Royal Bank of Canada. Mrs. Dykes' branch is a new one currently being readied at Brentwood Bay. (Bill Halkett photo)

JUDY WOULD BE ILLEGAL

TORONTO (CP) — Judy LaMarsh, former secretary of state, said Wednesday night if she were ever pregnant, she would rather seek an illegal abortion instead of appearing before a committee and argue that she should have a legal one.

Miss LaMarsh, who was speaking during a University of Toronto student debate on abortions, said she objected to the proposal that a pregnant woman appear before a board of psychiatrists, doctors, lawyers and priests if she wanted an abortion.

"If I were pregnant I would prefer a dirty kitchen with a spoon and knife," she said.

Miss LaMarsh said provisions on abortions should be removed from the Criminal Code and that women should be permitted to discuss the advisability of an abortion with the family doctor only.

A student suggested that women only wanted abortions for the sake of convenience and Miss LaMarsh replied:

"I wonder if he would feel that way if his girl friend or his sister were in that sort of position—perhaps 17 with no money and no husband."

Members Plan Annual Banquet

The North American Benefits Association Review No. 1 will hold its annual banquet and Christmas party Monday in the Century Inn. Members will meet at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Gifts will be exchanged. Phone Mrs. H. Graas at 383-1504 for further information.

New Project Will Compare Various Diets Eaten by Groups of Canadian Teen-Agers

TORONTO (CP) — It is not news to parents of many teenagers that they are not eating properly.

They may eat balanced meals at home but outside the kids are stuffing down hot dogs, chocolate bars, soft drinks . . .

No one knows for sure what effect this diet has on bodily strength, weight or internal workings generally.

Teams of researchers from the University of Toronto and the Hospital for Sick Children have set out to see what can be learned. It's part of an international project on nutrition.

More than 100 boys at the University of Toronto School, a private school affiliated with the university, are recording everything they eat. Later, their physical characteristics — oxygen consumption, strength, height, weight and skin fat — will be compared with similar groups across Canada.

Researchers also are studying Eskimo children and teenagers in a Toronto low-income housing development and in Montreal and Vancouver. Conclusions, to be announced next year, may help schools alter programs in health and physical education.

Announcing the project Wednesday, Dr. Robert Goode of the Toronto College of Education said "We think we may find quite a difference in dietary intake."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Proper Nutritional Food Leads to Health, Beauty

During an interesting talk with Claire Boasi, she mentioned some helpful ideas. Miss Boasi has a B.S. in home economics from the University of Colorado and an M.S. in nutrition from Hunter College. The important positions she has held are varied and impressive. She is enthusiastic about the role of fine nutrition in health and also in appearance.

Lowman

Claire Boasi believes dieters are often guilty of poor nourishment and that the best way to diet is to cut down on quantity rather than variety.

I have already reported she feels vitamins C and A and calcium and iron are especially important to the beauty of the skin and hair, as well as to general well being. She urges you not to stint on fruit and the green and yellow vegetables.

Many women eat raw vegetables, some because they think they are more healthful and others because they want to avoid the calories in the seasoning that goes along with cooked vetetables. Raw vegetables are often used for in-between meal snacks, too.

It is true that cooked vegetables lose some of their nutrients in the water. Claire Boasi says, "If women get tired of crunching on raw vegetables, the best solution is to cook them in a tightly covered, heavy aluminum pan which requires no water." Today you can get a skillet which fries without sticking and without oil.

As far as the calorie count is concerned, you can remove your portion before seasoning the food for the family. Use herbs.

Miss Boasi also believes many folks are poorly nourished because they are so busy they do not take time to eat properly. It is also a well-known fact that those who live alone are often deficient in good nutrition because it doesn't seem worth while to prepare meals just for themselves.

Concerning the woman who doesn't take time to prepare proper meals or eat them, Miss Boasi says, "Don't be chintzy with yourself and eat on the run. Prepare something nice and sit down while you eat it — if only for 15 or 20 minutes."

She suggests you freeze sandwiches in advance and cook extra dinner portions to save for lunch if time is limited or you live alone. Because her work in a test kitchen requires sampling food, Miss Boasi watches her diet carefully at home. If a dinner party or a vacation is coming up, she cuts down beforehand so she can enjoy some extra calories.

Another helpful hint: some folks find that the citrus fruit juices do not "sit" well on an empty stomach. If this is true of you, drink the juice at the end of a meal.

This nutritionist signed off with, "If the woman with dull hair or dry, scaly skin would pay as much attention to her nutrient intake as she does to lotions and potions outside, she could regain her attractiveness and better health at a quarter of the expense."

I am for both! I do feel that too many women forget what a wonderful beauty treatment good nutrition is.

Ontario Gives Go-Ahead to Costly Hydro Project

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial approval has been given for plans by Ontario Hydro to build two new generating plants expected to cost about $1,200,000,000, Premier John Robarts announced Wednesday.

The plants, one powered by nuclear energy and the other by coal, will have a combined generating capacity of 5,000,000 kilowatts, enough to supply more than twice the current requirements of Metropolitan Toronto and Hamilton.

The nuclear plant is to be built beside an existing one at Douglas Point on Lake Huron, 130 miles northwest of here, and will have a capacity of 3,000,000 kilowatts.

George Gathercole, chairman of Ontario Hydro, said once the plant is completed it will be the second-largest nuclear-powered installation of its type in the world. Construction would start next year and power could be produced by 1976.

The coal-fired unit which will cost $375,000,000 will be built at Bath, 22 miles west of Kingston at Lake Ontario. Construction of the 2,000,000-kilowatt station would start in 1970 with power due in 1975.

Mr. Gathercole said demand for electrical power in Ontario is doubling approximately every 10 years and it is estimated by 1975 the province will need a minimum generating capacity of 17,700,000 kilowatts compared with the present 10,000,000 kilowatts.

Reliable sources say that a $65,000,000 heavy water plant will also be built in conjunction with the new nuclear station. Heavy water is a key ingredient in a system of producing electrical power from nuclear reactors. It regulates the atomic reaction that produces heat to drive steam generators.

Informants say the heavy water plant will have a capacity of 400 tons a year and will take three years to reach that production. The plant will probably be financed by the federal government's Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Two heavy water plants now are under construction in Nova Scotia in an effort to break Canada's reliance on United States production and to help reduce current high price.

Heavy water now sells at $26.50 a pound but once the Nova Scotia plants start producing next year the price is expected to drop to $16.50 a pound.

Details on Canadian Satellite Project Still Months Away

OTTAWA (CP) — It may be four months before the full picture emerges on Canada's communications satellite project, reliable sources say.

An intricate series of decisions and actions by the cabinet and by Parliament must precede any signal to go ahead with the task of putting a space station aloft to relay voice and picture signals anywhere in the country.

The first step will be the government's reorganization bill, expected to be placed before the Commons next month. This will give legal basis for the new communications department to be headed by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans.

Waiting on his doorstep for decision as communications minister will be the question of the kind of agency to operate the satellite and the extent of its powers.

Informants say only two real alternatives exist for the satellite agency—a completely gov-sition of the space agency have ernment corporation or a mixedbeen made to the government government-private enterpriseby Dr. Robert MacIntosh, joint effort. general manager of the Bank of

Also up in the air is the question of whether the agency will control both the satellites launched and the ground stations for picking up the signals relayed from it.

The publicly-owned CBC is pressing its case for a say over use of the limited number of broadcast channels that will be available on the satellite and Bell Canada—CN-CP Communications want to be in on the ground stations.

All these decisions must await the reorganization bill and the legislation to establish the space agency. And next in line after they are settled will be what kind of satellite to launch.

The government commissioned two firms—Northern Electric and RCA Victor— to propose domestic communications satellites. The proposals were delivered late last month.

U.S., Japan Sign New Fishing Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. and Japan concluded a new two-year fishing agreement this week for the northern Pacific ocean, cutting in half the Japanese catch of king crab, reducing halibut fishing to daylight hours and sharply limiting fishing for ocean perch off the Washington and Oregon coastlines.

The agreement is expected to serve as a precedent for negotiations with the Soviet Union, which begin today for the Atlantic fishery and on Jan. 8 for the north Pacific.

U.S. Ambassador Donald L. McKernan, special assistant to the secretary of state for fisheries and wildlife, said the agreement allows a continuation of Japanese fishing inside the contiguous fishing zone of the Aleutian Islands. It is for 1969 and 1970.

He said the most important element of the new pact is the agreement by Japan to reduce the king crab catch from 163,000 cases to 85,000 cases a year over the next two years.

Nixon May Slow Arms Escalation

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Indications currently point to a slower-paced military buildup after President-elect Richard M. Nixon takes office Jan. 20 than was suggested by campaign statements hammering at a "gravely serious security gap."

Nixon associates say the new president plans a detailed study of U.S. defence commitments and strength before deciding how far and how fast to go in spending additional billions of dollars on weaponry.

"He wants to review all of our commitments and translate that into what new hardware is needed," one source said.

Nixon charged in the campaign the Johnson administration had permitted a technological "research gap," between the United States and Russia.

"We must not run the risk that a technological breakthrough might overnight alter the balance of power which now maintains the peace," Nixon has said.

The defence department's fiscal 1969 budget carried $8,000,000,000 for all kinds of military research and development. The Pentagon claims to have spent some $47,000,000,000 on this since 1962.

Nixon aides contend there has been a "fair amount of waste" because of what they term "foot-dragging" in some important project areas.

Nixon has criticized the defence department's action limiting nuclear-powered attack submarines to 69 "despite the navy request for 109."

He also has come out in support of the controversial F-111 fighter plane, or at least the air force version of it. The F-111, once known as the TFX, has been plagued by a series of crashes and mechanical flaws.

Nixon has made a major point of urging a change from the draft to an all-volunteer armed force, but not until "our involvement in the Vietnam war is behind us."

He estimates the cost of higher pay and allowances to attract enough volunteers at $5,000,000,000 to $7,000,000,000 a year.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ADAM—In loving memory of William L. Adam, who passed away December 5, 1963.
Loving memories never die,
As the years pass on and days go by!
Deep in our hearts his memory is kept,
Of one whom we loved and will never forget.
—Ever remembered by his wife Minnie and Family.

HUNTER — In memory of our daughter, Diane Hunter (Gill), who passed away Dec. 5, 1965.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly,
Has forever been called away.
We think of her in silence,
No eye may see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Her parents, Sybil and Doug Gill.
Also, Diane's grandmother, Mrs. Doris Lyne, who passed away July 27, 1965.
And while she lies in peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Remembered by her daughter, Sybil, and son-in-law, Doug Gill, and granddaughters, Sharon and Charmaine.

SUTTON—In loving memory of our daughter, Marcia Louise, who left us so suddenly on Dec. 5, 1961.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
—Fondly remembered by her Mom and Dad.

TURNER—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Eric, who passed away Dec. 5, 1967.
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear
Fond memories linger every day
Remembrance keeps him dear.

MORE SUICIDES PLAGUE GERMAN FOREIGN STAFF

BONN (AP)—The West German foreign ministry today announced the suicides of two members of its clerical staff, one in Bonn and one in The Hague.

They were the eighth and ninth persons connected with the government to commit suicide since the death in October of Rear-Admiral Hermann Luedke set off a spy investigation which is still under way.

A ministry spokesman said security was not involved in the deaths of Bernhard Dudek, 47, a clerk in the foreign ministry, and Ruediger Herold, 54, a clerk in the consular section of the German embassy in The Hague. Both had suffered from depression, the spokesman said.

HOME GARDEN

Peas, Beans Worth Risk

By HILDA BEASTALL

The sweet peas, broad beans and green peas now growing in the gardens of our local hopefuls are among the hardiest of plants commonly produced outdoors from seed. This is why we take the risk of making fall sowings if we have areas in our gardens which are fairly sheltered from winter winds.

Hilda

Growth on these three types of plants will now be somewhere between one and four inches in height, according to date of seed sowing, micro climate within the garden, soil structure and other variables.

If this is the first year of experimenting with fall sowings, the gardener becomes worried about whether his little plants should still be growing vigorously or whether they must be covered with something as protection against winter weather.

Peas and broad beans will make very little growth from now until March in average soils of this area, through where sandy loam is coupled with frost free situations the plant roots will be active in periods of mild temperatures.

However, the plants should always have a healthy appearance.

No covering is advised for putting over the tops, and particularly not anything such as leaves or peat. These coverings would soon become saturated with moisture in our heavy rains, and freeze solid when ground temperatures drop below 32.

The only form of protection safe to use for plants above ground is twiggy branches of shrubs or small pieces of conifer boughs set upright firmly in the soil each side of the row, or perhaps only on the weather side.

Nine years out of ten, these fall sown seeds will delight us with early crops. But the tenth year always takes us by surprise!

WAGNER
. . . happy Cub

Boy, 9, Wins Andy Atlas

A nine-year-old boy keenly interested in Cubs won today a World Book Atlas for a question sent to Ask Andy in the Times.

Dennis Wagner, a member of the 5th Camosun, takes part in all the activities of the pack, and is particularly fond of camping and hiking. He plans to become a scout as soon as he is old enough.

A Grade IV pupil at Oaklands School, his favorite subjects are arithmetic and reading.

For his age, he is also a skilled wood carver and has made several things for his mother.

It's not the first time the Wagner family has won an Ask Andy prize. Six weeks ago, Dennis' sister Sandra won a World Book Encyclopedia set.

Kids Put Heat On City Council

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Kids, as civic officials have found out in this community, ask the darndest questions.

Grade 6 youngsters visited the weekly council meeting in this community across the Ottawa River from the national capital.

Arleen Stephens, 11, told the officials a child had been bitten by a dog at her school. Police had been called but said they could do nothing.

J. S. McDonald, chairman of the police commission, said policemen cannot be dogcatchers. The town had advertised for a dogcatcher but hadn't found one.

"If we don't have a dogcatcher then why do we have to have licences for our dogs?" asked David Hammond, 11.

"If we don't have a dogcatcher then why was my dog caught 10 times this year and I had to pay $10 to get him back?" asked Robert Watson, 13.

One council member, never making it clear just who had collared Robert's dog, ventured the opinion that "we shouldn't have to catch your dog 10 times to teach you to keep him tied up."

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Car Owners Allowed To Zoom at 10 m.p.h.

By BOB BOWMAN

It is often difficult to decide which developments in Canada, or elsewhere in the world, were first. For instance Sydney, N.S., and Laprarie, in Quebec, claim the first railway train. Sydney, again, and Edmonton claim the first dial telephones. Who had the first automobile in Canada is also a problem.

Bowman

Father Belcourt, a Roman Catholic priest who baptised Louis Riel, demonstrated a steam-propelled vehicle in Charlottetown in 1866. A "horseless carriage" powered by electric batteries appeared on the streets of Toronto Dec. 5, 1893. The first Canadian-owned car using gasoline as fuel was driven by Colonel John Moodie of Hamilton in 1898.

So who had the first automobile in Canada? It depends on the definition.

The electric car was built in Toronto by the Dickson Company for F.B. Fetherstonhaugh, K.C. It could travel about 15 miles at a speed of 15 miles per hour before its batteries needed recharging.

CLIMBERS' SPIKES

Colonel Moodie's car was a "Winton" built in the U.S. It looked like a buggy without a horse and the engine was in the rear. There were spikes to discourage people from trying to climb on the car for a ride.

By 1903, enough people in the Toronto-Hamilton area had bought cars to form the Toronto Automobile Club. One of their objectives was to get the speed limit raised from eight miles per hour so members of the Ontario legislature were taken for rides in the Automobile Club cars. The campaign was successful. The speed limit was raised to 10 miles per hour.

OTHER EVENTS DEC. 5:

MAN PUNISHED FOR RUSTLING

Hell was ordered to pay $150 restitution for the steer to rancher Daniel Gibson of Cascade.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prize? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Shelley Sailor, age 11, of Wichita, Kansas, for her question:

What are marmots?

These furry fellows are members of the squirrel animal family. However, they are large and much fatter than the average squirrel we see frisking around. In fact, they are never caught frisking through the trees or anywhere else. The chubby marmots are slow and rather lazy animals.

The marmots are rated as the largest of the ground dwelling squirrels, which makes them cousins of the chipmunk, the prairie dog and that wretched little garden menace known as the gopher. The marmots, however, seem to make no serious trouble at all. Several types live shy, lazy lives in China and other parts of Asia and among the Alpine slopes of central Europe. One marmot who enjoys life in the eastern regions of North America has a calendar day dedicated in his honor. February 2nd is known as Groundhog Day and our eastern groundhog is really a marmot.

The groundhog, alias the woodchuck is actually the smallest of the marmots. The thickset fellow may measure 24 to 27 inches from his stubby round nose to the tip of his furry, six inch tail. His rather course coat is grizzled with greys and browns and always much darker on his back. His short stubby legs were never meant for speeding, which is fine because like all marmots he prefers to move slowly and take his time. Like many fatties, his weight varies. In September he may weigh 10 pounds or more and in March only half this much. No, fatty has not been on a crash diet to reduce his waistline.

Sleeps in Winter

The groundhog marmot lives where winters are severe. In the fall he prepares for months of hibernation by stuffing himself with extra rations of grassy greenery. His extra fat keeps him warm while he spends the winter curled up in a cozy nest deep in his underground burrow. The fat is still there when spring puts an end to his long sleep. For a few weeks he is extra busy, repairing and perhaps rebuilding his burrows and underground chambers and also dating a lady marmot of his choice. In a few weeks, all this extra springtime activity reduces his weight. Through the summer he dines early in the day, dozes through afternoon on a sunny rock and retires for a good night's sleep in his comfortable underground bedroom.

The hoary marmot, alias the whistler, is at home on the rocky slopes of our western mountains. He is bigger than the woodchuck and his coat is a grizzly mixture of blacks and whites. His back is blackish and his tummy is whitish. His hands and feet are black. So is his face, with the exception of a white patch on each cheek and another on his forehead. He is called the whistler because when visitors approach he warns his neighboring kinfolk with a shrill whistling cry.

Young marmots are born in the spring. Mrs. Whistler bears a litter of two to five and the youngsters remain in her care through their first winter. Mrs. Woodchuck may bear as many as five babies. The helpless infants are born blind and bare. Each one is about four inches long and weighs no more than 1½ ounces. But in a month, the babies have opened their eyes and grown fur coats. They are ready to give up mother's milk in exchange for a diet of grassy fodder.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Dennis Wagner, age 8, of Victoria, for his question:

How many storeys has the world's tallest building?

Maybe you can walk up ten storeys without puffing, but trudging up 20 storeys would surely make you weary. The world's tallest building has steps and if you want to try it, you can walk all the way from the bottom to the top. There are 102 storeys—and 1,860 steps. You may not want to try walking up them, but the job is not impossible. Way back in the year 1931, an Olympic team of trained athletes climbed from the fifth storey right up to the 102nd. That impossible climb took 21 minutes. The lofty skyscraper has 63 passenger elevators for ordinary folk who do not care to climb the 1,860 steps.

This champion skyscraper is the Empire State Building that stands proudly on Fifth Avenue in New York City. It has been the world's tallest building since it was finished in 1931. Altogether, with the tall TV tower on its head, the world's champion building stands 1,472 feet above the ground—which makes it more than a quarter mile high. However, a pair of twin skyscrapers are now being built, also in New York City. They are expected to be finished in 1972. Each of them will be taller than the old champion and each will have 110 stories.

Sewer Lagoon Flooding Halted

DUNCAN — Water containing effluent from the city's sewage lagoon which crossed Tzouhalem Road Wednesday and ran into Somenos Creek caused some concern to residents of nearby low-lying subdivisions.

However, under direction of superintendent of works Frank Hays, a dike was constructed and the situation should not recur, Mayor Jim Quaife said today. The water level is nearly back to normal.

"I was very concerned about the amount of contaminated water going across the road," he said, "but this has now been corrected with the dike." The cost of the dike is to be borne equally by North Cowichan and city of Duncan.

Mayor Quaife also pointed out that a statement by regional health officer Dr. H. S. Simons that all drinking water should be boiled to protect against possible disease may have frightened some residents.

BOIL WATER

"The water used in a few homes in the area comes from private wells and this should be boiled this time of year anyway when there is a danger of flooding," he said. "But the majority of the drinking water comes from a deep city well about one-quarter of a mile from the overflow area.

"There is no danger of it becoming contaminated unless our main sprung a leak at that point—and that is highly unlikely."

The situation arose when North Cowichan recently opened a sewage lagoon opposite the Duncan lagoon which has been in operation for years.

Mayor Quaife contends the municipality cut off a portion of property that formerly allowed effluent to run into the Cowichan River. This water then backed up into a triangle formed by the two lagoons and Tzouhalem Road when water levels began to rise.

It was from this triangle that the water was flowing across the road Wednesday.

LINES LAID

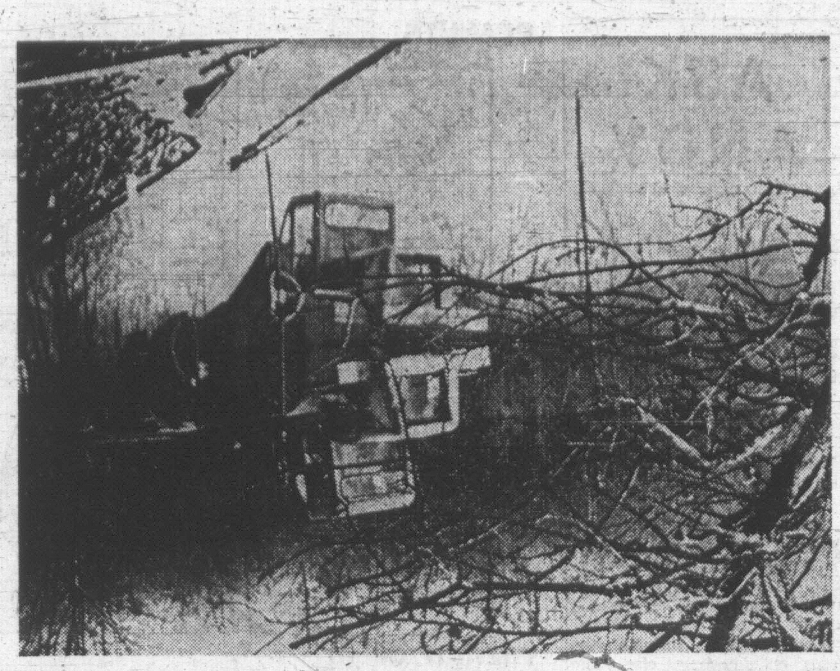
North Cowichan Mayor D. C. Morton said the new south-end sewer is completed and several large users are already connected and their sewage is being drained into the lagoon.

"There will be 481 immediate connections made in the new area including three large schools and the hospital. With the merging of all south-end systems into one system, there will be a total of 857 connections including three more schools."

Mayor Morton said all lots will be using the lagoon which "appears to be very satisfactory" with facilities for chlorination and a 900-foot effluent pipe going into the river.

A former treatment plant was at capacity levels and became too expensive to operate.

"The (lagoon) system will allow for considerable expansion in the Lakes Road area and for many more users in subdivisions being planned in the south end area," Mayor Morton said.



EARTHMOVING machine is abandoned in three feet of water at the site of construction of a new North Cowichan District sewage lagoon. Water backed up from Cowichan River contained effluent from city of Duncan sewage lagoon adjacent to it. Water was at least seven feet deep near centre of triangle formed by the two lagoons and the road. (Ed Gould)

Girl Wins Double Award for 4-H Work

MAPLE BAY — Roberta Jameson, daughter of district agriculturist Ken Jameson, won the Groves Cup for having the best steer in the Cowichan Valley at the fifth anniversary of the Cowichan 4-H Beef Club here.

Miss Jameson also won the Ardcholle Shield for being the best senior showman.

Susan Sim was named the best junior showman and Sharon Glen the best intermediate showman. Jim Myhre, club president, received the Credit Union Cup for the highest achievement marks out of the 17 active members who completed the year's project.

The Somenos Women's Institute cash prize for the best record books was won by Doreen Evans and was presented to her by her grandmother, Mrs. H. D. Evans.

'Give Bylaw Second Chance'

DUNCAN — An earnest plea to give the $850,000 recreation centre plan bylaw that was defeated in November at least one more try, highlighted Wednesday night's meeting of the joint recreation commission.

"Port Alberni gave their bylaw three tries before it was passed," chairman Pat Rogers said, "and look what they have today — a centre that experts come from as far away as the United States to study."

Mr. Rogers made his statement after project architect John Sanderson proposed two alternate $600,000 versions of the original recreation complex.

- A swimming pool built along the lines of the original. Auditorium and civic rooms would be cut leaving a first class pool expected to serve the expanding population well for many years.
- A 42-foot by 24-metre pool with the basics of an auditorium stripped of all frills. A community centre area but no senior citizen space, deep diving tank or pre-school swimming training area.

Mayor Jim Quaife feared the cost would be too high by the time a bylaw was prepared and presented. The original cost of $850,000 could jump to $1,000,000 in a very short time, he said.

Mr. Rogers said "I think it is a very negative attitude for us to take that just because we didn't get the bylaw through the first time we should quit. I think the original plan is the only practical one, the others are just stop-gaps.

"Therefore, it is my personal view that we present the same bylaw again."

The decision of which plan to accept is expected to be decided at a further meeting next Thursday.

School Board Help 'Up to the Indians'

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board is always willing to help Cowichan Indians with education problems, chairman Joseph Frumento says.

"But the request must come from them."

Chief Dennis Alphonse, a special counsellor and representative of the Indian Education Committee who sits in on school board meetings, had outlined several problems his people are encountering.

The committee feared its Tiny Tots Co-Op Nursery may have to be closed because of lack of a permanent building. A government subsidy has been turned down, Chief Alphonse said.

Regarding a transportation problem to and from the nursery, Mr. Frumento asked the transportation committee to discuss it with the Indian education committee and "see if we can help them out.

"We may end up saving money if we take a look at the situation now."

Truancy is high in senior grades and a solution is being sought, Chief Alphonse said.

Mr. Frumento, who attended an education meeting on the reserve, said many parents took students out of school when they went across to the United States to work on farms in the spring and early summer.

This led many to drop out of school permanently, he said.

Most relatives and friends also went to the U.S., Chief Alphonse said.

They're Ready To 'Walk Off' Appeal Deficit

NANAIMO — The people of Nanaimo are ready and willing to "walk off" a deficit of $13,000 in the city's United Appeal.

A number of local groups will take part in a walkathon to be held between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Saturday.

At least 20 walkers have obtained sponsors who will pay for each mile completed of an eight-mile hike. Boy Scout troops and members of Nanaimo Lions Club will also take part.

Employees of the recreation commission have challenged the commissioners, and chairman Bill McGregor will try to outwalk staff member Eric Ranpen.

United Appeal chairman Robert McPhee will be among the walkers and it is expected that civic, provincial and federal representatives will take part.

Old Hospital First Choice

Sites and building committee chairman Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan told the regular meeting of the College Council here that although other possibilities are still under investigation, blueprints for renovation to the Nanaimo building are being studied by authorities.

Trudeau Constitution Plan To Spark Historic Clash

Court, Senate Battle Grounds

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Following a briefing Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Liberal caucus members are saying that the federal-provincial constitutional conference Dec. 16-18 will be a major and historical confrontation between Ottawa and the provinces.

The prime minister's briefing was primarily concerned with constitutional reform plans, including a move to depersonalize the role of the monarchy in Canada, and the part the provinces would play in reform.

Caucus members said Mr. Trudeau is prepared to offer provinces a role in the appointment of senators.

But there were no details about how this would be carried out.

Mr. Trudeau has indicated outside the caucus that he would prefer a system whereby the provinces made nominations and he made the selections.

The provinces likely will press for authority to make appointments on their own.

The prime minister also is known to favor having the senate undertake more investigations in order to prepare the basis for new legislation. But he would guard against turning over to the senate the power to initiate legislation on its own.

Some Liberal backbenchers are keeping a close watch on moves in the upper House to introduce its own reforms. They charge that the Senate is making a dig to get more power and they will fight any such development.

A clash with the provinces is also expected on appointments to the Supreme Court.

Ottawa is expected to make some concessions to counter the Quebec charge that federal appointees on the court are heavily under the influence of the federal government to Quebec's disadvantage.

Role of Queen Played Down

On the role of the monarchy in government there may be a move to substitute the Canadian governor-general for Her Majesty in such documents as proclamations and the preamble to the constitution.

This is a touchy subject and could stir up considerable opposition from some provinces.

The prime minister has also made it clear that he will propose a draft charter of human rights to be incorporated in the constitution. The present Bill of Rights — introduced by John Diefambaker — is only a federal statute.

On other fronts tempers are rising as the meeting date approaches.

Ottawa's proposals for dividing revenues on offshore mineral rights have run into stiff opposition from British Columbia and Quebec.

The budget brought down by Finance Minister Edgar Benson has also angered the provinces.

The last federal-provincial conference with the finance ministers and health ministers saw Ottawa inform the provincial ministers that it was bowing out of several social welfare or social development programs thereby lopping off large sums of money that used to go to the provinces from the federal treasury.

The climate for this approaching federal-provincial conference is not conducive to friendly negotiations.

The discussions could become decidedly warm if not superheated at some points.

The caucus discussion on planned changes in the constitution will continue next Wednesday, the last gathering of cabinet and Liberal backbenchers before the federal-provincial conference opens.

PRIDE OF THE NORTH part of the capital region, Robert Van der Brink of the Dutch Latch on the Malahat was first to tackle the snow-covered wastes today with his trusty lead dog Tiny. You can see suffering written on their faces as they turn from the bitter winds. But their mission must be accomplished, even if they have to pick up the doggon' toboggan and carry it. The district's first measurable snow melted quickly. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

SNOWBALLS HURLED BY NATIONALIST MOB

QUEBEC (CP) — A half-dozen windows of the Quebec legislature buildings were shattered by snowballs today as thousands of members and youthful supporters of a French-language nationalist group demonstrated against the promised introduction of a language rights bill.

The horde of marchers, estimated by provincial police to number nearly 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, dwindled to a few hundred by noon, when it was learned that the proposed bill was not up for debate today.

60,000 Stage Token Strike

PARIS (Reuters) — About 60,000 Renault auto workers began a half-day token strike today in the first big challenge to the government since the May-June revolts.

About 30,000 workers were from the huge Renault factory at Billancourt in suburban Paris, one of the first plants to strike in the labor unrest in the spring. The workers claim the state-owned company has not honored agreements to improve working conditions.

Other workers downed tools at Renault factories at Fat le Mains, Cleon and Sandouville in northern France and at Flins, a centre of labor discontent west of Paris.

Before the strike began, the National Assembly voted 438 to 4 for a bill giving labor unions official recognition in all firms with more than 50 employees. Union officials will also be allowed time off the job for organization activities in companies with more than 500 workers. The bill now goes to the Senate.

VARY IN LENGTH

The strikes will vary in length from factory to factory. Labor union leaders view them as a warning to the government not to implement parts of a new austerity program that allegedly would wipe out gains won by workers after the spring crisis.

Nixon Urged To Send Observer

NEW YORK (AP) — W. Averell Harriman said today, after conferring with President-elect Richard M. Nixon, that he is confident Nixon will send a personal observer to the Paris talks and will replace the two principal American negotiators soon after taking office.

Nixon, who had tentatively decided against sending an observer to the peace talks before inauguration day, was said to be shifting his attitude at the urging of Harriman.

Talking to reporters after meeting with Nixon for more than an hour, Harriman made it clear he and deputy negotiator Cyrus R. Vance will turn over their tasks to Nixon's team on or about Jan. 20, which is inauguration day.

Peace to All From Hanio

LONDON (AP) — The North Vietnamese Liberation Radio announced today the Viet Cong will observe two ceasefire periods of three days each at Christmas and New Year.

Liberation Radio, broadcasting from Hanoi, said the first ceasefire period will cover Dec. 24, 25, 26 and the second, Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1, said BBC.

The United States and South Vietnamese commands announced Monday they will observe a 24-hour ceasefire Christmas Day but that there would be no truce on New Year's Day.

25,000 MARCH IN ROME

ROME (Reuters) — About 25,000 striking workers and students staged a protest march through the streets of Rome today, booing policemen, waving red flags and blowing incessantly on plastic whistles.

The marchers, led by a row of 40 men with linked arms hissed and booed a group of police guarding a police station and two army trucks ferrying people to work turned into a side street to avoid them.

Chanting "Worker power" and "Workers and students unite," the procession reached St. John Lateran Square where the crowd swelled to more than 40,000 to listen to speeches by labor union leaders.

FEELING RUNS HIGH

Feeling against the police has run high among workers since two demonstrating farm laborers were shot and killed Monday in a clash with police in Sicily.

Most stores were closed and shuttered, offices empty, government and public buildings deserted.

Strip Mining 'Raping' Land

CRANBROOK (CP) — Legislation to control strip mining was advocated Wednesday by Henry Nelson, chairman of the East Kootenay regional district.

In a statement sent to all provincial government departments and Kootenay district municipal councils, Mr. Nelson called for lesigistion to ensure rehabilitation of land after strip mining.

"It is fine for the province to be resources-orientated, but we in turn must protect the land so future generations of British Columbians can enjoy this great province the way we do today," he said.

"Surely the East Kootenay, and for that matter all of Canada, is worth more than just being raped of its resources and then left when it has served its resource-orientated purpose," said Mr. Nelson.

Snow Hits Up-Island Areas; Coldest Night Forecast Here

Victoria is facing its coldest night so far this winter tonight.

But it's a warming thought to consider that snow reported from up-Island points appears to be avoiding the capital city.

Temperatures will drop to the 20s tonight in Greater Victoria areas except near the waterfront, weatherman expect.

It should be clear tonight and sunny Friday. Weathermen were expecting mostly sunny weather with some rain showers today, perhaps with a few flakes of "thick rain" mixed in.

There were a few flakes mixed with rain in Victoria Wednesday night and early today, but up-Island, snowfalls ranged from a powdering to four inches in Port Alberni.

RCMP estimated about double that depth on the "hump" where the highway leads to Parksville and similar conditions on the mountains toward Tofino and Ucluelet.

SALTING ROADS

Courtenay had an inch overnight, Campbell River was salting its roads after a light fall. Nanaimo reported snow in the outskirts, a sprinkle in town and some icing.

Duncan reported some snow but it mostly disappeared by mid-morning.

The Malahat was covered with an inch of wet, slushy snow but roads were reported clear and so far the RCMP was not calling for chains or snow tires.

On the mainland there was a five-inch snowfall at Prince Rupert and six inches at Prince George. Vancouver had an overnight powder, Squamish seven inches.

BURNING SUN

Meanwhile, back in Victoria, a woman complained Wednesday that the sun burned a hole in her curtains.

Mrs. W. R. Thorne, 1265 Haultain, found her curtain smouldering and called the fire department. Assistant chief John Stewart said rays caught by a magnifying mirror on her dresser had reflected on the curtain. He said it was a first in his memory.

WIRE BRIEFS

Higher Sales Tax

WELLINGTON, N. Z. (AP) —In a surprise move, the government today outlined new selective fiscal restraints, which include a higher sales tax on specified consumer goods such as firearms, watches, photographic equipment, higher duties on precious and semi-precious stones, and tougher consumer credit terms.

Return to Homes

NATAL (CP) — Eleven families, evacuated from their homes near this mining community last week because of minor slides of fill being used to construct a mining road, were allowed to return Wednesday night.

Ojukwu Blamed

OTTAWA (CP) — Anthony Enahoro, Nigerian information commissioner, charged today that Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu has used the food shortage facing his people to "play on the conscience of the world." He told a press conference that relief problems in secessionist Biafra have arisen mainly as a result of poor planning by its leaders.

WHITE STUFF AGAIN CLOGS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Almost a foot of wet snow fell on Montreal Wednesday, nearly a third of the winter's total so far.

Since the season's first big storm Nov. 12, which dumped 8.9 inches of snow on the unsuspecting city, 40.7 inches have fallen. So far this month, the total is 13.2

Last winter, only 13.8 inches of snow had fallen on Montreal by Dec. 5.

Byelections Preserve Union Nationale Lead

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The expected split decision in two Quebec byelections Wednesday leaves Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand with a narrow margin for manoeuvre going into important constitutional negotiations with the federal government.

Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's victory in the late Daniel Johnson's riding of Bagot gives the Union Nationale government 55 of the 108 seats in the Quebec legislature with one member neutralized by the speaker's role, that leaves a government voting strength of 54.

The total opposition vote rose to 52—including three independents—Wednesday when Liberal William Tetley easily carried the largely English-speaking Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace. One vacancy remains.

In Ottawa, where Mr. Bertrand's recent warnings of a possible Quebec-Ottawa constitutional confrontation have been taken cooly as by-products of the by-election campaign, Mr. Bertrand will be watched closely for hints on how he reads his own tight situation.

One of the most severe restrictions on Mr. Bertrand's ability to negotiate with Ottawa is expected to come from the nationalist wing of his own party.

The government has a clear,

Youths Douse Saigon Envoy

NEW YORK (AP) — Student demonstrators, some waving Viet Cong flags, prevented talks at New York University by a South Vietnamese diplomat and the executive editor of the New York Times Wednesday night.

About 60 demonstrators, 40 young men and women, pushed past a security guard where Nguyen Huu Chi, South Vietnam's permanent observer to the United Nations, was to address the political forum of the university.

The students, many of whom said they belonged to the militant Students for a Democratic Society, draped a Nazi flag around the diplomat's neck and someone poured a pitcher of water over him.

An NYU alumnus, Morton Minsky, who was attending the lecture, said the audience of about 700—most of them adults —shouted at the demonstrators: "Go home!"

The demonstrators also tore down a South Vietnamese flag and upset tables and chairs.

James Reston, executive editor of The Times, had begun his talk in another auditorium when demonstrators broke through a side door, dismantled the loudspeaker system, and shouted epithets. They were booed by the audience.

Police said there were no arrests.

EDUCATION MARKED FOR BIG BUDGET HIKE?

By JOHN MIKA

British Columbia's minister of education may inadvertently have given away a budgetary secret this week.

The possibility is that he let slip a treasury board estimate of an approximately $70 million increase in the education department's share of the budget Premier Bennett will bring down in February.

Adding up the probable significance of his comments, it would appear that the current year's education department estimates of $271.1 million will be overspent by some $22 million in the government's crash program to fill some of the gaps created by its widely resented school freeze.

And the lesson has sunk home with the government intending to avoid a repetition of its vulnerability to attack by planning to provide in the neighborhood of $365 million for education in the coming fiscal year.

The slip possibility arose in Mr. Brothers' handling of reporters' questions about university appeals for more construction grants.

Mr. Brothers said one of the reasons the government can't provide 100 per cent of the needs is the "skyrocketing" demand of public schools for more money.

ACUTELY CONSCIOUS

He said he was acutely conscious of the demands because his department now is in the throes of a treasury board grilling over its estimates for the fiscal hear beginning next April 1.

During the explanation, he said the people should realize that the department's current burden "approaches $300 million a year — compared with $18 million in 1952."

Another point he referred to is its spending rate as "$1 million a day."

When the discrepancy was pointed out to him, he said with a smile that $1 million a day "approaches $300 million, doesn't it?"

When it was pointed out to him that he was showing retroactive and unnatural modesty in describing a $365 million expenditure as merely "approaching," $300 million, Mr. Brothers smiled again and said "well it was $297 million last year and we all know there is going to be an increase."

The government's book of estimates for 1967-68 budgeted only $271.1 million for the education department so Mr. Brothers' second explanation suggests a substantial overexpenditures — which is consistent with the flood of treasury board announcements in the last three months authorizing more school construction.

Unitarian Theme Exemplified By Girls' Institute in India

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, started the institute in Madras in 1961). Now it is being run completely by Indians. The Indian government has even imitated USC courses in a new state-wide girls' training program.

Before the USC moved in, Indian girls has no vocational institutes.

"In 1961 I visited India and I noticed how there were vocational courses for boys and none for girls," said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"India needed housekeepers for rich families and diplomats, yet there was no training school for them," she said.

Twenty-five girls studied at the institute the first year it opened. "Girls who wouldn't make it academically," were admitted, said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"From the first year it was a success, and USC-trained girls are always placed easily."

In 1964, the USC turned over the institute to Mary Clubwalla Jadhav, the "dynamic" leader of the USC partner agency in Madras.

On a recent visit to the institute, Dr. Hitschmanova was pleased to find things running smoothly and an increased number of courses.

Dr. Hitschmanova remembers Martha, one of the training institute's first pupils.

"She was so shy and withdrawn," she said.

"Until she started working at the bread unit in the institute her future wasn't good, but now she is a happy, normal teen-ager," she said.

The Institute helped Martha but Dr. Hitschmanova says there are others still in need.

"When I came back to Canada," she said, "I was told the USC should do more at home."

"Sure we have our problems in this country where every fifth person lives in poverty," she said. "But compared to India we live in a paradise, and few of us know how much it hurts to be hungry."

Martha and people like her will learn nothing if they are

Quebec No Longer Provinces' Big Gun

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Tough talk from at least one provincial capital is no novelty at the approach of a federal-provincial conference like the mid-month meetings on the constitution and tax sharing.

The difference this time is that an unusually mild Quebec is being made up for by unusually tough sounds from other provincial capitals, especially Toronto and Winnipeg.

The language from Toronto has been more restrained but the message has been the same.

DEPENDED ON QUEBEC

Until then, provinces like Manitoba and Ontario, close allies of Quebec in federal-provincial confrontations, had reason to believe they could safely leave the main assault to Quebec.

Since 1966, Ottawa had been determined to treat all provinces alike. So anything Quebec got, other provinces could count on getting too.

And since it was an article of faith that no federal government could challenge a Quebec government head-on and still win the next election it looked like sound strategy for other provinces to line up their positions with Quebec's and count on Quebec's impregnability as their main defence.

No other province dare make serious threats about pulling out of Confederation if it did not get what it wanted. But Quebec could do it for them, secure in the belief that Quebec-first nationalism would tie the loyalty of its voters on the provincial side.

The benefits for Quebec's allies in this common provincial front were obvious. As the only province with its own "nationalism," Quebec gave the provincial team armor no other province could match.

But there was something in it for Quebec too. By frequent reference to its allies in other provinces, Quebec nationalism could make its effort to destroy the credibility of the federal government in Quebec —first essential step toward a more independent status—sound less radical and less dangerous than it would if Quebec had been alone.

To defend its own defences, by ensuring that French-speaking Quebecers would continue to look to Quebec City as the only government they could trust, Quebec was ready to resist any federal initiatives that would have cast Ottawa in the role of defender of French culture.

At last February's federal-provincial conference the late premier Daniel Johnson opposed the federal proposal for a constitutional bill of rights guaranteeing the two languages.

SAME POSITION

The Manitoba and Ontario delegations, who had been in close consultation with the Quebec representatives during the conference, took the same position as Quebec.

It amounted to opposing a federal initiative that would have undermined Quebec-first nationalism and weakened Quebec's claim to a special status.

Alberta and British Columbia also found themselves on the same side as Quebec.

Prime Minister Trudeau took on the Quebec government in the election campaign and won a bigger percentage of the popular vote in Quebec than he did in any other province.

He had demonstrated beyond doubt that a federal government willing to make the effort to serve the interests of French-speaking as well as English-speaking could appeal over the head of the Quebec government to the people themselves.

For Quebec's allies in other provincial capitals this meant that the super-weapon in which they had put all their faith was shown to be loaded with blanks. An alliance with Quebec was no longer adequate defence.

There was also the warning to be seized by the more perceptive members of provincial governments that if Prime Minister Trudeau could appeal to the people over the head of one provincial government there was a strong chance he could do it over the head of the others.

At the November meeting of federal and provincial finance and health ministers in Ottawa, some provincial ministers were reassuring one another with the argument that Ottawa would have to back away from its position because "Quebec will not buy it."

Quebec did't buy it. But that simple fact was no longer enough to wring cracking sounds from the foundations of confederation. The federal position did not budge.

The explosions of anger since that conference from the provinces that had learned to look on Quebec as an unbeatable ally are understandable.

Arthur Mayse

At least once each month, the same letter turns up in my mail. It comes in over different signatures, and with minor variations, but the message is always the same:

"I'm sure that with just a little instruction I could become a writer. If it isn't too much to ask, will you read the sample enclosed and criticize it for me. What I want is your honest opinion."

In the course of beating out a living on a series of hard-mouthed typewriters, I have received hundreds of versions of that letter, and vetted the enclosures. This without fee.

Also, more often than not, I have supplied return postage for scrivenings that range from short shorts to novels.

Enough times to make me realize that talent is more plentiful than you might think, I've had the pleasure of seeing these writings make it into print.

It is that the surest way to make an enemy is to comply with the request and offer an honest opinion.

What hurts even more, however, is to get a submission back from an editor's office with a rejection slip attached to it.

By its say-nothin blandness, the rejection slip lends itself to all manner of speculations. Some of these solidify into beliefs of the "magic key" variety.

Not so. No editor who hopes to stay in business can afford to give breaks where his publishing lists are concerned. The best that friendship with an editor can ensure is (possibly) a faster reading and a nice letter instead of a rejection slip. But unless the script pleases, the answer will still be no.

The best of this breed are as hard to please as editors, and they rarely deal in unpublished writers. Be warned, too, that the woods are full of agents who promise —and extract reading fees for—far more than they're likely to produce.

We come now to the part of the much-repeated letter that deals with instruction.

Read!

Read casually, for fun. Read intently for information. Also, read critically.

Most of all, read in those areas in which your writing interest lies.

Then, instead of letting ideas slide in and out of your head, do as writers must. Grab one, and brood over it. Don't talk about it to anyone, even though the urge may become all but irresistible.

If you insist on talking out a story, play or novel idea, the chances of getting it down on paper decrease with every word.

Stew on it. Then sit down and begin to write. That's a punishing job, and it never gets much easier, but it beats dreaming about how much you'd like to be a writer.

And when the piece is finished, make a list of all possible markets. Send it to each in turn, with postage for its home journey enclosed.

If it keeps coming back, assume that it isn't up to standard, and improve it or junk it.

But please . . . for the sake of amiable relations . . . don't send it to me!

IMMIGRANT INCREASE 'INEVITABLE'

By JOHN SLINGER

Canada "inevitably and soon" will be under greater pressure to lower its immigration barrier, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, co-chairman of B.C. Hydro, said here today.

The importance and implications for Canda of the world population explosion "can hardly be overstated," he told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers at the Empress Hotel.

WATER DRAIN

Dr. Keenleyside warned that because of population pressure, "water resources which seem lavish today may prove wholly inadequate tomorrow."

Growth of the urban population and rising water needs of industry are other factors that will increase demand.

A text of Dr. Keenleyside's address was released to reporters in advance of delivery.

"Misuse of water can, of course, be almost as detrimental as an inadequate supply," he said.

In administration and exploitation of resources, some good things had been done and others are planned.

But, "we have also made some deplorable mistakes."

VALLEYS RUINED

He pointed to the pollution of Lake Erie and many coastal beaches and "on occasion" the beauty of large valleys has been ruined by failure to deal adequately with dam reservoirs.

"Let me hastily add that I am not referring to the dams recently constructed by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority."

Dr. Keenleyside said B.C.'s water supply is so great that by "relatively small adjustments" it could be made available to the prairie provinces.

He mentioned scooping out a 12-mile trench in the Peace River to divert it into the Saskatchewan system.

SCOFFS AT U.S.

Water from the Columbia system could be turned eastward "at a surprisingly low cost" if drought conditions should again threaten the central provinces.

He scoffed at U.S. suggestions that it has a "moral right" of access to Canadian waters.

"This would be easier and cheaper than cleaning up the mess that they have created at home."

Should a complete study indicate Canada could afford to sell some water, then it should be considered. But, at the moment, "all suggestions of this kind should be met with an emphatic no."

Even less consideration should be given "such monstrosities" as the plan to dam the Rocky Mountain trench as a reservoir to irrigate the water-poor southwestern states.

He called the $100 billion NAPAWA scheme, which made the proposal, "a publicity stunt."

Arbitration For Teachers

Chances of a negotiated settlement between the Greater Victoria school board and the district's 1,260 public school teachers appeared to vanish Wednesday.

A mass meeting of teachers at Oak Bay Junior Secondary concluded the terms discussed in recent bargaining were too nebulous to make any decisions, said John Smith, president of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

A three-man arbitration board will hear briefs from both sides Monday before drafting a binding settlement.

Ask The Times

Q. I read recently that snakes used to have short legs. Can you tell me when the legs disappeared?—A.S.

A. Scientists do not know exactly when the snake lost its legs but they assume it was a gradual process which started thousands of years ago. Because a snake's natural habitat is dense vegetation legs are a hindrance to motion. By evolution limbs disappeared and the snake now moves by a series of "waves" through his body.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Surprise Visit Just a Whisper For Hovercraft

A hovercraft whispered into Cordova Bay Wednesday on a surprise visit to a site being proposed as the Greater Victoria terminal for a regular service with the mainland.

Hovercraft President Barry Jones said in Vancouver today:

"We're interested in putting a terminal there in lieu of going into Oak Bay Marina."

The unannounced visit caught Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and the municipal councillors by surprise and none of them were able to get to the site.

MAYOR IMPRESSED

In a statement to The Times, Mayor Curtis said today:

"I've written the firm and indicated that, I'm very interested in the possibility of a hovercraft service terminating somewhere in the municipality.

Fear of excess noise created by the craft, the SRN 6 model that was a feature of Expo 67, was given as a prime objection when Oak Bay council refused to permit a 30-day trial service from the Oak Bay Marina.

But Eric McMorran, a director of the Cordova Bay resort, said today the noise factor is almost negligible.

NO REACTION

He said the pilot of the craft was directed to cruise along the shoreline on his departure Wednesday, rather than follow the customary route from the bay, to see whether the noise upset local residents.

There has been no reaction today and Mr. McMorran said he suspects few of the neighbors were even aware of the craft's passage.

In Nanaimo, Mayor Frank Ney praised the service which begins between his city and Vancouver Dec. 21.

The mayor took a trial run Wednesday when the hovercraft cruised into Nanaimo before coming down the coast to Saanich.

Asked about the noise, he said: "To us it's the sound of progress—it's a lovely sound."

He said an airplane created far more noise as it took off near the proposed hovercraft terminal behind the Malaspina Hotel.

Expressing surprise at Oak Bay's rejection, Mayor Ney said he sometimes wonders "if the people making decisions at the municipal level have made sufficient investigation."

'EXCELLENT' CHOICE

Mr. Jones said his company considers the Cordova Bay site "an excellent choice." The shallow beach permits the craft to come right up on land and minimal terminal facilities would be needed.

Mr. McMorran said most of the resort's directors were on hand to view the hovercraft. They appeared "very impressed."

He expects a director's meeting will be called to discuss the proposal. If they decide to go ahead, then "I expect we'll be meeting with the hovercraft people and coming to some agreement."

Mayor Curtis said that all his contacts with Pacific Hovercraft so far have been informal. Because there has been no formal approach, council has not discussed the matter.

APPROACH COUNCIL

He informed the company that " before they get serious about this they will have to approach Saanich council."

"I also indicated to them that, quite apart from council, it would be wise for them to meet with the appropriate senior staff members at the municipal hall to discuss a number of ramifications and requirements" of a service.

"They have indicated that they are going to do this."

Personally, the mayor said, he has been pursuing the matter because "I think that hovercraft have a promising future in a service between Greater Victoria and Vancouver.

"And I certainly would not want to turn away from any possibility of assisting this, or any other company, in its efforts to locate a terminal."

'OLD SCHOOL' HOLIDAYS THIS YEAR

Christmas holidays in provincial elementary and secondary schools will begin with the end of classes Dec. 20 and schools will reopen Jan. 6.

Joseph Chell, superintendent for the Greater Victoria school district, said today the holiday is slightly longer this year with Christmas and New Year's Day falling in midweek.

The modern trend has been to trim the winter vacation to less than the old traditional two weeks, he added.

New Well Alleviates Problem

Central Saanich has solved it's water supply problem for next summer.

Reeve-elect Ald. Archie Galbraith said Wednesday a well has been sunk off Gliddon Road capable of supplying 150,000 gallons of water a day.

The municipality which supplies the bulk of the water for the whole of the northern peninsula, barely met demands last summer.

It is allowed to draw 1,000,000 gallons of water from Elk Lake, but last summer it drew it's maximum load due to increased demands from local residents and the export of water to the airport, the Swartz Bay ferry terminal, Deep Cove and Sidney.

"The new well should provide enough water to meet additional demands," said Mr. Galbraith.

He said a survey of ground water supply is presently being conducted by consultant engineer John Motherwell which might lead to one or two other wells being sunk.

"Our objective is to find enough water until the Greater Victoria water system is extended to the peninsula," he said.

New Look Coming For Porker

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Great events can pass unnoticed.

Consider the case of the pig—the provider of roasts, chops, bacon, spare ribs, ham and sausages, who is to undergo a major change in 1969.

He's to be made leaner—less fatty—under a federal-provincial government program which received little public attention when announced earlier this year.

The object is to bring an end to two household problems:

The surplus fat which housewives have endlessly accumulated in empty soup cans and jars; and

NEW GRADING SYSTEM

Starting on Jan. 1, a new system of grading pigs will go into effect which means breeders will have to raise pigs with less fat if they want to get more money for their swine.

He will raise leaner swine by selecting hogs which produce more meat. Federal research stations will assist him in testing pigs for their fat.

"We hope to produce a better quality meat," said Dr. A. Kidd, B.C. livestock commissioner. "Canadian bacon needs to be improved, Complaints are justified."

The agricultural experts devised a new and complicated system of grading hogs with the help of computers. They also carried out research on the genetic worth of individual pigs.

The studies put the experts of old to shame. For years they had blamed the hard-working sow for producing litters of fat, chubby piglets. But the new research found the villain to be the boar.

He's in for trouble now—quick disposal if his performance doesn't come up to standard.

Car Test Failures Hit 40%

Safety Week Message Underlined by Figures

Between July 1 and October 31 there were 41,514 cars tested and 16,895 were rejected on first appearance.

The figures were released today by Greater Victoria and District Safety Council.

The revelation that 40 per cent of all cars tested were unsafe, underlines the message of Safe Driving Week, which is now under way, officials stated.

They point out that national surveys show that nine per cent of all traffic fatalities result from mechanical failure in vehicles.

NEGLIGENCE

"Almost all such failures are due to negligence on the part of the owner or the driver," the safety council says.

In Victoria the experience of the testing station is that most common cause for rejection is faulty headlights. The second most common fault is steering mechanism.

Brakes, faulty stop and tail lights and turn signals rank collectively in third place.

While necessary repairs are mostly of a minor nature, any one of the faults listed could cause an accident.

Testing station officials say they are now hopeful they will test 80,000 cars annually. They point out that the procedure, required twice a year in future, can be speeded if drivers arrange their own check before appearing for the official test.

But even in areas where testing stations have not yet been established, the safety council urges drivers to make regular inspection of tires, steering equipment, exhaust systems, brakes and lights. Windows and mirrors should be kept clean.

With national Safe Driving Week more than half over, Canada today had chalked up 24 traffic deaths. Quebec had nine in four days, Ontario eight, B.C. three, Nova Scotia two and Saskatchewan and Manitoba, one each. Last year 81 Canadians died in the seven-day period.

POLICE TO BLOCK DRINKER'S ROAD

Victoria city police today warned that at least two road blocks will be set up to discourage drinking drivers between now and Christmas.

They won't say where and when.

Traffic inspector Richard Berry made the announcement in advance of the crackdown, hoping drivers would take heed, he said.

The warning, coming in the middle of Safe Driving Week, was supported by Greater Victoria and District Safety Council. The council urged residents to use care in offering liquid hospitality to guests.

Inspector Berry also warned that police, assisted by auxiliary officers, will launch an educational campaign for drivers and pedestrians in the downtown area, starting Saturday.

The program will involve checking anyone misusing crosswalks, traffic lights, making illegal turns, passing stop signs, or illegally changing lanes.

Though the program is educational "it doesn't preclude action being taken against violators" the inspector stated.

Townhouse To Be Given Public Airing

A rezoning application to construct the $2-million first stage of what will be the largest townhouse development in Saanich will be given a public hearing, council decided.

Consisting of 80 two-bedroom and 40 three-bedroom units, the development will be built by Diversified Holdings Ltd., Edmonton, owners of the property off Larchwood Drive just north of Gordon Head high school.

Saanich advisory planning commission recommended council approve the application. Date for a hearing has not yet been set.

W. K. Brawnell, who represents the developers, said each unit will compare with a $20,000 house.

'The concept is to rent to people with children who want a better than average home but can't afford to buy or can't get into apartments," he said in an interview.

Four townhouses will be included in each separate segment of the complex. Each will be two storeys high with a basement.

CULTURAL EXCHANGE IN AREA SCHOOLS

They Share Their Musical Wealth

By DON VIPOND

An example of the "cultural exchange" programs which are expanding in district schools:

DEDICATION

For many high school students music is an important part of their lives. They prove it with the hours of their own time they are ready to devote to it. And dedicated music teachers are showing the way.

There are many strong school music programs locally and the one operated by Dave Dunnett at Oak Bay senior and junior secondary schools is a good example.

Participation in the senior performing band there is strictly voluntary and quite apart from the regular music curriculum.

Students provide all but a few of the most expensive instruments as well as their own uniforms and the money for their tours.

Twice a week senior bandsmen arrive at school at 7:40 a.m. to practise until 9 o'clock. They have a two-hour practice on the auditorium stage once a week, often in tough competition with a floor hockey or basketball game.

The concert band has three student conductors and members handle transportation arrangements, ordering buses and seeing equipment gets aboard.

"We're not just turning out performers," Mr. Dunnet said Wednesday. "We want the kids to learn from getting involved."

SNOWBALLS HURLED BY NATIONALIST MOB

QUEBEC (CP) — A half-dozen windows of the Quebec legislature buildings were shattered by snowballs today as thousands of members and youthful supporters of a French-language nationalist group demonstrated against the promised introduction of a language rights bill.

The horde of marchers, estimated by provincial police to number nearly 3,000 at the peak of the demonstration, dwindled to a few hundred by noon, when it was learned that the proposed bill was not up for debate today.

Trudeau Constitution Plan To Spark Historic Clash

PRIDE OF THE NORTH part of the capital region, Robert Van den Brink of the Dutch Latch on the Malahat was first to tackle the snow-covered wastes today with his trusty lead dog Tiny. You can see suffering written on their faces as they turn from the bitter winds. But their mission must be accomplished, even if they have to pick up the doggon' toboggan and carry it. The district's first measurable snow melted quickly. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Court, Senate Battle Grounds

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Following a briefing Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau, Liberal caucus members are saying that the federal-provincial constitutional conference Dec. 16-18 will be a major and historic confrontation between Ottawa and the provinces.

The prime minister's briefing was primarily concerned with constitutional reform plans, including a move to depersonalize the role of the monarchy in Canada, and alter the part provinces would play in reform.

Caucus members said Mr. Trudeau is prepared to offer provinces a role in the appointment of senators.

But there were no details about how this would be carried out.

Mr. Trudeau has indicated outside the caucus that he would prefer a system whereby the provinces made nominations and he made the selections.

The provinces likely will press for authority to make appointments on their own.

The prime minister also is known to favor having the senate undertake more investigations in order to prepare the basis for new legislation. But he would guard against turning over to the senate the power to initiate legislation on its own.

Some Liberal backbenchers are keeping a close watch on moves in the upper House to introduce its own reforms. They charge that the Senate is making a bid to get more power and they will fight any such development.

A clash with the provinces is also expected on appointments to the Supreme Court.

Ottawa is expected to make some concessions to counter the Quebec charge that federal appointees on the court are heavily under the influence of the federal government to Quebec's disadvantage.

Role of Queen Played Down

On the role of the monarchy in government there may be a move to substitute the Canadian governor-general for Her Majesty in such documents as proclamations and the preamble to the constitution.

This is a touchy subject and could stir up considerable opposition from some provinces.

The prime minister has also made it clear that he will propose a draft charter of human rights to be incorporated in the constitution. The present Bill of Rights — introduced by John Diefenbaker — is only a federal statute.

On other fronts tempers are rising as the meeting date approaches.

Ottawa's proposals for dividing revenues on offshore mineral rights have run into stiff opposition from British Columbia and Quebec.

The budget brought down by Finance Minister Edgar Benson has also angered the provinces.

The last federal-provincial conference with the finance ministers and health ministers saw Ottawa inform the provincial ministers that it was bowing out of several social welfare or social development programs thereby lopping off large sums of money that used to go to the provinces from the federal treasury.

The climate for this approaching federal-provincial conference is not conducive to friendly negotiations.

The discussions could become decidedly warm if not superheated at some points.

The caucus discussion on planned changes in the constitution will continue next Wednesday, the last gathering of cabinet and Liberal backbenchers before the federal-provincial conference opens.

60,000 Stage Token Strike

PARIS (Reuters) — About 60,000 Renault auto workers began a half-day token strike today in the first big challenge to the government since the May-June revolts.

About 30,000 workers were from the huge Renault factory at Billancourt in suburban Paris, one of the first plants to strike in the labor unrest in the spring. The workers claim the state-owned company has not honored agreements to improve working conditions.

Other workers downed tools at Renault factories at Tat le Mains, Cleon and Sandouville in northern France and at Flins, a centre of labor discontent west of Paris.

Before the strike began, the National Assembly voted 438 to 4 for a bill giving labor unions official recognition in all firms with more than 50 employees. Union officials will also be allowed time off the job for organization activities in companies with more than 500 workers. The bill now goes to the Senate.

VARY IN LENGTH

The strikes will vary in length from factory to factory. Labor union leaders view them as a warning to the government not to implement parts of a new austerity program that allegedly would wipe out gains won by workers after the spring crisis.

Nixon Urged To Send Observer

NEW YORK (AP) — W. Averell Harriman said today, after conferring with President-elect Richard M. Nixon, that he is confident Nixon will send a personal observer to the Paris talks and will replace the two principal American negotiators soon after taking office.

Nixon, who had tentatively decided against sending an observer to the peace talks before inauguration day, was said to be shifting his attitude at the urging of Harriman.

Talking to reporters after meeting with Nixon for more than an hour, Harriman made it clear he and deputy negotiator Cyrus R. Vance will turn over their tasks to Nixon's team on or about Jan. 20, which is inauguration day.

Peace to All From Hanoi

LONDON (AP) — The North Vietnamese Liberation Radio announced today the Viet Cong will observe two ceasefire periods of three days each at Christmas and New Year.

Liberation Radio, broadcasting from Hanoi, said the first ceasefire period will cover Dec. 24, 25, 26 and the second, Dec. 30, 31 and Jan. 1, said BBC.

The United States and South Vietnamese commands announced Monday they will observe a 24-hour ceasefire Christmas Day but that there would be no truce on New Year's Day.

25,000 MARCH IN ROME

ROME (Reuters) — About 25,000 striking workers and students staged a protest march through the streets of Rome today, booing policemen, waving red flags and blowing incessantly on plastic whistles.

The marchers, led by a row of 10 men with linked arms hissed and booed a group of police guarding a police station and two army trucks ferrying people to work turned into a side street to avoid them.

Chanting "Worker power" and "Workers and students unite," the procession reached St. John Lateran Square where the crowd swelled to more than 40,000 to listen to speeches by labor union leaders.

FEELING RUNS HIGH

Feeling against the police has run high among workers since two demonstrating farm laborers were shot and killed Monday in a clash with police in Sicily.

Most stores were closed and shuttered, offices empty, government and public buildings deserted.

Strip Mining 'Raping' Land

CRANBROOK (CP) — Legislation to control strip mining was advocated Wednesday by Henry Nelson, chairman of the East Kootenay regional district.

In a statement sent to all provincial government departments and Kootenay district municipal councils, Mr. Nelson called for legislation to ensure rehabilitation of land after strip mining.

"It is fine for the province to be resources-orientated, but we in turn must protect the land so future generations of British Columbians can enjoy this great province the way we do today," he said.

"Surely the East Kootenay, and for that matter all of Canada, is worth more than just being raped of its resources and then left when it has served its resource-orientated purpose," said Mr. Nelson.

Snow Hits Up-Island Areas; Coldest Night Forecast Here

Victoria is facing its coldest night so far this winter tonight.

But it's a warming thought to consider that snow reported from up-Island points appears to be avoiding the capital city.

Temperatures will drop to the 20s tonight in Greater Victoria areas except near the waterfront, the weatherman expects.

It should be clear tonight and sunny Friday. Weatherman was expecting mostly sunny weather with some rain showers today, perhaps with a few flakes of "thick rain" mixed in.

There were a few flakes mixed with rain in Victoria Wednesday night and early today, but up-Island, snowfalls ranged from a powdering to four inches in Port Alberni.

RCMP estimated about double that depth on the "hump" where the highway leads to Parksville and similar conditions on the mountains toward Tofino and Ucluelet.

SALTING ROADS

Courtenay had an inch overnight, Campbell River was salting its roads after a light fall. Nanaimo reported snow in the outskirts, a sprinkle in town and some icing.

Duncan reported some snow but it mostly disappeared by mid-morning.

The Malahat was covered with an inch of wet, slushy snow but roads were reported clear and so far the RCMP was not calling for chains or snow tires.

On the mainland there was a five-inch snowfall at Prince Rupert and six inches at Prince George. Vancouver had an overnight powder, Squamish seven inches.

BURNING SUN

Meanwhile, back in Victoria, a woman complained Wednesday that the sun burned a hole in her curtains.

Mrs. W. R. Thorne, 1265 Haultain, found her curtain smouldering and called the fire department. Assistant chief John Stewart said rays caught by a magnifying mirror on her dresser had reflected on the curtain. He said it was a first in his memory.

Return to Homes

NATAL (CP) — Eleven families, evacuated from their homes near this mining community last week because of minor slides of fill being used to construct a mining road, were allowed to return Wednesday night.

Ojukwu Blamed

OTTAWA (CP) — Anthony Enahoro, Nigerian information commissioner, charged today that Biafran leader Odumegwu Ojukwu has used the food shortage facing his people to "play on the conscience of the world." He told a press conference that relief problems in secessionist Biafra have arisen mainly as a result of poor planning by its leaders.

WHITE STUFF AGAIN CLOGS MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP)—Almost a foot of wet snow fell on Montreal Wednesday, nearly a third of the winter's total so far.

Since the season's first big storm Nov. 12, which dumped 8.9 inches of snow on the unsuspecting city, 40.7 inches have fallen. So far this month, the total is 13.2

Last winter, only 13.8 inches of snow had fallen on Montreal by Dec. 5.

Byelections Preserve Union Nationale Lead

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The expected split decision in two Quebec byelections Wednesday leaves Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand with a narrow margin for manoeuvre going into important constitutional negotiations with the federal government.

Eucation Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's victory in the late Daniel Johnson's riding of Bagot gives the Union Nationale government 55 of the 108 seats in the Quebec legislature with one member neutralized by the speaker's role, that leaves a government voting strength of 54.

The total opposition vote rose to 52—including three independents—Wednesday when Liberal William Tetley easily carried the largely English-speaking Montreal riding of Notre-Dame-de-Grace. One vacancy remains.

In Ottawa, where Mr. Bertrand's recent warnings of a possible Quebec-Ottawa constitutional confrontation have been taken coolly as by-products of the byelection campaign, Mr. Bertrand will be watched closely for hints on how he reads his own tight situation.

One of the most severe restrictions on Mr. Bertrand's ability to negotiate with Ottawa is expected to come from the nationalist wing of his own party.

The government has a clear,

Youths Douse Saigon Envoy

NEW YORK (AP) — Student demonstrators, some waving Viet Cong flags, prevented talks at New York University by a South Vietnamese diplomat and the executive editor of the New York Times Wednesday night.

About 60 demonstrators, 40 young men and women, pushed past a security guard where Nguyen Huu Chi, South Vietnam's permanent observer to the United Nations, was to address the political forum of the university.

The students, many of whom said they belonged to the militant Students for a Democratic Society, draped a Nazi flag around the diplomat's neck and someone poured a pitcher of water over him.

An NYU alumnus, Morton Minsky, who was attending the lecture, said the audience of about 700—most of them adults —shouted at the demonstrators: "Go home!"

The demonstrators also tore down a South Vietnamese flag and upset tables and chairs.

James Reston, executive editor of The Times, had begun his talk in another auditorium when demonstrators broke through a side door, dismantled the loudspeaker system, and shouted epithets. They were booed by the audience.

Police said there were no arrests.

EDUCATION MARKED FOR BIG BUDGET HIKE?

By JOHN MIKA

British Columbia's minister of education may inadvertently have given away a budgetary secret this week.

The possibility is that he let slip a treasury board estimate of an approximately $70 million increase in the education department's share of the budget Premier Bennett will bring down in February.

Adding up the probable significance of his comments, it would appear that the current year's education department estimates of $271.1 million will be overspent by some $22 million in the government's crash program to fill some of the gaps created by its widely resented school freeze.

And the lesson has sunk home with the government intending to avoid a repetition of its vulnerability to attack by planning to provide in the neighborhood of $365 million for education in the coming fiscal year.

The slip possibility arose in Mr. Brothers' handling of reporters' questions about university appeals for more construction grants.

Mr. Brothers said one of the reasons the government can't provide 100 per cent of the needs is the "skyrocketing" demand of public schools for more money.

ACUTELY CONSCIOUS

He said he was acutely conscious of the demands because his department now is in the throes of a treasury board grilling over its estimates for the fiscal year beginning next April 1.

During the explanation, he said the people should realize that the department's current burden "approaches $300 million a year — compared with $18 million in 1952."

Another point he referred to is its spending rate as "$1 million a day."

When the discrepancy was pointed out to him, he said with a smile that $1 million a day "approaches $300 million, doesn't it?"

When it was pointed out to him that he was showing retroactive and unnatural modesty in describing a $365 million expenditure as merely "approaching," $300 million, Mr. Brothers smiled again and said "well it was $297 million last year and we all know there is going to be an increase."

The government's book of estimates for 1967-68 budgeted only $271.1 million for the education department so Mr. Brothers' second explanation suggests a substantial overexpenditure — which is consistent with the flood of treasury board announcements in the last three months authorizing more school construction.

By SUSAN RILEY

Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova, executive director of the USC, started the institute in Madras in 1961. Now it is being run completely by Indians. The Indian government has even imitated USC courses in a new state-wide girls' training program.

"In 1961 I visited India and I noticed how there were vocational courses for boys and none for girls," said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"India needed housekeepers for rich families and diplomats, yet there was no training school for them," she said.

Twenty-five girls studied at the institute the first year it opened. "Girls who wouldn't make it academically," were admitted, said Dr. Hitschmanova.

"From the first year it was a success, and USC-trained girls are always placed easily."

In 1964, the USC turned over the institute to Mary Clubwalla Jadhav, the "dynamic" leader of the USC partner agency in Madras.

On a recent visit to the institute, Dr. Hitschmanova was pleased to find things running smoothly and an increased number of courses.

Dr. Hitschmanova remembers Martha, one of the training institute's first pupils.

"She was so shy and withdrawn," she said.

"Until she started working at the bread unit in the institute her future wasn't good, but now she is a happy, normal teen-ager," she said.

The Institute helped Martha but Dr. Hitschmanova says there are others still in need.

"When I came back to Canada," she said, "I was told the USC should do more at home."

"Sure we have our problems in this country where every fifth person lives in poverty," she said. "But compared to India we live in a paradise, and few of us know how much it hurts to be hungry."

Martha and people like her will learn nothing if they are

Sewer Lagoon Flooding Halted

DUNCAN — Water containing effluent from the city's sewage lagoon which crossed Tzouhalem Road Wednesday and ran into Somenos Creek caused some concern to residents of nearby low-lying subdivisions.

However, under direction of superintendent of works Frank Hays, a dike was constructed and the situation should not recur, Mayor Jim Quaife said today. The water level is nearly back to normal.

"I was very concerned about the amount of contaminated water going across the road," he said, "but this has now been corrected with the dike." The cost of the dike is to be borne equally by North Cowichan and city of Duncan.

Mayor Quaife also pointed out that a statement by regional health officer Dr. H. S. Simons that all drinking water should be boiled to protect against possible disease may have frightened some residents.

BOIL WATER

"The water used in a few homes in the area comes from private wells and this should be boiled this time of year anyway when there is a danger of flooding," he said. "But the majority of the drinking water comes from a deep city well about one-quarter of a mile from the overflow area.

"There is no danger of it becoming contaminated unless our main sprung a leak at that point—and that is highly unlikely."

The situation arose when North Cowichan recently opened a sewage lagoon opposite the Duncan lagoon which has been in operation for years.

Mayor Quaife contends the municipality cut off a portion of property that formerly allowed effluent to run into the Cowichan River. This water then backed up into a triangle formed by the two lagoons and Tzouhalem Road when water levels began to rise.

It was from this triangle that the water was flowing across the road Wednesday.

LINES LAID

North Cowichan Mayor D. C. Morton said the new south-end sewer is completed and several large users are already connected and their sewage is being drained into the lagoon.

"There will be 481 immediate connections made in the new area including three large schools and the hospital. With the merging of all south-end systems into one system, there will be a total of 857 connections including three more schools."

Mayor Morton said all lots will be using the lagoon which "appears to be very satisfactory" with facilities for chlorination and a 900-foot effluent pipe going into the river.

A former treatment plant was at capacity levels and became too expensive to operate.

"The (lagoon) system will allow for considerable expansion in the Lakes Road area and for many more users in subdivisions being planned in the south end area," Mayor Morton said.

EARTHMOVING machine is abandoned in three feet of water at the site of construction of a new North Cowichan District sewage lagoon. Water backed up from Cowichan River contained effluent from city of Duncan sewage lagoon adjacent to it. Water was at least seven feet deep near centre of triangle formed by the two lagoons and the road. (Ed Gould)

Girl Wins Double Award for 4-H Work

MAPLE BAY — Roberta Jameson, daughter of district agriculturist Ken Jameson, won the Groves Cup for having the best steer in the Cowichan Valley at the fifth anniversary of the Cowichan 4-H Beef Club here.

Miss Jameson also won the Ardchoille Shield for being the best senior showman.

Susan Sim was named the best junior showman and Sharon Glen the best intermediate showman. Jim Myhre, club president, received the Credit Union Cup for the highest achievement marks out of the 17 active members who completed the year's project.

The Somenos Women's Institute cash prize for the best record books was won by Doreen Evans and was presented to her by her grandmother, Mrs. H. D. Evans.

'Give Bylaw Second Chance'

DUNCAN — An earnest plea to give the $850,000 recreation centre plan bylaw that was defeated in November at least one more try, highlighted Wednesday night's meeting of the joint recreation commission.

"Port Alberni gave their bylaw three tries before it was passed," chairman Pat Rogers said, "and look what they have today — a centre that experts come from as far away as the United States to study."

Mr. Rogers made his statement after project architect John Sanderson proposed two alternate $600,000 versions of the original recreation complex.

- A swimming pool built along the lines of the original. Auditorium and civic rooms would be cut leaving a first class pool expected to serve the expanding population well for many years.
- A 42-foot by 24-metre pool with the basics of an auditorium stripped of all frills. A community centre area but no senior citizen space, deep diving tank or pre-school swimming training area.

Mayor Jim Quaife feared the cost would be too high by the time a bylaw was prepared and presented. The original cost of $850,000 could jump to $1,000,000 in a very short time, he said.

Mr. Rogers said "I think it is a very negative attitude for us to take that just because we didn't get the bylaw through the first time we should quit. I think the original plan is the only practical one, the others are just stop-gaps.

"Therefore, it is my personal view that we present the same bylaw again."

The decision of which plan to accept is expected to be decided at a further meeting next Thursday.

They're Ready To 'Walk Off' Appeal Deficit

NANAIMO — The people of Nanaimo are ready and willing to "walk off" a deficit of $13,000 in the city's United Appeal.

A number of local groups will take part in a walkathon to be held between 9:30 and 10 a.m. Saturday.

At least 20 walkers have obtained sponsors who will pay for each mile completed of an eight-mile hike. Boy Scout troops and members of Nanaimo Lions Club will also take part.

Employees of the recreation commission have challenged the commissioners, and chairman Bill McGregor will try to outwalk staff member Eric Ranpen.

United Appeal chairman Robert McPhee will be among the walkers and it is expected that civic, provincial and federal representatives will take part.

School Board Help 'Up to the Indians'

"But the request must come from them."

Chief Dennis Alphonse, a special counsellor and representative of the Indian Education Committee who sits in on school board meetings, had outlined several problems his people are encountering.

The committee feared its Tiny Tots Co-Op Nursery may have to be closed because of lack of a permanent building. A government subsidy has been turned down, Chief Alphonse said.

Regarding a transportation problem to and from the nursery, Mr. Frumento asked the transportation committee to discuss it with the Indian education committee and "see if we can help them out.

"We may end up saving money if we take a look at the situation now."

Truancy is high in senior grades and a solution is being sought, Chief Alphonse said.

Mr. Frumento, who attended an education meeting on the reserve, said many parents took students out of school when they went across to the United States to work on farms in the spring and early summer.

This led many to drop out of school permanently, he said.

Most relatives and friends also went to the U.S., Chief Alphonse said.

Old Hospital First Choice

Sites and building committee chairman Don Hammond of Lake Cowichan told the regular meeting of the College Council here that although other possibilities are still under investigation, blueprints for renovation to the Nanaimo building are being studied by authorities.

The getaway car

We have a fleet of them. They're waiting for you in the lobby of Hotel Vancouver, disguised as elevators. Step aboard – and you're in a different world.
Lurk there for a while and plot your next move. Will it be the Timber Club or the Panorama Roof?
The Timber Club is warm and woodsy – a pleasant hideaway, where you can do justice to the juiciest, tenderest steak that ever sizzled on a platter. Or ride a Getaway Car to Canada's other great restaurant, the Panorama Roof. There you can contemplate the most spectacular view in the West, while attentive people bring you wonderful food. Everyone needs to escape once in a while.
Now you have somewhere to escape to. Hotel Vancouver. Your Getaway Car is waiting.
